G. O. P. 80 YEARS OLD; WAGES NEW WAR ON SLAVERY

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Jackson, Mich., July 6.—[Special.]—Eighty years ago today stanch sons of America rallied stubbornly beneath a cluster of young oaks in this city and, calling themselves for the first time Republicans, launched a struggle against slavery.

HANFORD MAC NIDER.

Now those oaks are greater and stronger and higher, and today under their protective branches another group of Republicans, far outnumbering those pioneers of 1854, and coming from all over the country, called for a rebirth of their party and for a revival of the historic struggle against slavery.

But today it was not the enslavery of blacks that brought the fiery words of challenge from the lips of the Republicans. They battled what they called an effort to enslave the people under a New Deal, which they said gave promise only of regimentation and of slavery, on fields, in shops and in homes all over the land.

U. S. Spitted on Brain Trust Irons.

They saw Americans spitted on the experimental irons of the brain trust of Washington—"a group of brilliant young men of no admitted party allegiance, dizzy with sudden and unrestricted power, now our governmental masters."

Those who stood under the oaks, where once was a large grove but where now houses stand interspersed among them, braved a downpour of rain. Earlier there had been a terrific deluge, received with thanks by farmers with an eye to their parched fields, and with mixed feeling by the holiday making Republicans.

Fighting words were spoken as men and women orators addressed various meetings during a whole day of celebrating the birthday of Republicanism. The great oaks, seeming to symbolize the strength of the country which the Republican party has helped often to nourish, in all their strong majesty echoed the speakers' cries for a return to government under the constitution of the United States.

Plaque Message in Harmony.

A bronze plaque, laid some years ago in a great bowlder at the scene, presents to all comers a message strangely in harmony with the speeches. On it is written: "Here under the oaks, July 6, 1854, was born the Republican party, destined in the throes of civil strife to abolish slavery, vindicate democracy, and perpetuate the Union."

"Keep our press free" was but one of the calls today for a rallying behind the long guaranteed rights of citizens under the constitution.

"Fellow citizens," cried out the Republican committeewoman for Michigan, Mrs. Jacob Steketee, "if the time ever comes in our country when freedom of honest expression shall be denied we will have surrendered our greatest birthright. Our constitution will have become a scrap of worthless paper and we will have to recover our freedom by other means.

Praises Stand of Press.

"It does not speak strength for any cause which calls one who in an honest purpose offers it criticism a 'chiseler,' or accuses him of disloyalty to his country. Had it not been for the press of the country in its firm stand for the freedom of the right to honestly offer suggestions and criticism I fear the gag would have been put on them as it has been done in Germany, Italy and Russia."

Then were heard the sharp, crashing accusations hurled against the brain trusters by one who fought for his country in the world war, a young Republican, Hanford MacNider, one time national commander of the American Legion.

He lashed out at the professors of Washington, calling them by name—"the Tugwells, the Ezekiels, the Wallaces, the Richbergs, and the Ickeses"—and impassionately he asked for an end to the mistaken ideals paraded under the euphemy of "loyalty to President," and for a clear fight against those who he said were seeking to launch a socialistic dictatorship in the place of government by constitution and by the people.

Urges Fight to Fill Ranks.

"What we should be doing," he exclaimed, "is not talking but fight-

SAN FRANCISCO FACES GENERAL STRIKE THREAT

Union Heads Name 'Strategy' Body.

San Francisco, Cal., July 6.—(AP)—Creation of a "strike strategy committee" to aid in directing trade union action in San Francisco's water front conflict was voted by the central labor council after a general strike discussion tonight.

The committee plan, supported by John O'Connell, secretary of the council, was carried by a vote of 165 to 8. In reply to demands for an immediate recommendation for a general strike, O'Connell said:

"This strategy committee is the same move now. It will lead to organized movement in case of a general strike later, and would mean that brains and not brawn would direct us."

General Strike Idea Spreads.

One of the first problems of the "strategy committee," labor council leaders said, will be to advise and cooperate with the various unions planning votes on the general strike movement.

The idea of a general strike spread quickly to Portland, Ore., where representatives of eighty unions approved a resolution calling upon a committee to meet not later than Monday to formulate plans for a general strike in sympathy with the walkout of 27,000 coast longshoremen and marine workers.

A resolution presented by Edward Vandeleur, president of the labor council, and O'Connell, which was adopted with a thunder of "ayes," declared the calling of the 2,000 guardsmen "subjected the striking marine workers and this port and community to the ignominy of being ruled by the military."

It termed the action of Gov. Frank F. Merriam "unprecedented and ill considered and urged renewal of mediation efforts.

President Roosevelt's labor disputes board, which for days had worked in vain toward getting all sides together voluntarily for a settlement, decided tonight to use its authority under the newly enacted congressional resolution governing employment controversies.

"Willing to Arbitrate."

The board, invoking for the first time the provisions of the new law, announced it would hold public hearings beginning here Monday to determine issues, facts, and practices in the controversy.

The board said all unions involved had indicated their willingness to submit to arbitration, "but subject to certain conditions," and that the employers had replied similarly.

The movement of long delayed cargo from the state owned water front area—a nonunion operation which precipitated the clashes and the calling out of 2,000 guardsmen yesterday—continued today with the bristling machines of war commanding peace in the industrial district.

A possibility the strike might spread sympathetically among ports of the Atlantic coast appeared in the statement of Joseph P. Ryan, president of the International Longshoremen's association, who said in New York:

"We cannot be expected to keep our men at work on the Atlantic coast for employers who are calling out troops to shoot down men who simply want a decent system of hiring."

1,500 Guards on Duty.

In Washington, after the San Francisco joint strike committee sent a telegram to President Roosevelt asking him to intervene in the situation here, Secretary of Labor Perkins examined reports from the President's labor disputes board here, but her aids said she was planning no new action.

About 1,500 guardsmen were in position on the water front early today. The water front was quiet, but there was a tenseness in the military atmosphere.

At Oakland Clayton Miner, 27, a striker, was shot through the abdomen and physicians said he probably would die.

Assails Gov. Merriam.

In calling the meeting to discuss a general strike O'Connell said:

"Gov. Frank Merriam did a rotten thing when he called out the National Guard.

The appeal of the joint strike committee asserted the San Francisco Industrial association and the police had "started a reign of terror on the water front by shooting, gassing, and bombing the workers who as American citizens and union men are trying to protect their jobs."

"These conditions," said the appeal "cannot be tolerated by organized labor.

"Remember, the workers in Toledo, Milwaukee, and Minneapolis won their demands when a general strike was threatened in those cities. There is only one course to follow—strike."

EVEN BABIES ARE PAYING FOR THE NEW DEAL

Ickes Asks His Help Please to Stop Loafing

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 6.—[Special.]—Old Father Ickes gathered his brood about him over at the interior department today and gently, so as to hurt no feelings, he scolded the boys and girls for reading magazines, powdering noses, and manicuring fingers when Uncle Sam is paying them to work.

It was a kindly rebuff—so considerate, so gentle, that even those among the boys and girls who felt a guilty burning of the ears had no trouble at all in comforting a harassed conscience. Good Father Ickes seemed unable to be stern with his flock, and his peans of praise for his boys and girls far outweighed his chidings.

It seems that Father Ickes became administrator of public works just about a year ago. So today he assembled the 4,000 underlings who help him dish out federal easy money and held a sort of birthday celebration.

Proud of Them.

Ah, but he was proud of them, Father Ickes said. During the year they'd made an enviable record, and he'd stack 'em up against any other outfit in the whole New Deal dish of alphabetical soup.

But—and the good father became a wee bit wistful—wouldn't they just try to stay away from the soda fountain during office hours, and wouldn't they try to find time at home for manicuring and powdering. It did seem, he ventured, that the boys and girls might find time outside the office for their literary pursuits because it left a bad impression when strangers passing through the corridors noticed hard working clerks working hard over "True Love Romances" or something.

Just a few days ago, it appeared, the good administrator took a notion to gumshoe incognito about his realm. There, it is reported, he found amazing goings-on.

Busy with the Paper.

In one office he came upon a youth whose feet reposed upon a desk. The youth was busy with the daily paper.

"Is that the way you work?" asked Father Ickes. "I can't do that myself."

"And who," was the retort courteous, "the hell are you?"

The story goes that the lad found out, all right, and Father Ickes meandered on. Shortly he spied another youth busily engaged in cleaning his white shoes; then three young ladies, working hard over a game of dominoes.

A bit bewildered, the boss wandered to the soft drink concession, muscled his way through the jam, and engaged the concessionaire in conversation. He heard that business was fine. The soda stand was a swell place for loafing, it appeared, and a place well patronized, indeed.

Next morning Father Ickes marched to the department cafeteria after 8 o'clock, when all good boys and girls in his brood are supposed to be hard at work. He found plenty of them hard at work with ham and eggs and other breakfast specials.

So he cautioned his flock about these things today, very mildly and very considerately. He was sure they'd all mend their ways.

When he finished his little speech the boys and girls were simply agog with esprit de corps, but old timers in the capital are suggesting that good Father Ickes take another walk about his realm in about a week when the esprit de corps has all worn off.

TAKES JAUNT OUT TO COAST AND BACK EAST 'OVER THE FOURTH'

Washington, D. C., July 6.—(AP)—Those who tried to find out how far the family car and traffic would take them from home over the Fourth of July should be envious of Lieut. Harry B. Temple of the navy.

He hopped out to Los Angeles and back, as the pilots say, a little ferrying job of taking a ship through to the coast.

Temple flew a navy experimental scout plane, leaving here early July 3, stopping over night en route, and delivering the plane at noon July 4 at the naval air station at San Diego. Returning in a commercial plane, Lieut. Temple was back at his desk in Washington July 5.

U. S. SAILOR SHOT BY FRENCH COP; 27 HURT IN RIOT

NICE, France, July 6.—(AP)—James Kline, an American sailor of the battleship Arkansas, was shot and seriously wounded tonight by Leo Curpy, chief of police, who said he fired in self-defense.

The police chief said he remonstrated with the sailor for molesting a girl on the street. He said Kline seized him about the neck and banged his head against a wall. The officer drew his pistol and shot the sailor through the neck.

After this shooting other American navy men became involved in several café brawls and smashed a quantity of crockery. Two sailors were seriously hurt, 25 were cut and bruised, and 10 were arrested and later turned over to American naval authorities. Rear Admiral Hayne Ellis rushed a riot squad of sailors from the Arkansas to round up the revelers.

Kermit Roosevelt's Wife Fined Again for Speeding

New York, July 6.—[Special.]—Mrs. Elle W. Roosevelt, wife of Kermit Roosevelt, was fined $50 today in Jamaica court on a charge of speeding 40 miles an hour. Mrs. Roosevelt did not appear and the fine was paid by her attorney. This was her second offense. Last September she was fined $25.

Report Plan to Ditch NRA for Self-Rule

[Copyright: 1934: By the Associated Press.]

New York, July 6.—A plan to replace the NRA with self-government for industry, an authoritative source said today, is being formulated by President Roosevelt's administration.

Under the proposed plan codes would become a permanent feature of industry, which would govern itself under the close supervision of the federal government.

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, has taken the lead in the reformation, the Associated Press informant disclosed, and has been in New York for several days conferring on the change.

Revisions Are Suggested.

Steps toward completion of the new project were initiated by Johnson several weeks ago in a preliminary set-up submitted to President Roosevelt. Suggested revisions are being made for final approval by the President.

Although there was no immediate confirmation by the government, the source of the information—one close to the administration—said carrying out of the program virtually is assured.

Washington observers said the plan followed closely the known beliefs of Gen. Johnson that coördination of the NRA and the federal trade commission was necessary.

Government experts have been working for months on plans to make permanent the fundamentals of the NRA and other business laws, but it was believed there that a final permanent organization probably will await more experience in the conduct of the NRA as an administrative agency.

Avoid Monopolistic Tendencies.

Special care has been taken by Johnson, it was said in New York, to avoid under the new organization the monopolistic tendencies charged against the NRA.

"The federal government would watch closely to prevent any rise in prices it deemed unjustified," the Associated Press was told.

"If the Sherman anti-trust act continues under suspension its provisions would probably be guarded by a licensing system to prevent such rises.

"As a measure of protection to the smaller business and industrial man the federal government would keep a strict watch to prevent any monopolistic tendencies."

Guarantee Collective Bargaining.

The plan, it was believed, would also call for some guarantee of the NRA collective bargaining powers before granting industry the right to govern itself.

It is believed that Johnson has consulted Gerard Swope, president of the General Electric company, who has advanced a program for stabilization of industry under self-government by stabilizing employment and coördinating production.

M'Veagh, Chief of Treasury in Taft Era, Dies

Franklin MacVeagh, one of Chicago's oldest citizens, who served as secretary of the treasury under President Taft, died at 8:50 o'clock last night in St. Luke's hospital of bronchial pneumonia. He was taken to the hospital ten days ago.

Mr. MacVeagh, 96 years old, had resided in Chicago since 1866. He was for many years head of the wholesale grocery firm of Franklin MacVeagh & Co., which went out of business early in 1932. He was also active in civic and political reform movements.

Born on a farm in Chester county, Pa., Mr. MacVeagh was educated in Pennsylvania schools and at Yale university, from which he was graduated in 1862 with the degree of bachelor of arts. In 1864 he received a degree in law from Columbia university. For two years he practiced law in New York, but left that city because of poor health and came to Chicago.

Beaten for Senate as Democrat.

His entry into the wholesale grocery field was made in the same year, 1866, with James A. Whitaker, Isaac N. Harmon, and John Messer as partners. Mr. MacVeagh later purchased the interest of the others.

In 1894 Mr. MacVeagh, as a Democrat, ran for the senate and campaigned through the state. He was defeated in the legislature.

In 1896, during the Bryan era, he transferred his allegiance to the Republican party. When President Taft made him secretary of the treasury in 1909 he resigned the presidency of his firm. He returned to private life in 1913 and again became president of the grocery house.

Active to the Last.

At the time the business was dissolved the veteran merchant recalled that it had passed through several panics and the major disaster of the fire of 1871. He described the depression that existed in 1931, however, as "the most difficult of all."

Mr. MacVeagh continued to give his business affairs close attention until the last illness developed. At the time of his death his only son, Eames MacVeagh, and Mrs. Eames MacVeagh were at the bedside. Although it was realized that his condition was critical, his passing last night was unexpected.

Among the organizations which Mr. MacVeagh was active in promoting were the United Charities and the Municipal Art league, for both of which he served as president.

Yale's Oldest Graduate.

He was a charter member of the Cliff Dwellers and of the City club. He was president of the Citizens' association in 1874. It was said that he was the oldest living graduate of Yale university. He was a Phi Beta Kappa.

Mr. MacVeagh was a brother of the late Wayne MacVeagh, who was attorney general under President Garfield and later ambassador to Italy. His nephew, Charles MacVeagh, was ambassador to Japan and his great-nephew, Charles MacVeagh Jr., is now minister to Greece.

In addition to his other interests Mr. MacVeagh was for many years engaged in banking activities. His wife, who died many years ago, was Miss Emily Eames, daughter of Henry F. Eames, who was president of the Commercial National bank, one of the predecessors of the Continental Illinois National bank.

Mr. MacVeagh had made his home in recent years at the University club. He also had a summer residence at Knollwood, N. H.

150 ARE SHOT IN BERLIN, 120 IN MUNICH ALONE

The Nazi Powder Keg

The chief developments of the situation in Germany yesterday are listed as follows:

The death toll in Chancellor Hitler's "purging" of the Nazi party was estimated at close to 500.

Heavy guards were on duty in Berlin again as fears of a new uprising among friends of the executed Nazi subleaders were felt.

A reliable source said Chancellor Hitler barely escaped assassination at the hands of Edmund Heines, mutinous Storm Troop leader, when Hitler raided Capt. Ernst Roehm's home at Munich. An aid shot down Heines.

Minister of Economics Schmitt was given extraordinary powers to enforce Nazi "home products" policies in industry as the economic problems became acute. Many Germans began to hoard food and clothing.

It is reported that anti-Jewish policies may be relaxed.

BERLIN, July 6.—The death toll in Chancellor Hitler's suppression of the "mutiny" in the ranks of his Nazi party since he struck at his enemies last Saturday is near 500, according to unofficial estimates tonight. One hundred and fifty persons have been killed in Berlin, 120 in Munich, 54 in Breslau, and more than 100 throughout the rest of the country.

Reports continue to circulate that prisoners of the GSP (German secret police) still are being shot upon their conviction on the charge of conspiring against the government in seven minute court martial trials.

Secret Police Probe Continues.

These reports were given more credence today when the ministry of propaganda, headed by Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, announced that a list of the dead would be made public in the near future.

"The list of casualties will be announced as soon as the GSP declares its publication will not hamper further investigations," the ministry said.

Leaders of the secret police declare they have asked Chancellor Hitler to order the propaganda ministry to release the names of the persons killed in order to relieve the anxiety of relatives of individuals whose fate is uncertain. The secret police and the propaganda ministry agree Hitler has ordered the names to be published as soon as possible.

The chief interest in foreign circles today centered around the fate of 43 year old Gottfried Treviranus, brilliant naval officer, who was a minister in Dr. Heinrich Bruening's government and the most popular German in diplomatic circles. He was brought up in England and was instrumental in bringing about a rapprochement between Great Britain and Germany.

Report He Was Shot.

Reports from London indicate he has been seen there. On the other hand rumors are circulating here that he was seized in Germany and shot to death yesterday. It is known that Hitler guards sought his arrest last Saturday when Hitler and his raiders captured the Nazi dictatorship's most prominent opponents.

Treviranus, according to eyewitnesses, was approaching his residence here when he suddenly turned about and darted down the street. He started running after he and other pedestrians heard excited children shouting:

"Mother, look at all the Hitler guards."

This was at noon, at a time when the news of the shooting of Gen. Kurt von Schleicher, the former chancellor, and his wife had already spread.

Treviranus escaped and border guards were ordered to arrest him. Friends insist the naval officer was not involved in a political conspiracy against Hitler.

No Interest in Politics.

A few weeks ago Treviranus told them he had not the slightest interest in politics. At that time he spoke of his preparations for an expedition in the Himalayas and of his activities as a hunter and Alpinist.

Friends of Treviranus declare that his family can be regarded as fortunate because the Nazis seized none of the members for hostage. They point to the fate of the Regendanz family.

W. G. Regendanz, a close friend of Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen, spent many years in France. The Hitler guards wanted to arrest him. Upon discovering he was not in Germany they arrested his 20 year old son as a hostage and took him to Columbia house.

Fear Youth Was Shot.

The secret police seized the passports of the youth's mother, thereby preventing her departure to another land. Regendanz has offered to return in order that his son might be liberated, but friends fear the youth was shot and that the father's sacrifice would be in vain.

Von Papen, whose fate in the cabinet is still uncertain, is highly indignant at the tragedies which cost the lives of several of his friends. He is demanding a rigorous investigation by Hitler himself.

Meanwhile Nazi subleaders continue to brand the vice chancellor as a "traitor." Von Papen insists he is anxious to resign, but that he will not relinquish his post until he has been cleared of "foul accusations."

Three members of Von Papen's staf, one of whom had previously been reported dead, have been released from police custody with the announcement that they had been absolved from suspicion of traitorous activities.

Those released were the vice chancellor's adjutant, Fritz Gunther von Tschirsky, a secretary, Friedrich Karl von Savigny, and Margarete von Stottingen of the office force. Von Tschirsky previously had been reported killed.

Two of Staf Slain.

Two of his staf were killed. One was Herbert von Bose. He was slain "resisting arrest." The other was Edjar Jung, who was executed after he had been arrested on a charge of assisting Von Papen prepare the latter's now famous address in which he severely criticized the Nazi government.

Nazis who are talking about the continued activities of firing squads declare a "few more executions" will be carried out by the secret police and the Black Hussars, Chancellor Hitler's private bodyguard of picked men.

It appears Hitler's announcement that whoever commits an act of violence on his own initiative will be turned over to the regular authorities does not apply to persons still in the custody of the secret police and Black Hussars.

A number of executions are reported to have taken place in Munich and Breslau in recent days.

Reassures Storm Troops.

Victor Lutze, who succeeded the executed Capt. Ernst Roehm to the post of commander of the Storm Troop army, tonight replied to the troopers' fears the semi-military organization would be completely dissolved.

"Chancellor Hitler is standing by his Storm Troopers," he said. "He could have dissolved the organization if relations between him and the rank and file of his Brown Army had been disturbed in the slightest degree."

Lutze announced that the Storm Troopers would be completely reorganized. He intimated that its membership would be reduced when its vacation expires on Aug. 1.

"Former Storm Troop leaders now killed or arrested deliberately enlisted politically unreliable and dissatisfied elements to stir up trouble," he announced.

NAZI TROOPS ALERT

[Copyright: 1934: By the Associated Press.]

BERLIN, July 6.—Fears of a new uprising against Adolf Hitler kept Nazi forces on the alert tonight, as the first week after the summary killings of "traitorous" subleaders came to an end.

That Hitler himself barely escaped death in his "purge" of the revolting Storm Troop chieftains was related at Breslau today on good authority.

Edmund Heines, Breslau chief of police and Storm Troop leader, an American citizen there was told, ran up to Hitler with a revolver when the chancellor raided Capt. Ernst Roehm's house at Munich.

Aid Saves Chancellor.

One of Hitler's aids shot Heines down, saving the chancellor, said the American, who heard the account from a former friend of Heines whom he regarded as absolutely reliable.

While keeping close watch for new outbreaks, the government was busy with its economic problems.

There was talk of wartime regulations, including the enforced use of many home produced substitutes for materials heretofore imported.

Kurt Schmitt, minister of economics, was given sweeping powers to carry out the commercial policies, an act interpreted as a move in the direction of the conservative elements. Many Germans began to hoard food and clothing in view of a decision to enforce a "home products" program.

Schmitt was even expected by some observers to bring about a relaxation of the anti-Jewish policies as a means of improving foreign trade.

Roehm's Friends Angry.

Nazi spokesmen told of the renewed vigilance against revolt after hearing rumors that friends of the executed Roehm, supreme Storm Troop commander, and other victims of Hitler's firing squads were considering a new attempt to overthrow the present government.

Storm Troopers in civilian clothes were said to have met in Berlin secretly today and to have shouted "Revenge!".

This and other reported developments caused the guard in Berlin to be strengthened.

One of the economic steps of a rather drastic nature so far as individuals are conserned was an appeal from Nazi leaders for all unmarried persons under 25 to give up their jobs in favor of married men.

The young men were appealed to to offer themselves for farm labor and the young women to give up factory or office to prepare for "later duties as German housewives and mothers."

Plans of French Minister Andre François-Poncet to carry any further his protest against the intimation that France was the "foreign power" involved in the Roehm plot appeared to have been abandoned in return for the generous publication in the German press of his vigorous denial.

Von Hindenburg Requests Von Seekt to Rush Home

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 6.—President Paul von Hindenburg of Germany has sent a telegram to Gen. Hans von Seekt, former commander in chief of the German army, who is now in China, urging him to return to Germany at once. This information came from a notable quarter in Paris tonight.

GERMAN EXILES IN PARIS RETURN TO FATHERLAND

Jews and Catholics See "New Deal."

BY HAROLD ETTLINGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 6.—Some Jews and other German émigrés who fled from the Nazi terror last year are going back to Germany.

Voluntary exiles in the pitifully poor refugee colony in Paris, who for days devoured every item of news on the mutiny across the Rhine, already have started for home. Others are getting ready to go.

They aren't quite sure what the rebellion and its ruthless suppression means, but they feel that it must mean some kind of change, and they are running the chance. Many categories of émigrés are taking trains toward the Alsace border.

Appeal for Train Fare.

There are young Jews who still are German at heart, despite all that the Nazis have done to kill nationalism; there are devout Catholics who feel that because of their church affiliation they will be safer, and there are some intellectuals. A few have enough money to return without aid. Others are appealing for train fare to the refugee committees set up in Paris. Leaders of the émigré colony today said that the movement was nowhere near the proportions of a wholesale exodus. Nevertheless, they admitted receiving a number of pleas for funds for transportation and requests for information on how to return.

The lives that many of these refugees are forced to lead in Paris made it easy to take the bold decision. The extremely poor are unable to earn a living. Hence they are dependent on the scant relief their own groups are able to provide. Ignorant of the French language and accustomed to an entirely different scheme of life, they were waiting anxiously for the slightest sign of a chance to return home.

Ready to Brave Boycott.

Many Jews feel they could not be worse off economically under an anti-Semitic boycott than in a country where the language barrier, added to France's measures to protect her own labor, make it impossible to earn a living.

Emigré leaders here made no secret of skepticism when refugees, eager to return to Grmany, suggested that anti-Semitism would be over soon. Even so it is admitted that apart from the economic effect of the Nazi campaign against Jews, returning émigrés run no special risk. This holds only for persons who have never been active in politics, and against whom the Nazis have no special grudge.

Even if Chancellor Hitler's régime falls, or at least is considerably changed as a result of the cleanup of radicals, the exiles have been warned that it will take several years for the effect of the intensive campaign against them to wear off. But this caution has had little effect on those determined to take a chance—especially youths who reply that they are Germans after all.

REPORT DOLLFUSS TARGET IN NEW VIENNA BOMBING

VIENNA, Austria, July 6.—(AP)—A report that a bomb had been discovered in the federal chancellery increased uneasiness today over the prospects of a troublesome week-end.

Two bombs exploded in the country during the day—one at the headquarters of the government party, the fatherland front, at Knittelfeld, Styria, and the other at Gratcorn, Styria, where an electric transformer was destroyed.

Some doubt was cast upon the report that an infernal machine was found in Chancellor Dollfuss' office by the fact that the place is very heavily guarded. Entry by an unauthorized person has been almost an impossibility since a bomb was found in the vice chancellor's office several weeks ago.

The Catholic Storm Troop leaders met today at Klagenfurt to demand that the government take sterner measures against Nazis, who are blamed for the bombings.

The severest sentences since the campaign of terrorism started were imposed at Graz today when two Nazis were ordered imprisoned for life for implication in the bombing of a bridge.

LIGHTNING KILLS FARMER.

Hitler Faces Ouster by Three Closest Aids, Vienna Hears

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, July 6.—Austrian correspondents today continued to present conditions in all parts of Germany as a smoldering volcano in telephoned dispatches from Munich and Berlin. According to an article in tonight's Abendzeitung, the organ of Vice Chancellor Prince Ernst von Starhemberg of Austria, Hitler is literally trembling for his life and is a changed man since June 30. Prince von Starhemberg's paper flashes this news in big headlines. Starhemberg is violently anti-Nazi.

In Munich a strong reaction against the ruthless policy of Hitler is growing, says the Vienna Telegraf. Every one is talking in undertones about the debacle of "Der Fuehrer" (Hitler) and the whole idea of one man authoritarian leadership.

Munich whisperers are saying a new triumvirate is developing, consisting of Gen. Werner von Blomberg, German minister of defense; Heinrich Himmler, head of the German secret police, and Victor Lutze, new leader of the Brown Shirts. These three have the power, it is said, and Von Blomberg, as the minister in command of the reichswehr (army), is the strongest. Hitler is only a pawn.

Hitler Downhearted.

The Abendzeitung's correspondent said that in Berlin it is common talk that Hitler is very despondent and downhearted and, he continued, "from all photographs which have been taken of him there is proof of worse. Hitler fears for his life. He fears the revenge which will be taken for the bloody Saturday."

The Austrian papers indicated that a fight to the finish would begin between Hitler and Goering, with Propaganda Minister Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels being likely as the next scapegoat to be sacrificed. Goebbels' position, according to the Telegraf's Munich advices, is very weakened and his doctors are advising him to take a long "vacation."

The Austrian correspondents also telephoned today that the next wave of terrorism in Germany would likely be directed against the Catholics, who have not taken the assassination of Heinrich Klausen, leader of the Catholic Action party, calmly.

Any patched up peace between the present German government and the Catholics will not last long, says the Telegraf, which continues that the German courts as now constituted have been severe on Catholics and that trouble may follow when severe sentences are passed on Catholics accused in the present conspiracy charges.

Reports printed in Austrian and Hungarian papers also indicate rising indignation at the Vatican against what is taking place in Germany. The newspaper As Est prints a dispatch from its Rome correspondent quoting a Vatican authority as saying:

"Our missionaries go among cannibals and aren't afraid of them and they will not be afraid of the Brown Shirts."

To the German casualty list today was added the name of Frau Carl Ernst, wife of the Berlin Storm Troop leader, who was shot Saturday night. Frau Ernst, according to the Telegraf, committed suicide in despair over the death of her husband.

Ernst and his young wife, whom he married only two months ago with Hitler, Goering, and Goebbels at the wedding, were arrested Saturday night at Bremen as they were about to leave for a holiday in the Balearic islands. Ernst was taken to Berlin by plane and shot.

Report Schacht to Quit.

Telephonic information to the Telegraf from Munich tonight also said President Hjalmer Schacht of the Reichsbank is about to resign and will be replaced by a sort of directorate consisting of Hitler, William Frick, minister of interior, and Kurt Schmidt, minister of economics.

The Reichspost, semi-official newspaper of the Austrian government, prints a version from its Berlin correspondent of how Vice Chancellor Von Papen escaped death Saturday. The stage had been set by Hitler and Goering to kill him, but Von Papen was tipped off. He immediately telephoned to the reichswehr headquarters and demanded a detachment of troops for his personal safety. When the would-be murderers arrived at Von Papen's house they found the reichswehr on guard and left with the job uncompleted.

LEADING FIGURES OF PRE-HITLER REGIME SLAIN

MUNICH, Germany, July 6.—(AP)—The names of two prominent figures of pre-Nazi Germany were added today to the list of those known to have been killed in Munich last Saturday as the total of known dead reached 21.

Former Lieut. Richard Scheringer, well known personality in early days of the Nazi movement, who later turned communist, was found dead near the Dachau concentration camp, along with several other victims.

Karl Stuetzel, former minister of interior of Bavaria, who was turned out of office by the Nazis, was another of those slain.

Scheringer was one of the three reichswehr [army] officers convicted of attempted treason in the famous trial at Leipzig in 1930 at which Adolf Hitler testified that "heads will fall."

One of the victims whose death was confirmed only today was Hans Von Seasser, aristocratic leader of the Munich state police.

FRENCH FOREIGN CHIEF RIDICULES NAZI CHARGES

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, July 6.—Foreign Minister Barthou today denied all insinuations that he was in any way concerned in the recent events in Germany when he spoke before the chamber of deputies' foreign affairs commission. An official communique on the commission's meeting said:

"Barthou refused to discuss the campaign against France which had arisen as a result of recent events in Germany. There is nothing true in any degree to these allegations about the rôle he played. It was to lower one's self to take seriously such ridiculous statements."

[The French foreign minister, the Nazi press charged, revealed details of the Nazi conspiracy to overthrow Chancellor Hitler to the British at Geneva in May.]

TWO RELIGIOUS BODIES IN GERMANY APPLAUD HITLER'S 'VICTORY'

BERLIN, July 6.—(AP)—Chancellor Hitler's ruthless extermination of "traitors" in Nazi high places received the unqualified approval today of the leaders of two German religious bodies—the Protestant church of Thuringia and the "Neo-Heathen" Germanic faith movement.

The Supreme Evangelical Church council of Thuringia, which is completely in the hands of the Nazis, ordered a declaration of approval read from all pulpits Sunday.

"Thanks to the brave and determined action of Adolf Hitler, fuehrer and chancellor of the reich," says this declaration, "it has been possible for him by unreservedly risking his own person to save our people and fatherland from a new misery."

Count Ernst Zu Reventlow, vice chairman of the Germanic Faith movement, summed up the views of his organization in his weekly organ, thus:

"Never has recognition of the gratitude and veneration for Chancellor Hitler been greater with the German population than now after June 30. Today everybody knows that never before has Hitler given the German soul a more complete, expressive incarceration than now, when he cleaned house mercilessly."

BRITAIN FORCED TO DROP FRENCH ALLIANCE PLAN

Storm of Public Opinion Wrecks Proposal.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 6.—The storm of public indignation over the suspected plan to tie Great Britain to the tail of the French kite by committing her to fight for France in a preventive war against Germany has had its effect. When Foreign Minister Louis Barthou of France arrives here Sunday night for a conference with Stanley Baldwin, lord president of the council; Foreign Minister Sir John Simon, and Lord Hailsham, secretary for war, he will find them much colder to the plan for an Anglo-French alliance than they have been.

Ever since the Liberal and Labor press exposed the fact that Gen. Maxime Weygand, vice president of the French superior war council, on his holiday in England a couple of weeks ago inspected the British army and conferred with the chiefs of staf, public opinion has been forming against further foreign commitments.

Question Up in Commons.

When it leaked out from Paris that Barthou hoped to get a security agreement from the British on next week's visit the storm broke, and today Baldwin, in a statement to the house of commons, was forced to calm the fears of the country.

Morgan Jones, Laborite, asked Baldwin if he could inform the house of the purpose of the recent visit of Lord Hailsham to France and the forthcoming visit of Barthou to this country.

Baldwin replied that Hailsham's visit to France was without any political implication. It was undertaken in connection with an instructional tour of the battle fields of the late war by seven officers, he said. He added that such tours had been taken in the past.

"Britain Not Obligated."

As regards Barthou's visit, he referred Jones to a former answer in which he said in a noncommittal manner that Barthou was coming to discuss the present state of the disarmament situation and the naval conference.

In reply to a further question he declared that Weygand's visit here was purely private and asserted that no obligation on the British is involved as a result of any of these visits.

Barthou will arrive Sunday night with François Pietri, French minister of marine, and a group of experts. Barthou will confer with Simon and other British ministers Monday and will return to Paris on Tuesday, leaving Pietri to carry on the naval talks.

These talks are now at a standstill awaiting presentation of the French and Japanese views. So far little has been accomplished between Britain and the United States. The British are still insisting on limiting navies to smaller ships, while the United States demands the right to build the kind of ships it needs, including 35,000 ton battleships. Britain would like the size of battleships to be limited to 35,000 tons.

Italy has thrown a monkey wrench into the works by deciding to lay down two 35,000 ton battleships. This has stirred up France, who insists that it must have a fleet equal to both the Italian and the German fleets.

REVEAL FRENCH THEFT OF SECRET BRITISH PAPERS

Two Spies Are Sent to Prison.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VALETTA, Malta, July 6.—Behind the trial and conviction of an Englishman and a Levantine here recently lies the story of Anglo-French naval rivalry in the Mediterranean and of the strained feeling which exists between these two former allies.

The two men, Herbert Charles Pollok, son of a British colonel, and Constantine Kahill, a Levantine business man, were accused of "obtaining information from warships which might be useful to an enemy power." Pollok was sentenced to five years at hard labor and Kahill to four years.

Trial Conducted in Secret.

The trial was conducted in secret and every effort was made to keep the proceedings secret. THE TRIBUNE learns, however, that the charge was the theft of sealed orders to the British fleet, which carried out intensive maneuvers in the Mediterranean about a month ago. These orders were stolen by Pollok and Kahill and sold to France.

They revealed that the whole scheme of the maneuvers was directed against France as a potential enemy. They included a sudden cruiser raid on Tunis to prevent the shipment of African troops to France and to stir up Arab unrest, an intensive air raid on the Toulon oil tanks, the use of the territorial waters and shores of the Balearic Isles by British submarines and destroyers despite Spain's neutrality, and the employment of the small cruiser fleet south of the Balearics while the main battle fleet deployed north of the islands to meet the main French fleet.

French Obtain Details.

The French suspected a good deal of this, but were anxious to find out the exact strength in ships assigned to the various tasks. Pollok is said to have succeeded in conveying the information to his French employers before he was arrested.

Dissolves State Oil Firm for Failure to Pay Tax

Circuit Judge Max Allaben yesterday directed John H. Gately, assistant Illinois attorney general, to draw up a formal dissolution order for the Blue Ross Oil company, 5820 Ogden avenue, for failure to pay motor fuel taxes of $32,000. Gately said this is the first time in Illinois history that a corporation has been dissolved by court. The action made possible by the corporation act in event of violation of a criminal statue.

8 Tourists Reported Taken from Liner by Hitlerites

OSLO, Norway, July 6.—(AP)—The German legation here stated today that it has no information regarding the reported removal of eight tourists from the steamship Sierra Cordoba while cruising off Norway. The reports had been to the effect that the tourists were arrested in connection with the Roehm revolt against Chancellor Hitler.

CUBA SEIZES 65 IN PLOT TO KILL AMERICAN ENVOY

BY GUSTAVO RENO.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, July 6.—Cuba's political crisis took a sharp turn for the worse today when persistent reports that President Mendieta would resign in favor of Col. Fulgencio Batista, head of the army, caused serious street riots. There was an atmosphere of uncertainty and fear in business and official circles.

The feeling caused almost complete business paralysis. The government offices were empty. Employes rushed home without permission when Mendieta's probable resignation was broadcast from several radio stations.

Shortly after noon secret service agents and police arrested 65 former army officers closeted in room 40 in the Bank of Nova Scotia building on O'Reilly street, one of the leading Havana business streets.

Police under Chief Pedraza surprised the former officers, who, it is claimed, were preparing a plot to assassinate United States Ambassador Jefferson Caffery. Documentary evidence of the plot was said by police to have been found in the office, together with two 11 pound dynamite bombs. One of these bombs, according to the documents, was to have been placed in the American embassy. The other was to have been hurled at Caffery's automobile. The plot, according to the documents, was to take effect between 4 and 6 p. m. tomorrow, when Caffery regularly leaves the embassy for his home.

Other policemen under Capt. Molina tonight raided warehouses near Havana said to have been rented by the former officers, where they confiscated 300 machine guns, 500 bombs, several hundred pounds of gunpowder, a quantity of TNT, rifles, and sawed-off shotguns, uniforms, tents, and large supplies of first aid medicines.

The former officers are being held incommunicado in Cabanas fortress on charges of high treason. The arrest of 400 other former officers was ordered tonight. The investigators said all were involved in the conspiracy.

Sixteen soldiers with machine guns are permanently stationed outside the United States embassy.

EX-KAISER WILHELM AT 75 BECOMES A GREAT-GRANDFATHER

BERLIN, July 6.—(AP)—Former Kaiser Wilhelm II., at the age of 75, has become a great-grandfather.

Announcement was made today of the birth of a daughter to Prince Wilhelm of Prussia, oldest son of the former crown prince, who broke the Hohenzollern tradition by marrying Dorothea von Salvisti, a commoner, in June, 1933.

By marrying the 25 year old Nazi girl Prince Wilhelm was declared deprived of his rights as an heir presumptive to the vacant throne. The 25 year old prince is a member of the Schutz Staffel, picked bodyguard for Storm Troop leaders. He now resides at Sternalitz in the province of Silesia.

CHEERING CROWDS RUSH ROOSEVELT CAR IN SAN JUAN

Given Great Reception on Tour of Island.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, July 6.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's long vacation journey brought him at sunset this evening to San Juan, capital of Porto Rico.

For ten hours he had been traveling across the island from Mayaguez. The familiar smile lighted his face as his automobile paused in front of the San Juan city hall. A great crowd of Porto Ricans cheered tumultuously. Once they broke through police lines to swarm about the President's automobile, and many managed to shake his hand before police and secret service agents steered them away from the car.

The ride from Mayaguez was long and at times precarious, but the President showed by his lively interest in the countryside that it was not tedious. For much of the distance rain fell and pavements through the mountains at many points were slippery.

Confers with Island Officials.

Gov. Blanton Winship rode with the President. The hill folks came down to the highway and hundreds gathered in the villages through which the American President passed.

All waved in joyous greeting and the President's hand was up almost continuously acknowledging his welcome to this island.

From the city hall here the President was escorted to the 400 year old governor's mansion. There he shook hands and chatted briefly with 200 leading citizens and legislators. Before going to dinner he accompanied Gov. Winship on an inspection tour of the ancient stone structure.

There was an interlude for a short conference with authorities of the island. The President, for the most part, "merely listened," but he manifested a lively interest in affairs of the region.

Calls it "Marvelous."

"It was a marvelous reception," Roosevelt assured Gov. Winship.

The President commented particularly on the fact that the rain had brightened the foliage of fields and the trees. The lush verdure of the tropical island was seen to particularly good advantage at Gov. Winship's summer home far up in the hills, where the presidential motor caravan stopped for lunch.

President Roosevelt passed the night at the governor's palace. Before retiring he yielded to the insistent demands of cheering crowds by appearing on a balcony.

Tomorrow the chief executive will make a motor tour of the city before going to the docks, where he will board the cruiser Houston for the next leg of his vacation cruise, which will take him to St. Thomas, Virgin Islands.

ALBANIAN REVOLT REPORTED; AIMED AGAINST KING ZOG

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, July 6.—A revolt has broken out in Albania, according to reports here today. The reports indicated that the trouble has some connection with the precipitate dispatch of a squadron of Italian warships to the harbor of Durazzo by Premier Mussolini of Italy a week ago. The reports said the revolt was fomented by Italian sources. The Italians are said to be furious at King Zog and want to get rid of him because they hold him responsible for the uncollectable debts owed Italy by Albania, and also because they fear he may seek to join in the recently negotiated Balkan pact against the wishes of Italy.

Berea, Ky., July 6.—(AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and two companions arrived here tonight shortly before 8 o'clock after an all day motor trip from Norris, Tenn.

They registered at Boone tavern for the night and were guests for dinner at the home of President W. J. Hutchins of Berea college.

Her companions said Mrs. Roosevelt planned to inspect Berea college tomorrow and that the length of her stay here was uncertain. The party, traveling by automobile, stopped at Crossville, Tenn., for lunch.

CITY CLUB STUDY URGES LOGICAL STREET NAMES

Aldermen Will Get Report Monday.

Efforts of the City club to make changes in Chicago's street nomenclature to eliminate duplication of street names and also to preserve the same name to interrupted streets that run on the same line will be renewed Monday at a meeting of the city council committee on streets and alleys.

The lack of a logical system for naming streets, according to a report issued by the City club's streets committee, has for years involved serious expenditures of energy, time and money on the part of all who have occasion to find their way about the city. The search for addresses, the report says, would be simplified by the adoption of a more logical system of street nomenclature.

Many Names Duplicated.

In its report the City club committee, headed by Edward P. Brennan, gives a number of instances of duplication of street names. Some of these names, with a description of the location of the streets, follow:

Aldine avenue, North 8300.
Aldine square, South 3728.
Austin avenue, North 430.
Austin avenue, West 6000.
Carpenter street, West 1032.
Carpenter road, West 5400.
Cornell street, North 900.
Cornell avenue, East 1600.
Exchange avenue, East 2400.
Exchange avenue, South 4124.
Franklin street, West 300.
Franklin boulevard, North 500.
Garfield avenue, North 2100.
Garfield boulevard, South 5500.
Grove avenue, West 100.
Grove street, West 500.
Lincoln street, West 1900.
Lincoln avenue, West 200.
La Fayette avenue, West 26.
La Fayette street, North 4634.
Marquette avenue, East 2732.
Marquette road, South 6700.
Transit avenue, East 1720.
Transit avenue, South 4000.
Wright street, West 1320.
Wright street, West 500.

"It is estimated by the committee," the report reads, "that the cost of mistakes and loss of time and labor due in delivery of mail and packages to wrong addresses due to confusion in names, would in the course of a year more than pay for the entire cost of the installation of a new systematic set of street name signs.

Example of Confusion.

"The postal service, express agencies, cab companies, stores having delivery service and various public utilities as well as city services all share the expense of the confusion. As just one example of waste the instance may be cited of a fire station which received an excited call in which the street was indistinctly named as a result of which three fire companies were sent to three different addresses, all bearing similar street names."

The committee's study of street names shows that there are 427 names on 149 elongated lines, each of which "broken link" streets could bear a single name.

CIRCUIT COURT NAMES JUDGES FOR CRIME WAR

Four Chosen to Serve in Criminal Court.

After several delays the Circuit court finally made its selection yesterday of the four judges it will send to duty in the Criminal court next September. Chief Justice Dennis J. Normoyle announced that the four are Walter J. La Buy, Hugo M. Friend, Cornelius J. Harrington, and William V. Brothers.

The Superior court made its selection of Criminal court judges last week, choosing Denis E. Sullivan, John C. Lewe, Donald S. McKinlay, Harry B. Miller, Grover C. Niemeyer, and Walter P. Steffen. Seven more Superior judges were also promised to the Criminal court in response to a plea of Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan for additional help to carry on the war against crime.

Four to Go On July 16.

Four of these extra judges will be sent out for emergency duty on July 16. Two of them already named are Peter M. Schwaba and Walter T. Stanton. The other two will be chosen within the next few days, it was announced. The three other extra judges from the Superior court will go to the Criminal court in September to serve until the chief justice sees fit to release them. They will be Joseph B. David, Charles A. Williams, and Michael McKinley.

The Circuit court sent no answer to Judge Finnegan's plea for extra helpers. Chief Justice Normoyle said that if any judges chose to volunteer for this work, they might, but it was their personal affair and none would be ordered to do so.

Discuss Skarda Law Case.

In their meeting the Circuit judges designated Judge Harry M. Fisher to go into conference with County Treasurer Thomas D. Nash and County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki to see if the Skarda law receivership cases might not be transferred bodily from the County court to the Circuit court, instead of being refiled individually, as is now being done.

This, it was pointed out, would save both money and clerical work. The County court's appointment of receivers for properties delinquent in taxes was held illegal in a recent decision of the state Supreme court.

SIAMESE TWIN WAGES FIGHT FOR LICENSE TO WED

Arkansas Offers to Let Her Marry.

New York, July 6.—(AP)—As "a point of pride," Violet Hilton, starboard half of the Hilton sisters, Siamese twins, decided today to wage a court fight for a marriage license here rather than accept an invitation to wed in Marion, Ark.

"The very idea is quite immoral and indecent," declared Acting Corporation Counsel William C. Chanler, approving the action of Russell Tarbox, one of his assistants, in refusing the license.

Scurry Around, Look Up Law.

While the twins' lawyer was scurrying around today, looking up the law to apply in Supreme court for a mandamus writ directing the New York City clerk to grant the license, Miss Hilton received the invitation from Arkansas.

It came from A. B. Carter, deputy county court clerk of Crittenden county.

A little later, according to a dispatch from Marion, Ark., he received a telegram saying Miss Hilton preferred making a legal fight for a license here "as a point of pride," but if the effort fails the hospitality of Crittendon county would be accepted.

No Mandamus Before Monday.

At the office of Irving Levy, the twins' attorney, it was said the application for a mandamus probably could not be prepared before Monday.

Levy's assistant found a scarcity of legal decisions relating to the marriages of Siamese twins. However, they intended to cite the examples of other Siamese twins who had married and reared large families without anybody thinking it was immoral.

Eng and Chang Bunker, the "original Siamese twins," married sisters, Sarah and Adelaide Yates, at Mount Airy, N. C., on April 15, 1843. Between them the twins were the fathers of 21 children. They were prosperous farmers until both died of pneumonia in 1874.

The lawyer also intended to remind the court that Rosa and Josefa Blazek, Siamese twins born in Prague, came to this country bringing Rosa's son. Josefa was unmarried.

"It's purely a question of law," asserted the attorney, preparing to bring legal action.

From Kansas City came further word of the divorce suit in March, 1931, in which Mrs. Mildred Oliver won a default decree from William Oliver, then advance agent for the twins.

"They both loved him — both of them," declared Mrs. Oliver. "They showered him with lavish gifts, jewelry, a motor car, and clothes."

Fifth Son of Siamese Twin.

Medicine Lodge, Kas., July 6.—(AP)—At least one resident of Medicine Lodge has an affirmative vote to cast on the question agitating marriage license clerks of New York and New Jersey: "Should Siamese twins marry."

He is Patrick Henry Bunker, 54, fifth son of Eng Bunker, one of the "original" Siamese twins brought to America from Siam in 1829 and exhibited in many countries by the noted showman, P. T. Barnum.

"If they have the nerve, let 'em marry," Bunker observed today. "But if it was me—no, sir. In fact, I wouldn't marry at all. What's the use?"

Opposes Third Party.

Bunker said, however, he believed Violet Hilton, to whom a marriage license has been refused by New York and New Jersey clerks, should marry at the same time as her twin Dorothy. His own objections to marriage under similar circumstances would be based upon opposition to "the presence of a third party."

Bunker's father married Sarah Yates, and the other twin, Chang, wed Sarah's sister, Adelaide, in a double wedding in 1843. Eng Bunker had 11 children and Chang Bunker 10.

Pat Bunker has called Kansas his home for a half century or more. About 1890, he recalled, he and his wife were divorced and he settled the property he had accumulated on his wife and their six children. For several years he worked as a garage mechanic at Kiowa, Kas. Bunker has been in the county home since 1926.

BANK EMPLOYES STRIKE; CRIPPLE BRAZIL BUSINESS

Ship Line Workers Also Walk Out.

RIO DE JANEIRO, July 6.—(AP)—Strikes of bank employés and ship line workers crippled commerce in Brazil's most important cities today.

Foreign banks continued to do business, with policemen on duty at all doors.

Strikers said sympathizers in other sections had joined the strike.

Heavy Fighting in Chile.

SANTIAGO, Chile, July 6.—(AP)—Reports of heavy fighting and loss of life in southern Chile, where government carabineros are attempting to suppress a peasants' revolt, were received today.

Three of the revolters were killed in an ambuscade on the banks of the Biobio river.

Gov. José Robles of Lautaro district said the rebelling farmers were killing many prisoners they had taken for refusing to join the movement, which charges that the government failed to make good relief promises.

Militia was ordered out at Mulchen to suppress the uprising, which began several days ago when the peasants were driven from their homes by hunger.

Arturo Huanchullan, the first Arakano Indian to serve in congress, arrived at Curacautin to investigate the uprising and then report to President Arturo Alessandri. He insists the land problem is responsible and that it is not a communistic movement.

Scores of families arrived at Ercilla, near Victoria, after fleeing from the revolutionists. Members of the Labor party were ordered not to hold meetings.

500 Rebels Captured.

TEMUCO, Chile, July 6.—(AP)—Commander Delano, in charge of troops combatting an uprising in southern Chile, reported today that 500 revolters had been captured and disarmed near the fork of Loico and Bio rivers and that the troops were in control of the situation.

ing to build up and solidify the ranks of the Republican party which, the history forgetting professors to the contrary, made us the greatest nation on earth."

"What our government needs now," he cried, "and needs it as only once or twice before it has ever needed anything, is a vigorous, fighting, unified Republican party, reinspired in the cause which originally gave it birth—the preservation of the constitution."

MacNider declared that the Republicans must bear some of the blame "for the great snarled mass of burocracy and socialistic experiment in which we now find ourselves enmeshed" because the Republicans went along with the President under the plea for a unified, nonpartisan support. But, he insisted, there was no warning in the Democratic platform, nor in the candidate's speeches, that suggested the program under way today.

100 Per Cent Socialist Feat.

"Nor did any one suspect," he called out, "and this holds for many stalwart Democrats, that it was the platform of the Socialist party which was to be implemented instead of the one upon which they appealed for votes. On the Socialist platform their performance for one year is practically 100 per cent complete.

"A group of brilliant young men of no admitted party allegiance, appointed if you please, not elected, are now our governmental masters. Dizzy with sudden and unrestricted power, unaware of any responsibility except perhaps to their own sentimental theories, they are experimenting with every phase of our national life.

"The industrial and business body of America is securely strapped to the classroom table while they delve into its insides and take apart the organisms which control our economic existence. I doubt very much whether they have given any thought to putting it together again, but if they have, certainly it is not based upon any practical or constructive experience of their own."

Mr. MacNider then told of the "sins" of the brain trust, how they are destroying private business by putting the government in competition, instituting federal control "of every known industrial activity," "regimenting and disciplining every move of our daily lives," how they abandoned the gold standard, destroyed credit, put upon "our backs" a crushing burden of debt never before equaled.

"I make the statement now that if the clutch of the deadening hand of burocracy could be pried off the main arteries of America's national life tomorrow we would see a new deal that would be a new deal. It is high time that leadership be given those who value their free citizenship and their hard won heritage under the constitution of the United States.

Quotes George Washington.

"We can all agree with Congressman James Beck of Pennsylvania when he says, 'I would rather see the Republican party go down to defeat and to final defeat in defense of the constitution than prolong its existence by betraying it.' But no such future is before us if we'll take up the challenge and fight.

"No man can tell me that the American people will meekly submit to the program now proposed of putting into permanent form the emergency measures which have been forced upon us in clear violation of the constitution of the United States by the political philosophy of the brain trust."

Mr. MacNider closed quoting this trenchant advice handed down by George Washington in his farewell address:

"Toward the preservation of your government it is requisite that you resist with care the spirit of innovation upon its principle, however specious the pretexts."

Flooded Basement Traps Two Drug Store Burglars

Three policemen from the Marquette station waded into three feet of water in a flooded basement late last night to nab a pair of burglar suspects. The prisoners, John Russo, 18 years old, 3920 Lexington street, and Michael Torto, also 18, of 1129 South Wood street, were trapped in Nathan Isaacson's drug store at 1800 Roosevelt road by Sergt. Tim Lyne and Policemen James Kirby and Henry Ertz. As the police entered the store the youths ran into the basement, filled with water. The bluecoats followed and collared them.

Senator Borah Assails Evils of New Deal in Chicago Visit

Senator William E. Borah, stopping in Chicago yesterday between trains en route to his home in Boise, Idaho, discussed again the dangers of burocracy and the New Deal, which he assailed in a radio address on Fourth of July night.

Senator Borah said he planned to rest for about two weeks before resuming his crusade against burocracy, which will take him into various central western states for speeches during the summer and fall. At the Stevens hotel he received a telegram from Washington saying letters and telegrams of congratulation were still pouring in as a result of his Fourth of July speech.

Assails New Deal.

The senator's address was devoted largely to an attack on burocracy, the fostering of monopolies under the New Deal and the stealing of the rights of the common man. In an interview yesterday he said the most objectionable feature of the New Deal was the attempt, by law, to force a reduction in crop production.

"From the standpoint of constitutional law," he said, "the crop reduction program is appalling. From the econimic standpoint it is infinitely worse.

"It has been well demonstrated that some 150,000 share-croppers have been thrown out into the highways as a result of the cotton reduction program alone. Many other thousands have been deprived of their jobs by the wheat, corn, and pig reduction schemes. This is being done while 40,000,000 of our people are near the hunger line and while every other country on God's footstool is striving to increase, rather than curtail, its production.

Cuts Purchasing Power.

"And the farmers get no more for what they raise by curtailing production, because the scheme merely cuts down the purchasing power of the country, throwing men out of jobs and putting them on relief. Such a scheme must inevitably result in lowering the American standard of living."

The senator spoke of the mounting tax burden and said it would continue to mount as long as the nation has burocracy. As an example of the increasing tax burden he cited the addition of 100,000 pay rollers to the federal lists during the last year.

For Individual Business.

"There are, of course, certain expenditures the government has to make now to relieve the unemployed," he said. "I don't want to be put in the position of criticizing that section, because I'm not finding fault with it. That's not what concerns me.

"What does concern me is the burocratic principle of running the people's business instead of letting the people run their own business. The best planning system ever devised is to allow the individual to run his own affairs."

HOOVER AID ASSAILS ROOSEVELT POLICIES IN LATIN-AMERICA

University, Va., July 6.—[Special.]—President Rosevelt's Latin American policies were assailed by William R. Castle Jr., under-secretary of state in the Hoover administration, in an address here tonight before the Institute of Public Affairs. Frankly approving Hoover's foreign policy, he expressed his fear that President Roosevelt will lead the United States into a position where she will be accused of repudiating duly signed treaties.

"Throughout Latin America," Mr. Castle said, "the American signing of the Montivideo convention was understood as a promise never to land marines or send cruisers to protect American interests in South or Central America. Taken literally, this means that we could not send marines or a cruiser to protect our own citizens and property during an insurrection."

The speaker also criticized the administration's tactics in dealing with the recent Cuban crisis. He asserted that many Cubans and Americans felt that it was most unfortunate for the United States to be other than neutral in a matter concerning purely domestic affairs of another country.

YOUNG G. O. P. TO PLAN CAMPAIGN HERE NEXT WEEK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 6.—[Special.]—Plans for mobilizing the Young Republican organizations in the battle against the New Deal this fall will be laid at a meeting of Republican chieftains in Chicago July 10 and 11.

The Republican national committee today announced that Chairman Henry P. Fletcher would leave Jackson, Mich., for Chicago tomorrow, in order to attend the "Young Republican" meeting. A special committee of party workers which is in charge of the Young Republican movement will attend.

State Chairman Justus L. Miller of Illinois also has arranged to be at the meeting, the national committee said.

PICKETS' CLASH CLOSES FOUNDRY IN EAST PEORIA

Peoria, Ill., July 6.—[Special.]—The Caterpillar Tractor company closed its foundry in East Peoria tonight after a clash between workers and pickets who have been on strike since Tuesday.

Four men suffered cuts and bruises when bricks and rocks were thrown into automobiles leaving the plant as work was completed for the day.

Order was restored by East Peoria and state police when they permitted a pickets' committee to talk with occupants of each car as it emerged from the factory grounds. Six hundred men were leaving the plant when the rioting broke out. No arrests were made.

B. C. Heacock, president of the company, issued a statement, saying:

"It is the thought of the management that it is unfair to permit men to subject themselves to mob violence and that in fairness to those who would like to continue work we must offer them the only protection at our command, which is to close the foundry until the community and state establish safe conditions on public highways."

Company officials said closing the foundry will affect 750 men, who receive a weekly pay roll of more than $20,000. The remainder of the plant will continue to operate.

RIOTERS STORM WORKERS' AUTOS; 4 WOMEN HURT

Racine, Wis., July 6.—[Special.]—Three policemen, four young women and a man were injured today when 500 rioters rushed a motorcade of employés as it entered the main gate of the Horlick Malted Milk corporation, where a strike is in progress.

Overpowering police escorts, the mob stormed the cars, shattering windshields. Etta Shaw, Lydia Killian, Leona Schultz, and Margaret Mark were cut by flying glass, as was Charles Killian, in whose car they were riding.

Policeman John Sirtko was struck in the neck with a rock and his star, club, and cap were taken from him and hurled over a fence. Sergt. Pete Henkes was roughly handled and his badge ripped from his coat. Policeman Leon Lucas was hit in the back with a rock. Two squads of policemen were summoned.

One man, John Sekat, who once ran for congress on the communistic ticket, was arrested. Officers said communists circulated notices yesterday urging a demonstration at the plant and that a large percentage of the crowd was Reds.

CHICAGO HOTELS HARD HIT AS U. S. JUNKS NEW CODE

'Brain Trust Experiment' Costly to Victims.

With the disclosure yesterday that the government had suspended the national hotel industrial code on June 28 and had placed all hotels under general NRA regulations, hotel men in Chicago were bitter in their condemnation of "a now abandoned brain trust experiment" which had caused heavy financial losses to them.

William M. Dewey, managing director of the Edgewater Beach hotel and vice chairman of the Chicago hotel code authority, in his attack on the brain trust said that in 24 per cent of the Chicago hotels since the code went into effect last November, pay rolls had increased 27 per cent and the number of employés increased 19.76 per cent while the hotel revenues showed an improvement of only 1.28 per cent.

"Blue Eagle a Sparrow Now."

"To speak plainly," Mr. Dewey said, "NRA authorities, by their erratic and unsound tactics are making business men believe that the Blue Eagle has turned into a chirping sparrow that thrives on—well—let's call it hot air. Hotel men throughout the country, members of the nation's seventh largest industry, followed the government's invitation in a patriotic spirit and with the sincere hope that it might be a method toward recovery.

"Codes of fair competition and labor problems were worked out; agreements were made to assess 100,000 rooms in Chicago hotels at 50 cents per room for expenses to carry out the codes and maintain a local authority. Then came the hitch.

"Twenty-four per cent of the hotels paid their assessments, to their present regret and then it became apparent there was no real authority to collect these assessments.

Brain Trust Aid Weak.

"Calls to Washington brought forth brain trusters who made weak talks and flew back to the professorial fold. There was no action and the only result seems to be the increase in pay rolls and number of employés with the almost negligible improvement in revenues. All of which only leads to more receiverships and defaulted bond issues.

"It is high time that American business men start to fight and run their own business and run out impractical college professors.

"The present regulation means the hotel industry probably is to be governed by someone outside of the industry and that 200,000 hotels have spent much money and time for a brain trust experiment that has been abandoned."

Other hotel men said that suspension of the code would only serve to do away with fair practice agreements while preserving the objectionable features embodied in the code.

The hotels are now designated under NRA regulations as a "service trade" which means that provisions for minimum wages and maximum hours, collective bargaining guarantees and child labor restrictions must be observed.

Notified by Wire.

Notice of the suspension of the code was received yesterday by telegram from Washington at the offices of the Chicago hotel code authority in the Palmer House and all hotels in the city were immediately notified.

In May the code authority here had furnished the national authority at Washington with statistics on the operation of 128 Chicago hotels in March, 1934, as compared to March, 1933. Percentages used in this comparison are applicable to the entire period in which the code has operated, hotel men said.

During March, 1934, the 128 hotels employed 10,522 men as compared to 8,811 in March, 1933, an increase of 1,741 or 19.76 per cent. The pay roll in March, 1934, totaled $817,294, as against $642,736 the same month last year, an increase of $173,557, or 27 per cent.

Mrs. M. R. Warren, Author, Dies of Gas Fumes in Garage

Ithaca, N. Y., July 6.—[Special.]—Mrs. Maude Radford Warren, author and former war correspondent, died of carbon monoxide gas poisoning in the garage of her home here today.

A sufferer from heart disease, Mrs. Warren, who was 59, left a note for her maid that she planned to drive to her physician's office for a consultation. She was found by the maid at 9 a. m. alongside her car in the garage, with her car's motor going.

Friends said Mrs. Warren had probably been overcome just as she was reaching for the door of her car. Dr. H. E. Merriam, her physician, was called, but efforts to revive her were futile.

She is survived by two sisters, Miss Alice Radford of Ithaca and Florida, and Mrs. Roy Stanley of Western Springs, Ill.

Widow of Chicagoan.

As an observer of life in a score of countries from the near east to Canada's frozen north and as a war worker Mrs. Warren found much material for her numerous stories and articles.

She was the widow of Prof. Joseph Parker Warren of Chicago, who died in 1909. Mrs. Warren was born at Wolfe Island, Canada, on Jan. 2, 1875, the daughter of Maj. Isaac Henry Radford. She held the degree of Ph. B. from the University of Chicago, where she was an instructor in literature and composition from 1896 to 1907, the year she married Prof. Warren. After marriage she continued on the faculty.

From 1916 to 1919 Mrs. Warren was a war correspondent, in the latter year being made honorary major of the 117th field signal battalion of the Rainbow division, "to be respected and obeyed accordingly." Less than six weeks before she had received an honorary commission as a second lieutenant of the 354th infantry "for her unswerving loyalty and unselfish devotion in the front lines."

During her stay in France she served in hospitals at Chateau Thierry, St. Mihiel, in the Argonne forest, and at Verdun. She also advanced into Germany with the troops of the 42d division.

Wrote Russian Series.

Many of Mrs. Warren's articles dealt with customs and changing conditions in Russia and other countries. She explored Rumania and wrote of peasant types there, of the army and of the risk of bolshevism. In 1920 she was a prisoner for two months at Baku after the city was occupied by the soviets.

In 1930 she made an air trip to the Arctic and returned lauding the valor of Canadian flyers. She was the author of numerous books.

Mrs. Warren was a member of the Chicago Woman's, Cordon, Fortnightly, Little Room, and Young Fortnightly clubs in Chicago.

NEW DEAL PROVES TO BE BOON FOR ALIEN SHIP LINES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 6.—A curious example of how a burocracy can get itself tied into a knot and then bite its own tail is offered by the regulations governing the payment of American employés abroad in gold dollars. In drafting these rules the United States government has played a trick on itself which is costing American shipping lines considerable business. It works like this:

United States employés abroad are paid in gold dollars only when on foreign soil, where the cost of living is out of proportion to the value of the present dollar. When they get to the United States, as they frequently do on government business, devaluated dollars are paid. In the past when employés of the American government returned home they traveled on American ships.

An American ship is American territory, with the result that the minute a federal employé steps aboard he loses his salary adjustment. If he travels on a foreign boat he remains on alien territory all the time he is at sea, and on a round trip gets gold dollars two weeks longer than he would if he patronized American ships.

This little subsidy to foreign shipping is causing no small annoyance to American shipping lines, and a complaint has been lodged with Washington. Federal employés shrug their shoulders and point out with a certain logic that they refuse to be penalized for patronizing their own country's shipping industry.

THREE OF QUINTS STILL IN DANGER OF LOSING LIVES

CORBEIL, Ont., July 6.—(AP)—The Dionne quintuplets today, the 39th day of their lives, were within three-quarters of an ounce of a total weight of 13 pounds.

Yvonne continued to be the heaviest weight of the five girls. She weighs 3 pounds 9½ ounces. Dr. A. R. Dafoe pronounced her "almost a normal infant." Annette, who weighs 3 pounds 4½ ounces, the physician described as being "passable" from a medical point of view.

The other three infants remain in a precarious condition, with chances of their survival no better than they were at birth, the physician said.

Seize John Lawson Third Time in Two Months.

Birmingham, Ala., July 6.—(AP)—For the third time within two months John Howard Lawson, New York playwright and self-styled "radical leader," was arrested here today, the warant this time charging criminal libel.

After the warant had been served and he had been granted his liberty on $300 bail Lawson declared he would make an issue of the case, terming it "straight censorship" and "something that strikes directly at freedom of speech and press."

The charges grew out of an article written by Lawson in the Daily Worker, New York communist organ, on May 18, 1934, after he had been arrested here on an investigation charge when he appeared at the trial of six alleged communist organizers before Judge H. B. Abernethy in Jefferson county court of misdemeanors and felonies.

Quotes First Paragraph.

The warant quoted the first paragraph of the article appearing under Lawson's byline, which read:

"For the first time in the history of Alabama jimcrow court the program of the communist party rang out today in Judge Abernethy's kangaroo court as Ralston [Harold Ralston, admitted communist organizer who was taken in the police "Red drive"] and five other workers militantly defended themselves against the frameup attempt of the steel bosses."

Lawson was taken into custody that day, but after being finger printed was released and told to get out of town.

To Be Heard in Fall.

The warant under which Lawson was arrested today was sworn to by Detective Moser and was made returnable in Jefferson Circuit court. The case probably will not be set for hearing before September or October, as the criminal division is in recess.

Conviction under the charge would draw a maximum penalty of six months at hard labor and a fine of $500.

The committee which Lawson headed represented the Civil Liberties union and the League for the Defense of Political Prisoners.

The demand for the right to circulate radical pamphlets and the Daily Worker here was denied by Commissioner of Public Safety W. O. Downs, with whom Lawson had just conferred yesterday when he was arrested on charges of circulating vile and malicious literature.

Two U. S. Judges to Hear New Milk Case Arguments Today

Further arguments on the legality of the milk marketing agreement of the Agricultural Adjustment administration in the Chicago area will be heard today before two federal judges who recently gave opposite rulings on the validity of the code.

Judge William H. Holly granted the government an injunction to prevent Lloyd V. Shissler, operator of the Peoples Dairy company of Cicero, from continuing in business in violation of the code. Shissler will appear today to show cause why he should not be held in contempt of court.

Shissler is said to have disposed of his interest in the dairy at about the time of the hearing, and he will be required to explain why he represented himself as the defendant while the sale was being either contemplated, or actually consumated. His two lawyers face similar charges.

Judge Barnes to Rule.

Judge John P. Barnes, who granted a temporary injunction to six milk dealers enjoining the government from enforcing the milk marketing agreement against them, is expected to sign the formal written order. It was not known whether the government lawyers will present their formal plea for an appeal at the same time.

Meanwhile other difficulties in the milk situation in this area were still being discussed by the large milk dealers and the Milk Wagon Drivers' union.

The union men, who have been working under an extension of a wage contract which expired May 1, 1933, are anxious to have a new contract signed—providing the same wages of $40 a week, with the same commissions for all products sold over the amount of a normal load.

In the numerous meetings held recently the dealers have agreed to the $40 a week salary, but have asked that the amount of the commissions be cut approximately 45 per cent. This the union refuses to accept.

Charge Dealers Chisel.

In addition the large dealers have demanded two other things from the union. The first is that the union guarantee that the $40 wage scale be paid by every dealer in the Chicago area, the charge being made that some small dealers are "chiseling" and paying no higher than $35 a week.

Secondly, the dealers demand unionization of the some 500 helpers on the trucks of "cut rate" dairies which have been underselling the regular dealers. The unionization of these men, the dealers hope, will force the "cut rate" dairies to pay union scale wages and lead to their raising their milk prices to the normal level.

Union leaders have declared that they now are working on the unionization plans. Both dealers and drivers express confidence that a satisfactory wage contract will be reached in the near future.

FEDERAL EMPLOYES TO TAKE 5 PER CENT CUT SIX MORE MONTHS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 6.—[Special.]—Employés of the federal government will continue to lose 5 per cent of their pay for the next six months at least, according to an executive order issued today by the White House.

No matter what the President himself may have personally thought about the matter of pay restoration he is compelled by law to base his action upon the cost of living.

A study of the cost of living throughout the United States, made by the bureau of labor statistics of the department of labor, produced figures showing that the cost of living during the six months ended June 30 was 20.2 per cent lower than the cost of living index for the base period of June 30, 1928.

According to the figures the cost of living for the six months' base period in 1928 was 171.0, which was used as an index to arrive at a conclusion for the six months just ended. During the latter period the cost of living was 136.4.

By act of congress 5 per cent of the original 15 per cent pay cut was restored beginning Feb 1, and an additional 5 per cent was restored beginning July 1. The restoration of the remaining 5 per cent was left for the President to determine following the scientific study of living costs throughout the country.

When the 15 per cent pay slash for the government workers was put into the economy act the books of the treasury showed an annual saving of approximately one hundred and thirty-five million dollars. Now that 10 per cent of the cut has been restored by congress itself, the savings to the government from this one source will be only about forty-five million dollars.

GENERAL STRIKE IS THREATENED IN MINNEAPOLIS

Minneapolis, Minn., July 6.—[Special.]—Threat of a general strike hung over Minneapolis tonight as representatives of other trade unions voted to support demands of the Truck Drivers' union, including preparations for a strike if the demands are not met.

At a massmeeting attended by nearly 4,000 a resolution was passed setting 7 p. m. Wednesday as a deadline for meeting of the drivers' demand for increased wages and complete recognition.

Unions represented in the action included the general drivers and helpers, brewery drivers, electrical workers, painters and decorators, plumbers and steamfitters, petroleum workers, garment workers, machinists, auto mechanics, and the Farmer Holiday association. At the meeting, which followed a parade through the loop district, speakers asserted that agreements which ended the truck drivers' strike in May had not been fulfilled and that the only alternative left was a general strike.

Earlier today the labor board, which has been seeking a basis for arbitration between drivers and employers, announced that progress had been made in conferences with both sides. They were to reconvene tomorrow morning.

If the dispute has not been settled by 7 p. m. Wednesday the various unions are scheduled to meet an hour later to make their final decisions on the strike proposal.

NATIONAL PARK CHIEF ACCUSED BY GIRL; QUITS

Woodring pleaded not guilty and waived preliminary hearing yesterday. His bond was set at $5,000.

Woodring said the charges are "of course, untrue." He added he had sent in a temporary resignation to the park service to "prevent stigma to the government service."

Woodring is 55 and married. The complaint was signed by the girl's mother, a park service employé.

CHAS. RAY, ONCE FILM STAR, AND WIFE SEPARATE

Hollywood, Cal., July 6.—[Special.]—After 19 years of married life Charlie Ray, at one time one of the best known of all film stars, and his wife, Mrs. Clara Ray, have separated. The separation took place one year ago, according to Mrs. Ray tonight.

DR. BRINKLEY'S NAME TO GO ON KANSAS BALLOT

Topeka, Kas., July 6.—(AP)—The state contest board ruled by unanimous vote today that the name of Dr. John R. Brinkley, "goat gland" specialist, should appear on the August primary ballot as a candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

Dr. Brinkley, twice unsuccessful as an independent candidate for the governorship, will oppose Gov. Alf M. Landon, who is seeking a second term.

The candidacy of the Milford, Kas.-Del Rio, Tex., surgeon, whose license to practice medicine and surgery was revoked in Kansas in 1930, had been challenged by J. W. Bensford of Salina on the ground he was not a resident of Kansas.

CONCERN ACTS FOR RECOVERY OF BLUE EAGLE

Action to obtain a rehearing at Washington at which they may have representatives present was taken yesterday by the Crest Specialty company, jewelry manufacturers of 629 Washington boulevard, whose Blue Eagle insignia were ordered removed for alleged violation of trade practice regulations.

B. B. Manaster, president of the firm, and his counsel, Clarence E. Threedy, conferred with Austin Hall, in charge of prosecutions for violation of the National Recovery act, and Jerome I. Macht, assistant counsel of the litigation division of the NRA at Washington.

According to Mr. Hall, he cited the violations of the medium and low priced jewelry code involved in complaints by the Baer-Wilde company of Attleboro, Mass., that the Chicago concern produced a chain tie clasp that followed exactly a Baer-Wilde original design.

Mr. Manaster says he can disprove the charge, but he must desist from using the design while the request for a new hearing is before NRA officials in Washington.

FELT COMPANY TO AWAIT NEW RULING BY NRA

Arthur N. Horwich, president of the General Felt Products Company, Inc., 2323 South Paulina street, from which the National Recovery administration took the Blue Eagle Thursday, said yesterday the firm would take no action pending a meeting of the code authority Wednesday.

He said he is confident the code authority will find that the NRA acted hastily and without good cause.

The Chicago Motor Coach company, which was ordered by the national labor board to reinstate 15 discharged employés, has taken no action toward asking a recall of that order pending the return to duty of John A. Ritchie, president, officials said. Mr. Ritchie and Attorney James G. Condon were injured in an automobile accident last week and Condon is still in a hospital, while Mr. Ritchie is recuperating at his summer home. A stay of ten days has been granted by the Washington authorities.

Policeman Stanley Bobosky, a member of State's Attorney Courtney's special detail on automobile thievery, died yesterday afternoon in Washington Boulevard hospital from a bullet fired by one of three suspects whom he sought to question earlier in the day because their car lacked license plates.

Bobosky and his partner, Richard Zimmerman, both drafted from motorcycle duty for Mr. Courtney's detail, were returning to the Warren avenue station in a police car at 12:30 o'clock yesterday morning from stalking an automobile ring suspect.

Get Meager Description.

At Lake street and Western avenue they saw the car without a license and ordered it to stop. As Bobosky stepped from his car to question the three occupants, one of them shot him in the left side. The car tore away.

Zimmerman got only a meager description of the killers, but Capt. Daniel Gilbert, chief investigator for the state's attorney, declared no effort would be spared to capture them.

The drive against car thieves went ahead at full speed. Four men trapped in the last week and accused of the theft of six cars were arraigned before Judge Joseph A. Graber in the Automobile court and their bail fixed at $30,000.

Seek "Stripper's" Employer.

Three of them furnished the bail—Isadore Smith and Charles Hoffman, owners of a garage at 2115 South State street, and Manuel Horwitz, one of their employés. Louis Vine, owner of a garage at 822 West Cermak road, who, according to police, made a partial confession, was held in the county jail.

A delay was granted the prosecutor in the case of Bernard Halpin, 17 years old, 5128 South Winchester, who, police said, was caught in the act of stripping a stolen car.

The authorities wanted to find his employer and they were seeking several men said to be heads of rings which employ many youths to steal cars.

Chinch Bug Warfare

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

July 6, 1934.

BATTLING with chinch bugs seems to be an endless task at The Tribune Experimental farm near Yorkville and the auxiliary farm just west of Wheaton. Today men on both farms are building chemically treated barriers and salvaging crops in immediate danger. They have been unusually successful in keeping the first brood of bugs out of the field corn.

Cinch bugs made their first appearance at the Wheaton farm last year. They harbored over the winter in a field of corn which was sown to rye last fall. Within the last few days they have invaded a patch of sweet corn, threatening to destroy the entire crop unless they can be blocked by barriers now being built and treated with creosote.

Last year small grain fields on farms in the neighborhood were so heavily infested threshers scooped them out of the bottoms of their bundle wagons before returning to the field for a new load. Pests from fields south of the Wheaton farm migrated into a small patch of rye early in the season. The rye was cut several weeks ago and now the chinch bugs are beginning to move into the timothy meadows. They have not only invaded a 20 acre timothy field just over the fence, but some of them found their way across a wooded pasture into a 30 acre timothy meadow a half mile away.

Chinch bugs do not ordinarily damage timothy to any great extent. Carl Henderson, manager of the auxiliary farm, believes that the bugs marched into the timothy fields this year because there are no nearby corn fields for them to feed in. He expects the second brood that will come from the bugs now in the timothy to appear within a short time in the main fields of corn.

Great swarms of the bugs were found in the two infested meadows this afternoon, especially where quack grass has sprung up in the field.

Under normal conditions the timothy would not have been cut for several days, but in order to save the crop Mr. Henderson has mowed the field where the bugs are causing the most damage. Recent rains have stimulated the growth of timothy to the point where a fair crop—perhaps a one-third normal yield—will be harvested from the infested fields.

At the Experimental farm at Yorkville today Clarence Thurow, manager, and his helpers are making their last stand with chemicals and wide dust barriers to prevent the first brood of bugs from moving out of the oats into the corn which is now shoulder high in many places.

Out of 197 acres of oats, all infested with chinch bugs, 45 acres have been plowed under and the land planted to soy beans. The 117 steers are grazing down thirty acres. Binders will be started Monday morning in the remaining 122 acres of oats that are to be cut for grain and straw. So far corn in nearby fields has been successfully protected with chemical barriers.

Where the pests managed to get over the barriers in one field Clarence has built barriers around the infested patch. "I decided," he said, "to give the chinch bugs that strip of infested corn and try to save the rest for the live stock."

For some time chinch bugs at the farm have been sprouting wings and getting ready to move in great swarms out of the oats over the barriers and into the corn. For the next two or three months about all the men at the farm can do is to stand by and hope the rains and good corn weather will keep enough vigor in the plants to endure the pest's attacks.

BLAME 'FIXING' AND COURTS FOR AUTO DEATH TOLL.

Officials Urge Violators Give Cash Bond.

BY HAL FOUST.

Police officials in a safety conference yesterday cited statistics of "fixing" or maladministration of traffic cases as a cause for Chicago's 20 per cent increase in automobile fatalities this year. As a remedial measure they proposed a cash bail be required for more serious violations.

CAPT. IRA McDOWELL.

Urges More Courtesy.

"These visitors," said Capt. McDowell, "are not familiar with the geography of our streets nor with local regulations and practices. We should give them special consideration—waiving the right of way, for example—when meeting them in traffic."

Capt. David Flynn, head of the police traffic division, as an argument for reform in traffic administration, produced figures showing that of 2,645 speeders arrested from Jan. 1 to June 15, 224 were convicted.

SOUVENIRS FREE AT FAIR TODAY; EXPECT THRONGS

First 50,000 Visitors to Get Most.

BY EARL MULLIN.

Today at the Fair is dedicated to that great part of the human race that wants something for nothing. It is Souvenir day, but the souvenirs are not the useless trinkets usually handed out on such occasions, and they are fre to any one who visits the Foods and Agriculture building.

The gifts are for the first 50,000 visitors, and the early comers will get their choice of the souvenirs. At 10 a. m. the doors of the building will open and each visitor will be given a shopping bag. From then on it will be catch as catch can.

All told, 40 exhibitors in the building have contributed gifts to the grab bag, and they run from salt and pepper shakers to food and drink. And in order that the events will not appeal solely to women, the exhibitors have arranged for the ten finalists in the Fair beauty contest to be on hand to greet visitors.

Norsmen Rule Tomorrow.

Tomorrow four hundred Chicagoans of Norse birth or descent will take over the Fair grounds to observe Norwegian day, the first nationality day of July. With thousands of Norwegians in the Chicago area it is expected that a record throng will turn out. The four hundred will sing, drill, and parade.

The formal program will start at 6:30 p. m. when the participants enter their formations at the 14th street gate and parade the Court of States. There a program of songs, drills, speeches, and the appearance of Norwegian officials in Chicago wil lentertain the guests.

Cossack Tale Has Unrest of Russian Pens

"And Quiet Flows the Don" Is Ironic Title.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"And Quiet Flows the Don," by Mikhail Sholokhov. [Knopf.]

"Matador," by Marguerite Steen. [Little Brown.]

"Years Are So Long," by Josephine Lawrence. [Stokes.]

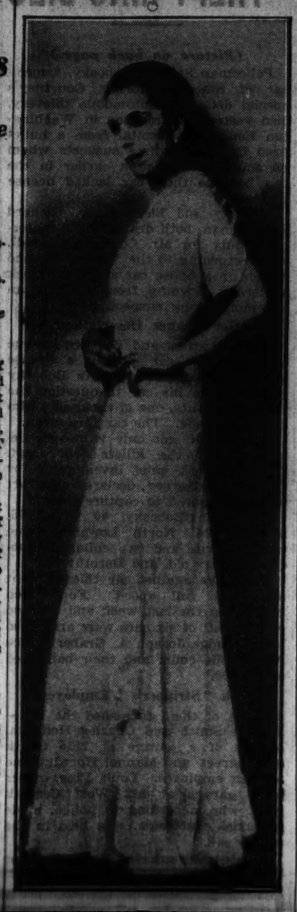
THE most superbly ironic title of the year is, I propose, "And Quiet Flows the Don." It is, first of all, a novel in the traditional Russian manner, replete with detail, and with that peculiarly UNQUIET quality that all the best Russian novels have, whether they rescribe rapine or ratiocination.

There is something so volatile about the Russian temperament (both of writers and those for whom they write) that quietness in any sense of the word which is comprehensible to us is impossible in its literature. "And Quiet Flows the Don" is so exactly in the accepted pattern and mood that its title would be ironic even if it recorded only the emotional tempests on a mill pond on the Don.

But the tempests of the book are no mere teacup disturbances. They are the passionate and tragic events which overtook the Don Cossacks when war shattered their peace and revolution shattered their war. Tempestuous the book is from its first page, which records the frenzied uprisings of the people in the village against a Turkish woman who had been brought back as wife by the Cossack Prokoffey Melekhov from war against the Turks.

In the first chapter she is about to be trampled into the ground as a witch

Identity Revealed



London Greets Delightful Tale of a Vacation

'Moving Along' Describes Walking in Italy.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—Just published in London is a book of extreme delightfulness which upon several counts should not be missed by those who care for belles lettres. It is called "Moving Along" [Chatto & Windus] and its author is G. Orioli.

Mr. Orioli is the Florentine bookseller and dealer in valuable editions. He is a friend of Norman Douglas, and, in company with Mr. Douglas and two young English publishers [both of Chatto & Windus], C. H. C. Prentice and Ian Parsons, he took a short time ago a walking tour in southern Italy. The book is in form of a journal, and it records with much spirit the conversations as well as the experiences which enlivened the days and nights of travel.

Those who are interested in Norman Douglas will find here a portrait of him which is altogether characteristic and amusing. But those who like to read of travel doings will also receive plenty of information, for Mr. Orioli has keen eyes and a light hand, and while the tone of the book is often one of raillery it is far more illuminating than any guide book ever was.

Moreover, all four companions took considerable interest in what they ate and drank, and what they smoked; for all are by way of being epicures. Mr. Orioli, indeed, is a cook of excellence, with a passion for milk-fed snails. As the business of dealing in valuable editions is now in a state of slump,

Mystery of the Week
BY MORTIMER QUICK.

In "Candidate for Lilies" [Knopf], by Roger East, there is a perfectly satisfactory murder, but the book is a novel built around an understandable crime rather than a mystery story. An infuriating old uncle is neatly removed at a moment when any one of his heirs might have found it particularly convenient to have him out of the way. Which heir or whether or not an heir had anything to do with it is your problem. They are all quite nice people who do not fall easily into the category of murderer and the author presents their cases rather unusually well.

So many detective stories of this particular variety are now being written in England that it must be they are coming into popularity. Francis Iles and Joanna Cannon set the fashion, I think, and all power to them.

A mystery to engage your intelligent attention, characters well realized and in themselves interesting and a plot which does not depend wholly upon one corpse piled onto the next for its horrid thrill make very good summer reading for the mystery story addict who has managed to retain his critical faculties. A terrible jacket and a meaningless name are the faults of this excellent novel.

If you like to be harrowed by punishment here below rather than in a supposedly lower region turn to "Bastard Verdict" [Knopf], by Winifred Duke. For four hundred odd pages you may agonize with the heroic wife of a nasty little man acquitted of murdering an earlier and less noble spouse. I think if you like Warwick Deeping you will enjoy this sturdy exercise in how to remove the joy from life. It's really first class of its kind.

Among the New Books

FICTION.

"Story of Gardening" from Earliest Days Told by an Editor

In "The Story of Gardening" [Dodd-Mead] Richardson Wright, editor of House and Garden, relates the saga of gardening "from the hanging gardens of Babylon to the hanging gardens of New York." A gal who has one geranium on her one room window sill will find it a charming tale. And the gal who respects and fears her head gardener as she does no other human creature will find it a volume worthy even to pass on to him. Mr. Wright writes as well as informs.

Three recent books which inform without pretending to be literature are: "Gardens of Delight," by Eleanour Sinclair Rohde [Hale, Cushman & Flint], imported from England and not so sentimental as its title might indicate; "Gardens in Glass," by Mildred Norton Andrews [De la Mare], which tells how to do that intricate goldfish bowl gardening, and "Useful Wild Plants of the United States and Canada," by Charles Francis Saunders [McBride], that brings the woods into the back yard.

New Facts of Whistler's Life Told in Magazine

For those who enjoy piecing together the picture puzzles of life and have been intrigued with James McNeill Whistler's famous "The White Girl," on exhibition in A Century of Progress exhibit at the Art institute, there is an interesting article by Elizabeth Robins Pennell in that incomparable book collectors' quarterly, the Colophon. There you will read that Whistler's first will, drawn in 1866, left virtually all of his property to Joanna Hiffernan, the "Jo" who posed for "The White Girl." Whistler's first will has come to light since Mrs. Pennell and her husband, the late Joseph Pennell, wrot the authorized biography of Whistler.

RED PLAYWRIGHT IS ARRESTED IN DIXIE FOR LIBEL

Seize John Lawson Third Time in Two Months.

Birmingham, Ala., July 6.—(AP)—For the third time within two months John Howard Lawson, New York playwright and self-styled "radical leader," was arrested here today, the warant this timo charging criminal libel.

After the warant had been served and he had been granted his liberty on $300 bail Lawson declared he would make an issue of the case, terming it "straight censorship" and "something that strikes directly at freedom of speech and press."

The charges grew out of an article written by Lawson in the Daily Worker, New York communist organ, on May 18, 1934, after he had been arrested here on an investigation charge when he appeared at the trial of six alleged communist organizers before Judge H. B. Abernethy in Jefferson county court of misdemeanors and felonies.

Quotes First Paragraph.

The warant quoted the first paragraph of the article appearing under Lawson's byline, which read:

"For the first time in the history of Alabama jimcrow court the program of the communist party rang out today in Judge Abernethy's kangaroo court as Ralston [Harold Ralston, admitted communist organizer who was taken in the police "Red drive"] and five other workers militantly defended themselves against the frameup attempt of the steel bosses."

Lawson was taken into custody that day, but after being finger printed was released and told to get out of town.

To Be Heard in Fall.

The warant under which Lawson was arrested today was sworn to by Detective Moser and was made returnable in Jefferson Circuit court. The case probably will not be set for hearing before September or October, as the criminal division is in recess.

Conviction under the charge would draw a maximum penalty of six months at hard labor and a fine of $500.

The committee which Lawson headed represented the Civil Liberties union and the League for the Defense of Political Prisoners.

CONCERN ACTS FOR RECOVERY OF BLUE EAGLE

Two U.S. Judges to Hear New Milk Case Arguments Today

Further arguments on the legality of the milk marketing agreement of the Agricultural Adjustment administration in the Chicago area will be heard today before two federal judges who recently gave opposite rulings on the validity of the code.

Judge William H. Holly granted the government an injunction to prevent Lloyd V. Shissler, operator of the Peoples Dairy company of Cicero, from continuing in business in violation of the code. Shissler will appear today to show cause why he should not be held in contempt of court.

Shissler is said to have disposed of his interest in the dairy at about the time of the hearing, and he will be required to explain why he represented himself as the defendant while the sale was being either contemplated, or actually consumated. His two lawyers face similar charges.

Judge Barnes to Rule.

Judge John P. Barnes, who granted a temporary injunction to six milk dealers enjoining the government from enforcing the milk marketing agreement against them, is expected to sign the formal written order. It was not known whether the government lawyers will present their formal plea for an appeal at the same time.

Meanwhile other difficulties in the milk situation in this area were still being discussed by the large milk dealers and the Milk Wagon Drivers' union.

The union men, who have been working under an extension of a wage contract which expired May 1, 1933, are anxious to have a new contract signed—providing the same wages of $40 a week, with the same commissions for all products sold over the amount of a normal load.

In the numerous meetings held recently the dealers have agreed to the $40 a week salary, but have asked that the amount of the commissions be cut approximately 45 per cent. This the union refuses to accept.

Charge Dealers Chisel.

In addition the large dealers have demanded two other things from the union. The first is that the union guarantee that the $40 wage scale be paid by every dealer in the Chicago area, the charge being made that some small dealers are "chiseling" and paying no higher than $35 a week.

Secondly, the dealers demand unionization of the some 500 helpers on the trucks of "cut rate" dairies which have been underselling the regular dealers. The unionization of these men, the dealers hope, will force the "cut rate" dairies to pay union scale wages and lead to their raising their milk prices to the normal level.

Union leaders have declared that they now are working on the unionization plans. Both dealers and drivers express confidence that a satisfactory wage contract will be reached in the near future.

FEDERAL EMPLOYES TO TAKE 5 PER CENT CUT SIX MORE MONTHS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 6.—[Special.]—Employés of the federal government will continue to lose 5 per cent of their pay for the next six months at least, according to an executive order issued today by the White House.

No matter what the President himself may have personally thought about the matter of pay restoration he is compelled by law to base his action upon the cost of living.

A study of the cost of living throughout the United States, made by the bureau of labor statistics of the department of labor, produced figures showing that the cost of living during the six months ended June 30 was 20.2 per cent lower than the cost of living index for the base period of June 30, 1928.

According to the figures the cost of living for the six months' base period in 1928 was 171.0, which was used as an index to arrive at a conclusion for the six months just ended. During the latter period the cost of living was 136.4.

By act of congress 5 per cent of the original 15 per cent pay cut was restored beginning Feb 1, and an additional 5 per cent was restored beginning July 1. The restoration of the remaining 5 per cent was left for the President to determine following the scientific study of living costs throughout the country.

When the 15 per cent pay slash for the government workers was put into the economy act the books of the treasury showed an annual saving of approximately one hundred and thirty-five million dollars. Now that 10 per cent of the cut has been restored by congress itself, the savings to the government from this one source will

Minneapolis, Minn., July 6.—[Special.]—Threat of a general strike hung over Minneapolis tonight as representatives of other trade unions voted to support demands of the Truck Drivers' union, including preparations for a strike if the demands are not met.

At a massmeeting attended by nearly 4,000 a resolution was passed setting 7 p. m. Wednesday as a deadline for meeting of the drivers' demand for increased wages and complete recognition.

Unions represented in the action included the general drivers and helpers, brewery drivers, electrical workers, painters and decorators, plumbers and steamfitters, petroleum workers, garment workers, machinists, auto mechanics, and the Farmer Holiday association. At the meeting, which followed a parade through the loop district, speakers asserted that agreements which ended the truck drivers' strike in May had not been fulfilled and that the only alternative left was a general strike.

Policeman Stanley Bobosky, a member of State's Attorney Courtney's special detail on automobile thievery, died yesterday afternoon in Washington Boulevard hospital from a bullet fired by one of three suspects whom he sought to question earlier in the day because their car lacked license plates.

Bobosky and his partner, Richard Zimmerman, both drafted from motorcycle duty for Mr. Courtney's detail, were returning to the Warren avenue station in a police car at 12:30 o'clock yesterday morning from stalking an automobile ring suspect.

Get Meager Description.

At Lake street and Western avenue they saw the car without a license and ordered it to stop. As Bobosky stepped from his car to question the three occupants, one of them shot him in the left side. The car tore away.

Zimmerman got only a meager description of the killers, but Capt. Daniel Gilbert, chief investigator for the state's attorney, declared no effort would be spared to capture them.

The drive against car thieves went ahead at full speed. Four men trapped in the last week and accused of the theft of six cars were arraigned before Judge Joseph A. Graber in the Automobile court and their bail fixed at $30,000.

Seek "Stripper's" Employer.

Three of them furnished the bail—Isadore Smith and Charles Hoffman, owners of a garage at 2115 South State street, and Manuel Horwitz, one of their employés. Louis Vine, owner of a garage at 822 West Cermak road, who, according to police, made a partial confession, was held in the county jail.

A delay was granted the prosecutor in the case of Bernard Halpin, 17 years old, 5128 South Winchester, who, police said, was caught in the act of stripping a stolen car.

The authorities wanted to find his employer and they were seeking several men said to be heads of rings which employ many youths to steal cars.

Chinch Bug Warfare

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

July 6, 1934.

BATTLING with chinch bugs seems to be an endless task at The Tribune Experimental farm near Yorkville and the auxiliary farm just west of Wheaton. Today men on both farms are building chemically treated barriers and salvaging crops in immediate danger. They have been unusually successful in keeping the first brood of bugs out of the field corn.

Cinch bugs made their first appearance at the Wheaton farm last year. They harbored over the winter in a field of corn which was sown to rye last fall. Within the last few days they have invaded a patch of sweet corn, threatening to destroy the entire crop unless they can be blocked by barriers now being built and treated with creosote.

Last year small grain fields on farms in the neighborhood were so heavily infested threshers scooped them out of the bottoms of their bundle wagons before returning to the field for a new load. Pests from fields south of the Wheaton farm migrated into a small patch of rye early in the season. The rye was cut several weeks ago and now the chinch bugs are beginning to move into the timothy meadows. They have not only invaded a 20 acre timothy field just over the fence, but some of them found their way across a wooded pasture into a 30 acre timothy meadow a half mile away.

Chinch bugs do not ordinarily damage timothy to any great extent. Carl Henderson, manager of the auxiliary farm, believes that the bugs marched into the timothy fields this year because there are no nearby corn fields for them to feed in. He expects the second brood that will come from the bugs now in the timothy to appear within a short time in the main fields of corn.

Great swarms of the bugs were found in the two infested meadows this afternoon, especially where quack grass has sprung up in the field.

Under normal conditions the timothy would not have been cut for several days, but in order to save the crop Mr. Henderson has mowed the field where the bugs are causing the most damage. Recent rains have stimulated the growth of timothy to the point where a fair crop—perhaps a one-third normal yield—will be harvested from the infested fields.

At the Experimental farm at Yorkville today Clarence Thurow, manager, and his helpers are making their last stand with chemicals and wide dust barriers to prevent the first brood of bugs from movng out of the oats into the corn which is now shoulder high in many places.

Out of 197 acres of oats, all infested with chinch bugs, 45 acres have been plowed under and the land planted to soy beans. The 117 steers are grazing down thirty acres. Binders will be started Monday morning in the remaining 122 acres of oats that are to be cut for grain and straw. So far corn in nearby fields has been successfully protected with chemical barriers.

Where the pests managed to get over the barriers in one field Clarence has built barriers around the infested patch. "I decided," he said, "to give the chinch bugs that strip of infested corn and try to save the rest for the live stock."

For some time chinch bugs at the farm have been sprouting wings and getting ready to move in great swarms out of the oats over the barriers and into the corn. For the next two or three months about all the men at the farm can do is to stand by and hope the rains and good corn weather will keep enough vigor in the plants to endure the pest's attacks.

RED PLAYWRIGHT IS ARRESTED IN DIXIE FOR LIBEL

Seize John Lawson Third Time in Two Months.

Birmingham, Ala., July 6.—(AP)—For the third time within two months John Howard Lawson, New York playwright and self-styled "radical leader," was arrested here today, the warant this time charging criminal libel.

After the warant had been served and he had been granted his liberty on $300 bail Lawson declared he would make an issue of the case, terming it "straight censorship" and "something that strikes directly at freedom of speech and press."

The charges grew out of an article written by Lawson in the Daily Worker, New York communist organ, on May 18, 1934, after he had been arrested here on an investigation charge when he appeared at the trial of six alleged communist organizers before Judge H. B. Abernethy in Jefferson county court of misdemeanors and felonies.

Quotes First Paragraph.

The warant quoted the first paragraph of the article appearing under Lawson's byline, which read:

"For the first time in the history of Alabama jimcrow court the program of the communist party rang out today in Judge Abernethy's kangaroo court as Ralston [Harold Ralston, admitted communist organizer who was taken in the police "Red drive"] and five other workers militantly defended themselves against the frameup attempt of the steel bosses."

Lawson was taken into custody that day, but after being finger printed was released and told to get out of town.

To Be Heard in Fall.

The warant under which Lawson was arrested today was sworn to by Detective Moser and was made returnable in Jefferson Circuit court. The case probably will not be set for hearing before September or October, as the criminal division is in recess.

Conviction under the charge would draw a maximum penalty of six months at hard labor and a fine of $500.

The committee which Lawson headed represented the Civil Liberties union and the League for the Defense of Political Prisoners.

The demand for the right to circulate radical pamphlets and the Daily Worker here was denied by Commissioner of Public Safety W. O. Downs, with whom Lawson had just conferred yesterday when he was arrested on charges of circulating vile and malicious literature.

Union leaders have declared that they now are working on the unionization plans. Both dealers and drivers express confidence that a satisfactory wage contract will be reached in the near future.

FEDERAL EMPLOYES TO TAKE 5 PER CENT CUT SIX MORE MONTHS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 6.—[Special.]—Employés of the federal government will continue to lose 5 per cent of their pay for the next six months at least, according to an executive order issued today by the White House.

GENERAL STRIKE IS THREATENED IN MINNEAPOLIS

Minneapolis, Minn., July 6.—[Special.]—Threat of a general strike hung over Minneapolis tonight as representatives of other trade unions voted to support demands of the Truck Drivers' union, including preparations for a strike if the demands are not met.

At a massmeeting attended by nearly 4,000 a resolution was passed setting 7 p. m. Wednesday as a deadline for meeting of the drivers' demand for increased wages and complete recognition.

Unions represented in the action included the general drivers and helpers, brewery drivers, electrical workers, painters and decorators, plumbers and steamfitters, petroleum workers, garment workers, machinists, auto mechanics, and the Farmer Holiday association. At the meeting, which followed a parade through the loop district, speakers asserted that agreements which ended the truck drivers' strike in May had not been fulfilled and that the only alternative left was a general strike.

Earlier today the labor board, which has been seeking a basis for arbitration between drivers and employers, announced that progress had been made in conferences with both sides. They were to reconvene tomorrow morning.

Woodring pleaded not guilty and waived preliminary hearing yesterday. His bond was set at $5,000.

Woodring said the charges are "of course, untrue." He added he had sent in a temporary resignation to the park service to "prevent stigma to the government service."

Woodring is 55 and married. The complaint was signed by the girl's mother, a park service employé.

Hollywood, Cal., July 6.—[Special.]—After 19 years of married life Charlie Ray, at one time one of the best known of all film stars, and his wife, Mrs. Clara Ray, have separated. The separation took place one year ago, according to Mrs. Ray tonight.

Topeka, Kas., July 6.—(AP)—The state contest board ruled by unanimous vote today that the name of Dr. John R. Brinkley, "goat gland" specialist, should appear on the August primary ballot as a candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

Dr. Brinkley, twice unsuccessful as an independent candidate for the governorship, will oppose Gov. Alf M. Landon, who is seeking a second term.

CONCERN ACTS FOR RECOVERY OF BLUE EAGLE

Action to obtain a rehearing at Washington at which they may have representatives present was taken yesterday by the Crest Specialty company, jewelry manufacturers of 629 Washington boulevard, whose Blue Eagle insignia were ordered removed for alleged violation of trade practice regulations.

B. B. Manaster, president of the firm, and his counsel, Clarence E. Threedy, conferred with Austin Hall, in charge of prosecutions for violation of the National Recovery act, and Jerome I. Macht, assistant counsel of the litigation division of the NRA at Washington.

According to Mr. Hall, he cited the violations of the medium and low priced jewelry code involved in complaints by the Baer-Wilde company of Attleboro, Mass., that the Chicago concern produced a chain tie clasp that followed exactly a Baer-Wilde original design.

Mr. Manaster says he can disprove the charge, but he must desist from using the design while the request for a new hearing is before NRA officials in Washington.

FELT COMPANY TO AWAIT NEW RULING BY NRA

Arthur N. Horwich, president of the General Felt Products Company, Inc., 2323 South Paulina street, from which the National Recovery administration took the Blue Eagle Thursday, said yesterday the firm would take no action pending a meeting of the code authority Wednesday.

He said he is confident the code authority will find that the NRA acted hastily and without good cause.

The Chicago Motor Coach company, which was ordered by the national labor board to reinstate 15 discharged employés, has taken no action toward asking a recall of that order pending the return to duty of John A. Ritchie, president, officials said. Mr. Ritchie and Attorney James G. Condon were injured in an automobile accident last week and Condon is still in a hospital, while Mr. Ritchie is recuperating at his summer home. A stay of ten days has been granted by the Washington authorities.

BLAME 'FIXING' AND COURTS FOR AUTO DEATH TOLL

Officials Urge Violators Give Cash Bond.

BY HAL FOUST.

Police officials in a safety conference yesterday cited statistics of "fixing" or maladministration of traffic cases as a cause for Chicago's 29 per cent increase in automobile fatalities this year. As a remedial measure they proposed a cash bail be required for more serious violations.

CAPT. IRA McDOWELL.

Urges More Courtesy.

"These visitors," said Capt. McDowell, "are not familiar with the geography of our streets nor with local regulations and practices. We should give them special consideration—waiving the right of way, for example—when meeting them in traffic."

Capt. David Flynn, head of the police traffic division, as an argument for reform in traffic administration, produced figures showing that of 9,645 speeders arrested from Jan. 1 to June 15, 234 were convicted.

"In January, our worst month this year for automobile deaths," the captain continued, "there were 1,786 arrests for speeding. There were 731 of the cases that were never entered on the court dockets. I don't know what happened to these cases, but you can guess. Of the 1,048 cases that were docketed with the courts there were only forty convictions."

Other Startling Figures.

Other police figures, covering the period from Jan. 1 to June 15, showed 99 arrests for running red lights, with four convictions; 395 arrests for passing to the left of a street car, 19 convictions; 437 arrests for running by a stop sign, nine convictions; 270 arrests for driving while intoxicated, 93 convictions.

"These figures may explain in a large measure the general breakdown in the public's observance of traffic regulations in Chicago," said Leslie Sorenson, city traffic engineer. He is chairman of a committee organized at the instance of Mayor Kelly and the Chicago Motor club to curb the motor fatality toll through improvements in the police, the courts, legislation, and regulation.

Would Compel Trials.

"I wouldn't suggest any campaign of wholesale arrests," said Capt. McDowell, chairman of the police subcommittee, "but I'd suggest a consistent enforcement, with every arrest meaning a trial in court. There are too many ignoring summonses issued by the motorcycle police.

"For the offenses that are causing many of our deaths a cash bail should be required."

The subcommittee adopted this as its recommendation to be presented to a meeting of the whole committee next week. Cash bail would be required for speeding, running a red light, failing to stop for a sign, and for passing to the left of a street car.

Capt. Flynn also displayed a spot map of this year's motor deaths, illustrating, he said, that street widening in Chicago has not been conducive to safety. Western avenue, for example, was credited with 13 per cent of the city's motor toll, although it is but 1-70 of 1 per cent of the city's pavement. The records for widened Ashland avenue and La Salle street were similar.

To give special attention to more serious traffic violations, Chief Justice Sonsteby of the Municipal court announced yesterday that, starting July 16, a special court will hear charges of speeding, reckless driving, driving while intoxicated and leaving the scene of an accident.

HOODLUM SEIZED TRYING TO FORCE 'UNION' UPON FAIR

George [Dictionary] Ford, 33 years old, 4062 Kenmore avenue, a former member of George [Bugs] Moran's gang of north side hoodlums, and an associate of Ted Newberry was arrested last night in the Fair grounds after he and a companion had attempted to force waiters throughout the grounds into a union. Arrested with Ford was George Smith, 24 years old, 855 West 53d place.

According to Lieut. Ernest Schondorf of the Fair police, who with Sergts. William Drury and Edward Grimm from the state's attorney's office arrested the men, the hoodlums were attempting to extort initiation fees of $5 and daily dues of 5 cents from the employes of the Canadian club.

An appointment was made with the café manager, and when the union organizers appeared they were arrested. The men claimed to be organizers for the Miscellaneous Hotel and Restaurant Employes union at 123 West Madison street. This union was raided three weeks ago by Capt. Daniel Gilbert, chief investigator for State's Attorney Courtney. Both men were held on open charges last night for questioning by Mr. Courtney this morning.

MERCURY GOES TO 60S AS COOL WAVE HITS CITY

Fair and Warmer Is Due Tomorrow.

Cool winds from the northwest swept over Chicago late yesterday afternoon and drove the temperature to an abnormally low point.

At 3 p. m. the mercury stood at 81, with high humidity, and the reading at 5 p. m. was 77. Between 5 and 6 o'clock, influenced by the blasts from the northwest, the temperature dropped to 65 degrees. There was a slight fall thereafter and 63 was registered at 9 p. m. At midnight the unofficial temperature was 66.

Forecaster C. A. Donnel announced that today would be fair and cool and tomorrow also fair but warmer.

Showers in Chicago Area.

In the morning there were thundershowers in many parts of the Chicago area, although little more than a trace of precipitation was recorded at the University of Chicago observatory. During one of the thundershowers Alfred Herrs, 15 years old, 7424 Warren avenue, River Forest, was struck by lightning and killed at North avenue and Wolf road.

The cool weather overspread the northwest and the western plains yesterday. Two North Dakota towns, Max and Beach, reported temperatures of 32 degrees. In eastern Montana and South Dakota readings were from 10 to 17 degrees below normal.

High Winds Cause Damage.

Showers and thunderstorms occurred over much of the country east of the Rockies yesterday. In some instances high winds caused considerable damage. A resident of Tarnov, Neb., was killed by lightning, while at Roseland, in the same state, Leonard Hall was killed by a board ripped from his home by a tornado. A woman and a small boy were killed by falling trees in Detroit.

Among the cities which recorded heavy rains were La Crosse, Wis., 3.40 inches; Green Bay, Wis., 1.61 inches; Dubuque, Ia., 1.40 inches; Indianapolis, Ind., 1.44 inches; Lansing, Mich., 1 inch, and Alpena, Mich., 1.34 inches. At Fairmont, Minn., the fall was 1.34 inches, and at Winona, Minn., 2.33 inches. There was good rainfall over much of Kansas and Missouri.

Nudity's cause received a temporary setback yesterday when the couple who last week went through a fake wedding ceremony in the nude as a publicity stunt for a concession at the World's Fair were locked up for two hours.

The nudist couple, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Wallace Jr., defendants on charges of presenting an obscene or indecent exhibition or entertainment, appeared before Municipal Judge Francis Borrelli in the South State street court, who dismissed their personal bonds and ordered that they be held in bonds of $1,000 each. Their attorney, Sydney R. Drebin, posted the bail.

The Wallaces were ordered to return to court at 10:30 a. m. today. The continuance was brought about by the failure of two witnesses to appear.

One is Miss Yvonne Stacey, 24 years old, who gave her address as the Vernon hotel. She calls herself "Zorine, Daughter of the Sun," and she acted as bridesmaid, also in tthe nude, at the "wedding."

The other missing witness was James Patterson, 26 years old, 230 East Ohio street, said to be a divinity student, the complainant. Arrests of both were ordered.

KILLED BY AUTO WHEN HE STEPS OFF STREET CAR

Rubin Morin, 35 years old, 8940 Parnell avenue, was fatally injured yesterday afternoon when he was struck by an automobile as he stepped off a street car at 84th and Halsted streets. He died in the Auburn Park hospital. George Francis, 31 years old, 8950 South Halsted street, driver of the car, was held by the Gresham police.

This death and one other yesterday increased the Cook county motor toll since Jan. 1 to 619. The other victim:

Frank Enders, 62 years old, 5735 Eddy street, a retired city fireman, killed when he was struck in front of 5700 Addison street by a car driven by Mrs. Grace Hicks, 3523 Normandy avenue.

George Kotzo, 46 years old, of Hammond, Ind., died early yesterday of injuries suffered when he was struck by a car driven by Harvey Norton, also of Hammond, in that city.

SOUVENIRS FREE AT FAIR TODAY; EXPECT THRONGS

First 50,000 Visitors to Get Most.

BY EARL MULLIN.

Today at the Fair is dedicated to that great part of the human race that wants something for nothing. It is Souvenir day, but the souvenirs are not the useless trinkets usually handed out on such occasions, and they are fre to any one who visits the Foods and Agriculture building.

The gifts are for the first 50,000 visitors, and the early comers will get their choice of the souvenirs. At 10 a. m. the doors of the building will open and each visitor will be given a shopping bag. From then on it will be catch as catch can.

All told, 40 exhibitors in the building have contributed gifts to the grab bag, and they run from salt and pepper shakers to food and drink. And in order that the events will not appeal solely to women, the exhibitors have arranged for the ten finalists in the Fair beauty contest to be on hand to greet visitors.

Norsmen Rule Tomorrow.

Tomorrow four hundred Chicagoans of Norse birth or descent will take over the Fair grounds to observe Norwegian day, the first nationality day of July. With thousands of Norwegians in the Chicago area it is expected that a record throng will turn out. The four hundred will sing, drill, and parade.

The formal program will start at 6:30 p. m. when the participants enter their formations at the 14th street gate and parade the Court of States. There a program of songs, drills, speeches, and the appearance of Norwegian officials in Chicago wil lentertain the guests.

Plans were being completed yesterday for the Russian day program next Friday. Highlights of the day will include the visit of Alexander Antonovich Troyanovsky, Russian ambassador to the United States. His visit will offer the first opportunity to thousands of Americans to see an official representative of the soviet.

Will Start World Flight.

The ambassador will, while at the Fair, be the official starter for an around the world flight which will leave the Fair on Sunday, July 15. The flight, sponsored by an American firm and designed to better trade relations with countries touched, will be commanded by William H. Alexander, former chief instructor of the United States army at Pensacola, Fla.

Moscow is the first major objective of the flight, but stops are planned at Berlin, Paris, and Kiev.

Crossing Siberia the flyers will head for Nome, Alaska, and from there to Chicago. The plane, a Sikorsky amphibion, is powered by two Pratt-Whitney Hornest of 720 horse power each and has an ordinary capacity of 19 passengers. Favorable weather is anticipated for the takeoff date.

At the Fair yesterday, however, visitors milled about under threatening skies. Officials believed this kept many at home. Attendance had reached 61,417 at midnight.

Cossack Tale Has Unrest of Russian Pens

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"And Quiet Flows the Don," by Mikhail Sholokhov. [Knopf.]
"Matador," by Marguerite Steen. [Little Brown.]
"Years Are So Long," by Josephine Lawrence. [Stokes.]

THE most superbly ironic title of the year is, I propose, "And Quiet Flows the Don." It is, first of all, a novel in the traditional Russian manner, replete with detail, and with that peculiarly UNQUIET quality that all the best Russian novels have, whether they rescribe rapine or ratiocination.

There is something so volatile about the Russian temperament (both of writers and those for whom they write) that quietness in any sense of the word which is comprehensible to us is impossible in its literature. "And Quiet Flows the Don" is so exactly in the accepted pattern and mood that its title would be ironic even if it recorded only the emotional tempests on a mill pond on the Don.

But the tempests of the book are no mere teacup disturbances. They are the passionate and tragic events which overtook the Don Cossacks when war shattered their peace and revolution shattered their war. Tempestuous the book is from its first page, which records the frenzied uprisings of the people in the village against a Turkish woman who had been brought back as wife by the Cossack Prokoffey Melekhov from war against the Turks.

In the first chapter she is about to be trampled into the ground as a witch when her husband "with a diagonal sweep down across the left shoulder from behind . . . clave the body to the belt" of a heavy gaited Cossack who had not run fast enough from his wrath. A half hour later the father wrapped his prematurely born infant in a sheepskin and that night consigned his wife to the earth from which he had rescued her.

From that moment, in varying degrees of intensity, passion flames through the pages. The Cossacks in peace are as violent and as wholly themselves as any characters in modern literature. They live a communal life politically, so self-contained that Ukrainians and Russians are both alien to them. Emotionally they are temperamental as the most easily moved Italian, but with a bitterly vengeful core that is more associated with cold heads than hot hearts. They live in a fury.

In "Revolution" and "Civil War," as the author labels the last 300 pages of the book, the intricacies of political readjustment are liable to wheedle the reader's mind off the horror—or perhaps by that time he has been dulled to it. For "And Quiet Flows the Don" is a book of 755 pages.

I could have done with a few thousand less wordage, myself. The story of the peace and of the war, so strangely contrasting, so oddly the same temperamentally, would have just about made a book so far as I am concerned. But I must admit that the almost endless panorama of passion in its pages does give it a sort of Russian grandeur.

"Matador" Proves Book That Satisfies.

The Book-of-the-Month club offers its members two books for July, Marguerite Steen's "Matador" and "Years Are So Long," by Josephine Lawrence.

"Matador" is the sort of book that "satisfies." It is the story of a retired matador, once the idol of Spain, still living upon adulation, but no longer improvident with money, very careful of his amours and passionately proud of two of his sons. His first born, himself a young matador, promises to be another El Ballarin. Thus was José called because, to disguise his lack of height, he walked on his toes into the arena like a dancer. The son is called, always, Ballarinito, although his name is Pepe. The youngest son, Juan, literally sickens at the thought of being a matador and yearns to be a poet. Between them is Miguel, destined for the church, but turning to politics, crippled from birth, whose infirmity his father looks upon as God's curse upon his own early sins.

Into their lives is cast by chance the beautiful young Pilar, heiress of a fabulous and conniving old crow. The girl is betrothed to Pepe, worshiped by Juan and beloved by old Don José himself.

There isn't anything about the unfolding of the inevitable tragedy that doesn't satisfy the reader, although it may surprise him. The book is an almost perfect example of the literature of the senses . . . of all of them. The eyes are kindled by beauty and horror. Fragrance and the acrid smell of horror are in the pages.

There is much about bull fighting, but, really in the gaudy tapestry of the novel's pictures, there is comparatively little. "Matador" seems to me one of those thoroughly first class thrillers that are so rare in literature. I recommend Ernest Hemingway's "Death in the Afternoon" as a guide book before starting on the "Matador" jaunt.

This Takes Up Old Age Problem.

The other Book-of-the-Month, "Years Are So Long," by Josephine Lawrence, asks the very modern question, "What About Old Age?" Not more than two generations ago "Honor Thy Father and Thy Mother" was not only a commandment but a mode of life. Other honor came rarely with youth.

Sons and daughters were, until the days of their death, "children." "Years Are So Long" tells the tragic story of a new mode of life, where there is not room for the dependent aged.

Casserly Does Another Good Job at Writing a Thriller

If you enjoyed Gordon Casserly's "Elephant God," a far east thriller of a good many years ago, you'll probably like his newest story of India, "The Monkey God" (Sears) equally well. The author, who has written several worth while travel and nature books, knows his India and again has woven the adventures of humans and animals into a lively story of adventure, love and political intrigue. It tears along at high speed from one thrilling episode to another, ending, of course, as the reader expects and hopes it will.

Identity Revealed

The identity of the mysterious "Isak Dinesen," author of "Seven Gothic Tales," has been revealed. This is her picture, and she is Baroness Blixen of Rungstedlund, Denmark. Her maiden name was Dinesen.

London Greets Delightful Tale of a Vacation

'Moving Along' Describes Walking in Italy.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—Just published in London is a book of extreme delightfulness which upon several counts should not be missed by those who care for belles lettres. It is called "Moving Along" [Chatto & Windus] and its author is G. Orioli.

Mr. Orioli is the Florentine bookseller and dealer in valuable editions. He is a friend of Norman Douglas, and, in company with Mr. Douglas and two young English publishers [both of Chatto & Windus], C. H. C. Prentice and Ian Parsons, he took a short time ago a walking tour in southern Italy. The book is in form of a journal, and it records with much spirit the conversations as well as the experiences which enlivened the days and nights of travel.

Those who are interested in Norman Douglas will find here a portrait of him which is altogether characteristic and amusing. But those who like to read of travel doings will also receive plenty of information, for Mr. Orioli has keen eyes and a light hand, and while the tone of the book is often one of raillery it is far more illuminating than any guide book ever was.

Moreover, all four companions took considerable interest in what they ate and drank, and what they smoked; for all are by way of being epicures. Mr. Orioli, indeed, is a cook of excellence, with a passion for milk-fed snails. As the business of dealing in valuable editions is now in a state of slump, he has been amusing himself by writing a cookery book and a few first recipes are included in "Moving Along."

But the real cookery book has still to be published, so readers of "Moving Along" must regard it solely as a journal of travel with congenial friends. Unless I am mistaken, it will whet their appetites for more from the same pen; but those who love Italy, those who enjoy reading about travel, and those who wish to add to their Norman Douglas libraries will all be delighted with this charming document.

There can be no doubt that the serious and lengthy tale of social life has still a tremendous following in England and America, and the best book of that kind at the moment in England is Alec Waugh's "The Balliols" [Cassell]. This is a well-documented account of a single family's progress during the last quarter of a century, and I shall be surprised if it does not give general pleasure to the readers of such books as "The Forsyte Saga."

Alec Waugh has the chronicler's true temperament and "The Balliols" is at once his most elaborate and his most excellent work.

A lighter novel, newly published which will cause much pleasant entertainment, is Mrs. Angela Thirkell's "Wild Strawberries" [Hamish Hamilton]. This is Mrs. Thirkell's third novel, and the two earlier ones, "Ankle Deep" and "High Rising," have been rapturously received. The author is a granddaughter of Burne-Jones and the sister of Denis Mackail. But she is on her own account a wit of merit.

"Bramwell Booth."

Catherine Bramwell Booth's "Bramwell Booth" [Sears] is a loving but conscientious record of the great Salvationist, documented profusely from her father's myriad letters.

Mystery of the Week

BY MORTIMER QUICK.

In "Candidate for Lilies" [Knopf], by Roger East, there is a perfectly satisfactory murder, but the book is a novel built around an understandable crime rather than a mystery story. An infuriating old uncle is neatly removed at a moment when any one of his heirs might have found it particularly convenient to have him out of the way. Which heir or whether or not an heir had anything to do with it is your problem. They are all quite nice people who do not fall easily into the category of murderer and the author presents their cases rather unusually well.

So many detective stories of this particular variety are now being written in England that it must be they are coming into popularity. Francis Iles and Joanna Cannon set the fashion, I think, and all power to them.

A mystery to engage your intelligent attention, characters well realized and in themselves interesting and a plot which does not depend wholly upon one corpse piled onto the next for its horrid thrill make very good summer reading for the mystery story addict who has managed to retain his critical faculties. A terrible jacket and a meaningless name are the faults of this excellent novel.

If you like to be harrowed by punishment here below rather than in a supposedly lower region turn to "Bastard Verdict" [Knopf], by Winifred Duke. For four hundred odd pages you may agonize with the heroic wife of a nasty little man acquitted of murdering an earlier and less noble spouse. I think if you like Warwick Deeping you will enjoy this sturdy exercise in how to remove the joy from life. It's really first class of its kind.

"Story of Gardening" from Earliest Days Told by an Editor

In "The Story of Gardening" [Dodd-Mead] Richardson Wright, editor of House and Garden, relates the saga of gardening "from the hanging gardens of Babylon to the hanging gardens of New York." A gal who has one geranium on her one room window sill will find it a charming tale. And the gal who respects and fears her head gardener as she does no other human creature will find it a volume worthy even to pass on to him. Mr. Wright writes as well as informs.

Three recent books which inform without pretending to be literature are: "Gardens of Delight," by Eleanour Sinclair Rohde [Hale, Cushman & Flint], imported from England and not so sentimental as its title might indicate; "Gardens in Glass," by Mildred Norton Andrews [De la Mare], which tells how to do that intricate goldfish bowl gardening, and "Useful Wild Plants of the United States and Canada," by Charles Francis Saunders [McBride], that brings the woods into the back yard.

New Facts of Whistler's Life Told in Magazine

For those who enjoy piecing together the picture puzzles of life and have been intrigued with James McNeill Whistler's famous "The White Girl," on exhibition in A Century of Progress exhibit at the Art institute, there is an interesting article by Elizabeth Robins Pennell in that incomparable book collectors' quarterly, the Colophon. There you will read that Whistler's first will, drawn in 1866, left virtually all of his property to Joanna Hiffernan, the "Jo" who posed for "The White Girl." Whistler's first will has come to light since Mrs. Pennell and her husband, the late Joseph Pennell, wrot the authorized biography of Whistler.

NEW YORK BAKES FOR 16TH DAY IN MERCILESS HEAT

Nightfall Fails to Bring Ease to Sufferers.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 6.—[Special.]—The savage rays of a merciless sun beat down today upon reeking swarms of humanity for the sixteenth consecutive day as all New York City records were broken for a protracted heat spell. Scarcely a single cool breeze has relieved the terrific heat here since June 21.

The suffering of millions in the metropolitan area has been intensified during this period by abnormally high humidity. On occasions, the atmosphere has almost reached the saturation point. Nor has nightfall eased the discomfort of the inhabitants much, the temperature never dropping below the 70s even in the usually cool hours of the early morning.

Predicted "Breaks" Fail.

At least a dozen predictions for a break in the heat wave have been given great publicity during the 16 day period and an attempt made to minimize the heat itself.

The ancient jokes directed at the Californian's distaste for publicity concerning bad weather might well be remodeled and directed at Manhattanites. It has been a tough year for the New Yorker loyal to the somewhat outworn tradition that his city enjoys a temperate climate.

Middle West "Blamed."

The middle west gets much of the blame for New York's hot weather. "Blistering winds from the torrid plains of the middle west," according to the press, are responsible for many of the scorching days which hamper New York's ambition to be known as a cool and pleasant climate.

The record broken today was set in 1901 when the temperatures were continuously above normal from June 22 to July 7. The new record sets up a tall standard for the future to aim at. On most of the days during the period, the thermometer went above 90. On June 29, it touched 97. The high mark today was 92.1 at 5 p. m.

But the humidity accompanying these lofty temperatures made the stretch of sultry weather remarkable for the misery it caused. For those obliged to move in the sweltering streets, the atmosphere was truly tropical. Today, for example, the weather bureau's Central park thermometer, exposed to the rays of the sun, recorded 130 degrees at noon. The humidity at the same time was 80 per cent of a maximum 100.

5 GUNMEN IN SPORT TOGS SEIZE $250,000 GEMS IN GLOUCESTER

Gloucester, Mass., July 6.—[Special.]—Five nattily groomed bandits, whose stylishly moded sport togs belied the deadliness of the machine gun and automatics they carried, held up the Hodgson, Kennard & Co. jewelry store in the fashionable Magnolia section here today. They escaped with gems valued at $250,000.

They fled in two cars after binding and gagging Charles A. Orcutt, manager of the store, and four others. It was believed the men headed toward Beverly and a watch was made of all roads in that direction.

The immaculate gunmen invaded the store a short time before the place was to have been opened for its first day of the summer season. They made their entrance through the adjoining quarters of Orcutt and his wife, where they surprised the Orcutts; Robert R. Hodgson, son of a partner in the firm; Edward Davis, and Jessie Goddered, a Negro maid.

Four of the men, armed with automatic pistols, backed the group into a corner and tied them with cords and adhesive tap while the fifth member of the band stood guard with the machine gun. Then they turned their attention to the shop, methodically placed all available jewelry in a large bag, and then fled.

U. S. to Try Postoffice Employe for $1.30 Theft

Rockford, Ill., July 6.—[Special.]—Harold E. Erickson, Rockford postal employé, will be brought to trial during the October term of federal court at Freeport on charges of taking money from the mails. Charged with removing $1.30 from a letter which passed through his hands he was recently indicted by a federal grand jury on two counts involving embezzling, secreting, detaining, and delaying a letter in violation of the postal laws.

I. J. SCHREIBER RESIGNS THREE RECEIVER JOBS

Ouster Plea Is Withdrawn by Bondholders.

Former Ald. Irving J. Schreiber of the 5th ward, whose administration as receiver for three large south side properties has been under fire for the last year and a half, has resigned his position, it was revealed yesterday by Judge Harry Lewis in the Superior court.

Judge Lewis made this announcement when a hearing was called on the petitions of two groups of bondholders to depose Schreiber. The bondholders were represented by Attorneys Joseph Willner and William Reichert.

Three Properties Involved.

Their petitions charged that since Schreiber was named receiver on Dec. 18, 1932, by the late Judge Robert E. Gentzel he had handled the affairs of the properties in an "extravagant" fashion and net receipts had fallen.

The properties involved are the Parkshore Apartments West, 1755 East 55th street; the Parkshore Apartments East, 1757 East 55th street, and the Flamingo apartment hotel, 55th street and South Shore drive.

When Judge Lewis disclosed that Schreiber had resigned earlier in the day the petitions of the two bondholder groups were withdrawn. The judge announced that he had appointed Harry S. O'Neil, a south side real estate dealer, as Schreiber's successor.

Bondholders Protest Fees.

Judge Lewis then heard petitions presented in behalf of Schreiber and the law firm of Altheimer, Mayer, Wood & Smith, which acted as Schreiber's attorneys in the receivership, asking that the court allow them fees totaling $13,500. The fees listed were $7,500 for the Flamingo hotel, $2,500 for the Parkshore East, and $3,500 for the Parkshore West.

This aroused a storm of protest from the bondholders.

Judge Lewis did not sign the order allowing the fees, although he indicated he did not believe them excessive. He instructed the attorneys for both sides to get together and settle the matter between themselves.

STAGE FIRST REHERSAL FOR SOUTH DAKOTA STRATOSPHERE FLIGHT

Rapid City, S. D., July 6.—(AP)—Forty actors in the stratosphere drama held the first dress rehersal today for man's greatest gravity defying attempt of the age. The second part—an actual trial flight of perhaps a few thousand feet into the air, forerunner of the final takeoff expected to whisk two men in a ball 15 miles into the upper regions—was tentatively slated for tomorrow at 6 a. m., by the sponsors, the National Geographic society and the army air corps.

Word from government meteorologists that favorable weather conditions for the real flight were in the offing prompted the order to practice the routine to be followed when Maj. William, E. Kepner, pilot, and Capt. Albert W. Stevens, scientific observer, actually take off.

A crowd of curious, clustered about the rim of Moonlight valley, looked on as hydrogen gas, piped into the miniature gas bag, pumped buoyant life into the 19,000 cubic foot container, a mere dwarf beside the 3,000,000 cubic foot bag to be used in the main flight.

FIG LAND FRAUD PROMOTER GETS TWO YEAR TERM

Clyde L. Worthington, "fig land" promoter, who won reversal of a conviction by which he was sentenced to five years for using the mails to defraud, yesterday was sentenced to two years in Leavenworth penitentiary on his plea of guilty to the same charges. He appeared before Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan.

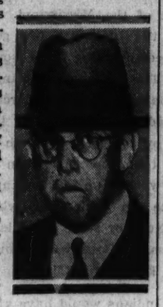
According to Assistant United States Attorney Heber Dotson, Worthington defrauded some hundred investors of approximately $200,000 through sales of land which he promised would bear a crop of figs and a 16 per cent return within two years. Attorney Sol R. Friedman, counsel for ten of the victims, told the court that Worthington has made a settlement offer of 25 cents on every dollar invested with him.

The evidence all dates from the 1929 era. The government dismissed three of the five counts of the mail charges after the United States Circuit Court of Appeals remanded the case for a new trial last October, because certain defense evidence had not been admitted. Judge John P. Barnes heard the case the first time in 1931.

RECEIVER GETS FIVE YEARS FOR EMBEZZLEMENT

Elwyn H. Johnson Enters Plea of Guilty.

Elwyn H. Johnson, 61 years old, who confessed that the had embezzled $183,000 during the last 12 of his 27 years as a federal receiver in bankruptcy, was sentenced yesterday to five years in Leavenworth penitentiary. Following his plea of guilty Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan imposed a five year term for each of three charges of misappropriating from trust estate funds, but ruled that the terms shall be served concurrently.



ELWYN H. JOHNSON.

Johnson, whose home is at 204 South Maple avenue, Oak Park, was bonded for $150,000. This fact, together with his action in turning over to the clerk of the United States District court title to a 2,000 acre Michigan farm, four lots in Florida, unincumbered, and various securities, will enable restitution to the victims. Johnson diverted the $183,000 from 101 bankrupt estates for which he was either receiver or trustee.

Victim of Speculation, He Says.

"I am a victim of the infatuation of the times for speculation in stocks and the real estate market, during the late 1920s," Johnson told the court before sentence was passed.

Judge Sullivan, pointing out that the case was different from the ordinary embezzlement in view of the defendant's position, allowed a 30 day stay of execution so Johnson may terminate his business affairs.

According to Assistant United States Attorney James C. Leaton, Johnson sank part of the money in Florida land during the boom era and used the rest to acquire 22,000 acres of Michigan land on which he hoped to strike oil. The first notice of the defalcations came recently when creditors of a foundry company in bankruptcy complained that they had not received payment on a claim.

Withdrawals Not Approved.

Johnson, it was learned, had for years been placing all funds in a general account from which he could make withdrawals without having to get the approval of Referees in Bankruptcy Garfield Charles and Edmund D. Adcock.

Specifically, Johnson was charged with embezzling $7,232 from the estate of the Ferguson & Lange Foundry company, $5,478 from the K. Winer Clothing company, and $1,711 from the Art Faint Poster company.

Galvin Gains on De Grazio in Home Precinct Recount

State Representative A. O. Galvin, who is contesting the Republican nomination at the April 10 primary of Joseph N. De Grazio, gained yesterday in a recount of the ballots cast in his home precinct. De Grazio had been credited with 52 votes there, which dropped to nine in the recount. Galvin had been given 193½ votes, but the recount showed 189. Further retabulation was adjourned until Monday.

HITLERITE BED BUG BREEDER WILL GET COURT AIRING TODAY

Joseph Pierron, German janitor whose Nazi proclivities led him to insert a small but effective army of brown-shirted cimex lectularii in the beds of Jewish residents of the Edsel Manor apartment hotel, 915 Glengyle place, will appear in the State street police court this morning on two formal charges, but neither of them touch upon his sleep-wrecking methods.

Arrested Thursday, he was booked for assault and battery, as charged by his wife, Elizabeth [who, incensed by a slap, broadcast the history of the cimex lectularii] and for larceny of one rollaway bed, as charged by Jack Fishman, owner of the apartment hotel in which Pierron carried out his double duties of janitor and insect-breeder.

Nazi Pierron is in an iron-barred cell now, but he isn't lonely. He was unable to bring his insect army with him, but he found other brown shirts awaiting him at the jail. They are cockroaches—and they are, as even Pierron admits, most friendly.

Watchman Drops His Gun; Bullet Hits His Ankle

Jake Alex, 46 years old, was changing into his working clothes at the Wilson & Co. plant, 4100 South Ashland avenue, where he is employed as a watchman, yesterday. His revolver slipped from his holster, fell to the floor, and was discharged, the bullet striking Alex in the right ankle. His wound was not serious.

NIORT, France, July 6.—(AP)—The Banque Regionale, which had a capital of 3,000,000 francs [about $189,000] was declared bankrupt today. The bank was closed recently after its president, Maurice Proust, had been sentenced to 15 days' imprisonment for "abuse of confidence."

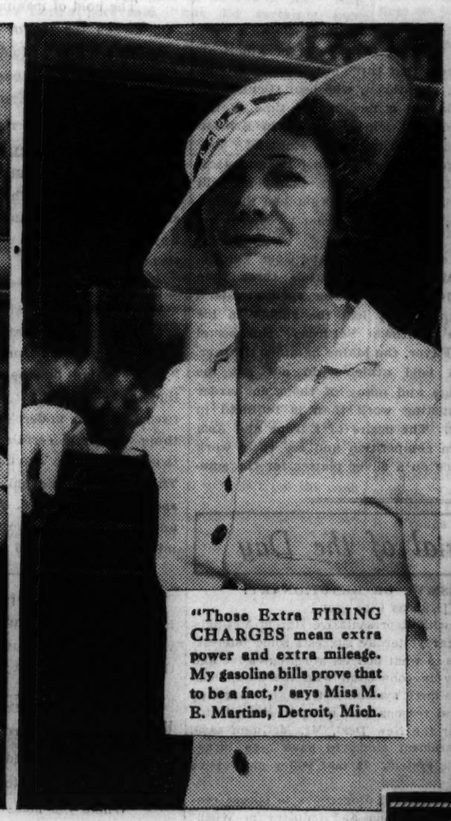
WE CHANGED TO SUPER SHELL AND GOT MORE MILEAGE!

"I'VE BOOSTED MY MILEAGE. I must be getting more than 6900 extra firing charges per gallon," says G. R. Simpson, Cleveland.

"The New SUPER SHELL gives more power, delivers a more satisfactory performance than premium gasolines, and I average 3 miles more from every gallon," says Herbert R. Thatcher, of Columbus, Ohio.

"Your SUPERCHARGED GASOLINE saves me money," reports R. D. Allemang, St. Louis. "I check mileage regularly and Super Shell always gives a mile or so extra per gallon."



"Those Extra FIRING CHARGES mean extra power and extra mileage. My gasoline bills prove that to be a fact," says Miss M. B. Martins, Detroit, Mich.

"I PROVED IT. On a 63 mile run in my Chevrolet truck I formerly used 7 gallons of gasoline. I changed to Super Shell and make the same run on 6 gallons," writes John F. Schaefer, of Kewaskum, Wisconsin.

THOUSANDS have changed to this new supercharged gasoline and report gains of 1 to 3 miles more per gallon!

Owners of all types of cars report that Super Shell gives them from 1 to 3 miles more per gallon.

We knew that Super Shell would be a great success, because Shell's new supercharging process packs up to 6900 extra firing charges into every gallon. These extra firing charges give you greater power, quicker pick-up, and—as you motorists tell us—from 1 to 3 miles more per gallon.

Get these extra firing charges in your car—at no extra cost. Keep an accurate check of your mileage, and you'll know why supercharged Super Shell is taking the country by storm.

I will give him the full swing of the patronage of office. I will give him the whole host of ministerial influence. —Richard Brinsley Sheridan.

DOSING A NATION TO CURE NEW YORK.

The President's radio address on the eve of his departure for Hawaii seems to have met with a more favorable reception in the east than in the west. The difference is easily explained. The President is a New Yorker. His principal business and social relations have been found in New York. The problems which he sees in need of solution are those which are most pressing in New York and the terms in which he proposes to solve them are best understood in New York.

The President traced the depression to "that unfortunate decade characterized by a mad chase for unearned riches and an unwillingness of leaders in almost every walk of life to look beyond their own schemes and speculations." He might well have gone farther and located the source of our difficulties in place as well as in time. The time was the post-war decade, as the President said. The place was New York.

New York, of which Mr. Roosevelt was governor during a part of the decade in question, was the focus of infection. In "the mad chase for unearned riches" New York set the pace. Other communities followed far behind. Financial trickery and self-serving trusteeship were not altogether lacking in other communities, but Wall street provided the model and most of the objectionable practice occurred in Wall street. It is unfortunate that no steps were taken by the government of New York to prevent the abuses which went far, as Mr. Roosevelt says, toward producing the debacle.

A good example of the kind of "mad chase" Mr. Roosevelt spoke of is provided in the records of the Consolidated Automatic Merchandising company, organized in 1928 to make and sell various kinds of slot machines. Extravagant estimates of earnings were put forward to attract innocent investors. The common stock rose as high as $18 a share. The other day you could buy two shares for a quarter and the company was petitioning for reorganization at the expense of its creditors under the new bankruptcy act. The company in 1928 numbered among its directors Mr. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

It is only natural that today many New Yorkers have a sharp sense of remorse at having "failed to look beyond their own schemes and speculations" to the larger good. The repentance is wholesome, but New Yorkers are not justified in thinking, as many of them do, that everybody everywhere was doing the same thing at the same time and to the same extent and is therefore equally in need of drastic reformation.

There is a kind of shortsighted selfishness which is peculiar to New York and is not confined to finance. New York industry sweated its immigrant labor and was not ashamed of the dirty profits to be derived from the business. One reason, and an important one, for the resentment that the New Deal has aroused outside New York is its assumption that all business and all finance in the country are as inhuman and as dishonorable as were New York's business and finance in the decade of the "mad chase." The drastic treatment which may be a purge for New York is poison to the rest of the country.

LOOSENING THE BONDS.

While it is very carefully guarded by provisions that the interstate commerce commission may control the range of commodities and must give special authority in each case for departure from frozen rate schedules, congress inserted in the federal housing bill a provision that railways should be permitted to initiate such rates as they may deem necessary to encourage the freer movement of commodities used for building purposes. This is a step in the right direction. Each and every freight agent should at once institute inquiries to ascertain where rate levels are hindering the movement of the numerous commodities included within the classification "construction materials." Their trains are scheduled, steam is up and the freights are going to move with the limited tonnage now available. There is a hint that the late congress had begun to grasp the fact that transportation and distribution are related. We hope the next congress will not have to rediscover it.

In the drouth emergency legislation there is also a suggestion that the freight rate levels should be governed to some extent by existing conditions. The power of mileage as an absolute czar of schedules has been abridged to the extent that "a carrier shall not be deemed to have violated the interstate act with reference to undue preference or unjust discrimination" by reason of the fact that it may have extended relatively low rates to drouth sufferers to enable them to move stock to territory where rainfall has been more plentiful.

We may be a little sanguine, but we must express the hope that from these small beginnings, even if imposed by adversity, congress will commence to realize that the railways, if permitted to make their own rates, can do much to aid commerce as well as themselves, even in prosperous times. In the meantime it is up to the carriers to take full advantage of the modicum of freedom granted by the Seventy-third congress.

AIR PULLMANS.

The air lines are to be congratulated on their achievement in introducing air "Pullmans" with sleeping compartments for night service between Chicago and New York. Possibly our greatest enemy in the development of America has been distance, and conservation of time in overcoming this disability is a distinct forward step. Because of the high trafic density the flights between Chicago and New York offer the best opportunity for the introduction of this innovation, but we are of the opinion that eventually sleeping plane service will be confined to service between Chicago and the Pacific coast. The air companies are not overlooking and should not lose sight of the objective to so shorten the air hours between Chicago and New York as to make sleeping planes unnecessary.

A very few years ago a seven and one-half hour service was given in a few fast planes. Today five hour service is standard, and four and one-half hour flights are contemplated before the end of the year. Schedules of three or even two hours within the next few years seem entirely feasible to the air minded. And why not? In air transport safety increases with speed; first, because under general aviation principles the faster the plane the more solid the right of way; second, because the possibility of difficulties due to mechanical troubles must of necessity be reduced with hours in the air, and, third, because changes in weather conditions are far less likely to occur in the shorter period.

If such air speed is attained the railroads will be compelled to halve the railroad time in transit. Ten night hours to New York will compete with three day hours. Eighteen hours will not.

ATHLETES GOING ABROAD.

An American track and field team will go to Japan, another to Germany, and a third to Sweden. The invitations cover the expenses of the trips. The teams will be composed for the most part of stars who competed Saturday in the A. A. U. meet in Milwaukee, where the pace was fast and new records were made. Each outfit has its aces, but the two months' tour to Japan has attracted the top flight in numbers and ability.

Princeton and Cornell send a track team to England to meet Oxford and Cambridge. The Harvard baseball team and the Yale swimming team go to Japan. Harvard has been just duck soup to the Yale swimmers, not having won a meet since the competition was begun from the Elis, who have been good in anybody's tank. The Japanese decided several years ago to show all competitors the wake of their swimmers, and did so in the Los Angeles Olympic games. The Harvard ball team is a hard hitting aggregation and the Crimson looks forward to less grief on the diamond than the Blue may reasonably expect in the water.

Although the track and field team which goes to Japan is the largest, the wealth of American material is so great that three outstanding groups can be made up. Bonthron, who beat Glenn Cunningham Saturday in a new record time in the 1,500 meter race, will join the team in Sweden after he has run for Princeton in England. Ben Eastman, champion in the 800 meters, and Jack Torrance, the Louisiana weight champion, will also go to Sweden. Torrance has pitched the shot 55 feet 5 inches, and probably hasn't reached his distance yet.

Germany will see Ivan Fuqua and Gene Venzke. Japan draws Metcalfe, Marquette's three time winner of the 100 and 200 meter sprints; Glenn Cunningham, who barely lost the rubber in his five races with Bonthron Saturday; Hornbostel of Indiana, and Favor, the Maine hammer thrower. The track and field athletes do not get the cream of prestige and many of them do harder and more exhausting work than is required in any other sport. The desire of Europe and Asia to meet them in competition and see their work is something nice on a silver platter for the summer vacation.

Editorial of the Day

PROGRESSIVE OR REACTIONARY?

[Kansas City Star.]

The interview with Representative Harold McGugin printed in the Star yesterday suggests some interesting reflections as to what policies are progressive and what reactionary in connection with the New Deal.

Believers in the merit system rather than in appointments for political reasons used to be considered progressives. Under the New Deal, Mr. McGugin says, 70,000 new government employés have been turned over to the spoils system. Is that policy progressive or reactionary?

It used to be considered progressive to oppose centralized control of banking and industry in Washington. The New Deal has gone a long way to make the banks and industry dependent for financing on the federal government. Is that policy progressive or reactionary?

It used to be considered progressive to demand the enforcement of the anti-trust laws and to oppose monopoly. The NRA has suspended the anti-trust laws with the inevitable effect of fostering monopoly. Is that policy progressive or reactionary?

It used to be considered progressive for a man to be free to manage his business in accordance with his judgment of the demands of the market. Under the NRA this right has been much impaired. Is this policy progressive or reactionary?

It used to be considered progressive for business to expand its volume and keep prices down. Under the NRA the tendency is to curtail production and raise prices. Is this policy progressive or reactionary?

It used to be considered progressive to stand for individual initiative on the farms, and to believe the farmer was in a better position to run his business than a government board in Washington. Under the AAA great progress has been made in allowing Washington to determine the use a farmer is to make of his land. Is that policy progressive or reactionary?

It is not intended to suggest answers to all these questions in this brief discussion. In an emergency certain policies may be justified that would not be justified for the long run. But it is important to consider what the present tendencies are, and whether our earlier ideas of what was progressive and what reactionary were wrong.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

"INDIANS ASK RIGHT to Drink Beer and Wine."—Headline. And why shouldn't they have it? The Indian question has always been one of the greatest problems of the country. Maybe it was because the Indians were sold fire-water from the beginning and never given a chance to try beer and wine, for the palefaces found more money in selling whisky to the redskins than they did beer and wine. It's easy to imagine Indians filling up with the terrible squirrel whisky we palefaces sold them and then digging up the tomahawk and starting on the war trail. But it's hard to think of the Indians sitting down and drinking steins of beer and deciding to go out and scalp all the whites west of the Mississippi. If the palefaces had taught the Indians a few good songs to go with their beer drinking there would have been no massacres. The Indians gathering at their tribal fire might have made a few fierce speeches about the pale-faced invaders stealing their lands, trimming them out of their eyeteeth every time they traded with them, but just when the warriors got pretty well worked up and began to jump around and practice up their war whoops, old Chief Pain-in-the-Neck or some other leader would have got up and said, "Boys, what about a glass of beer all around? It's my treat."

Then the Indians would have given three cheers and sat down and enjoyed the round of beer. After which old Chief Who-Says-Ha-Ha-to-the-Lightning-and-Gives-It-a-Kick-in-the-Pants would have spoken as follows: "Now, then, fellows, have a little light wine." Then while the light wine was being passed around four or five of the youngest and fiercest warriors would have put their arms around each other's neck and burst forth with, "Oh Adeline, sweet Adeline. . . . You're the darling of my heart—(hold it, fellows)—sweet Adeline." Then there'd be another round of beer and old Chief Pain-in-the-Neck would jump up on a table and shout, "Now then, fellows, three cheers for dear old Yale! That's great! Now, all together, 'Boo la, boo la, boo la, boo la, boo la, boo la, boo la, boo la.' That's fine! Now, all together, sing! 'I've been workin' on the railroad, all the livelong day; I've been workin' on the railroad, just to pass the time away.' That's it, fellows; that's great!"

Then another Indian would have leaped up and led in singing "A wee drap and doris" and "The Sidewalks of New York." And after that the Indians would have filed quietly out into the night and gone peacefully home and if anybody merely suggested breaking off the reservation and scalping the white settlers the rest of the Indians would have tied him up with a rope and told him to sleep it off.

ESCAPE.

When the road to the East is closed
And the trail to the West is barred
On the North loom gates impregnable,
On the South is an armed guard,
There is one way open. It's Up!

If a jungle hems me round
Or the dunes of the desert pen,
If the mountains rise in a passless wall
Or the ocean circles me in,
Still there's one way left me. Up!

Then what of gates and walls,
The hold of inanimate things
When the joy of conflict stirs
In a flutter of folded wings
That know the one way? Up!

If our seeking must be long
Ere we find that land of song.

But, alas! the search may be
Vain, for all our striving;
Time denies our valiant plea,
Years rebuke our shriving,
And perhaps we shall return,
Cheated, though our hearts still burn.

We who laughed our youth away,
Naught could mar our pleasure;
Where, O where—will any say—
Can we find its treasure?
We would seek—how far and long!—
To regain that land of song.

THE NERVOUS CHILD.

THROUGH the education of the public, the cooperation of physicians, and the activities of many health associations, diseases incident to the period of childhood have been greatly reduced. The child has now an improved outlook for normal physical health. Although certain warnings have been sounded and considerable attention has been given to the developing nervous system of the child, the emphasis is admittedly insufficient. With all our advice and counsel we may fail to help the child develop a stable nervous system that will prepare him for the problems of adult life.

Fortunate is the family that finds itself in the hands of an understanding physician who quickly recognizes nervous overstrain or instability by such symptoms as a tendency to cry on slight provocation, resentment when justly reproved, fits of uncontroled anger, and moody spells.

These symptoms mean that the child has a case of nerves that may have a physical basis. Undernourishment and other physical defects must receive attention. We must not regard all signs of nervousness as examples of bad behavior. These may have a definite organic basis. For example, not long ago I saw a child who was being treated by a so-called behavioristic expert. The child had a fairly advanced case of chorea, or St. Vitus' dance.

In the absence of some physical disturbance the symptoms may be functional in character, requiring intelligent guidance in self-control. Specialists in children's diseases have recognized the importance of nervous and emotional strain and their emphasis upon this phase of child development will do much to prevent nervous breakdowns in adult life.

Forcing the child mentally or physically is responsible for some damage to the nervous system. Speed tests, a part of the routine in certain schools, may stimulate a few. These same tests may unduly depress, discourage, and dishearten the developing child whose progress may be a bit slower but who in the long run may outdistance his precocious schoolmate. Occasionally, misguided mothers stimulate their children to excessive mental exertion in the hope that the child will be able to skip a grade or assume and hold leadership in his class. Every child desires to please his parents and teachers, and response on the part of the child will ofttimes be made at the expense of physical and nervous energy. Many will burn themselves out nervously.

The child is a great imitator and will follow the example of father, mother, teacher, and older children. If instances of quarreling, bickering, and strife form a part of the daily experience of the child, we may well understand the development of a like disposition. The mother or teacher with the low, quiet voice, every word meaning something, is in striking contrast with the scolding, fretful attitude that irritates, does not correct, and finally is disregarded.

We will reduce the amount of nervous instability in adults by more constant and intelligent attention to the nervous problems of the growing child.

TAKE 'EM OUT.

Mrs. B. writes: My 10 year old daughter has trouble with her breathing, especially when she sleeps. She keeps her mouth wide open and doctors want to remove her tonsils and adenoids. She has had a few abscesses in her ears within a year.

1. Is there anything you would recommend besides operating?
2. The last doctor I was to said there is something they would inject in the nose to shrink the tissues. Do you advise anything like that?
3. Do you think a change of climate would help her? She is not underweight but a poor eater.

REPLY.

1. Any procedure other than the removal of tonsils and adenoids will probably be useless. The tonsil operation is not serious in children, and in the hands of a competent specialist should result in far better health for your child.
2. The effect of this injection is not permanent.
3. No.

HEAD NOISES.

D. G. writes: Please give cause of head noises and ringing in the ears. This started during the cold months. I have no headaches and am in normal condition in every respect.

REPLY:

The difficulty may be caused by stoppage of the Eustachian tubes—those that lead from the throat to the middle ear. Keep the throat clean, and if there is no improvement after a week or two consult a competent nose and throat specialist.

COLD SORES.

Mrs. B. writes:

1. What causes frequent cold or fever sores?
2. What will prevent them?
3. My 5 year old daughter is double jointed at the knees. This makes her legs look crooked when standing still. They also sway backwards. Is there any kind of brace or special shoes that will correct this condition?

REPLY.

1. Cold sores or fever sores are known as herpes. They may be caused by some digestive upset, by fatigue, or as a result of some nervous or emotional disturbance. Fever blisters sometimes occur as the result of a wasting disease, such as pneumonia, malaria, etc.
2. Care of the diet, avoidance of constipation and of nervous or physical fatigue.
3. You should consult a good orthopedic surgeon.

PROPERTY DIVISION.

Chicago, July 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A, a father, went to a lawyer to have a will made. 1. Instead of making a will giving the property to the heirs after A's death the lawyer made out papers giving the property to the heirs then and there. No papers were signed by the sons who were given the property. Now B and C, sons, own the two story house which is half paid for. C, the only one not of age, will become of age next March. 2. May B sell his part to D, another brother, D to give B a rent receipt covering ten years, or any number of years B specifies, in payment of B's half, one flat? 3. Even if foreclosure is brought against the house, can B live out the term of his rent receipt? 4. In this transaction would C be brought into same? 5. Would a guardian have to be appointed for C? 6. Could B be his guardian or would A, the father, have to be his guardian? B is paying all C's expenses. 7. In the event B owes E a sum of money, could B give E a rent receipt for ten years to cover occupancy of one of the flats in payment of the loan? Could E remain in the flat during the term specified, regardless of foreclosure? 8. Should E marry B, the rent receipt remaining in E's maiden name, would the circumstances be the same as if she were single? 9. There is no designation as to flats. The house is merely in the name of the two sons.

L. G.

1. It does not seem likely that the lawyer would have done this on his own initiative. We cannot advise to advantage without knowing who made the suggestion.
2. In general, any owner of an undivided share in real estate can sell his share.
3. A party who pays rent in advance gets no greater rights than the party to whom the payment was made. If the landlord held subject to a mortgage, then the tenant may be put out.
4. You have given us no facts as to the mortgage. If C is not a party to the mortgage and the mortgage is a lien only on the other share, then we see no reason why C should be put into the proceedings.
5. Depends upon whether he is a minor and on whether he is concerned in the proceedings.
6. Since B might have an adverse interest, it would seem preferable to name A.
7. See 3.
8. Yes.
9. You have not made the facts clear enough for us to advise you with any confidence. We suggest that you go over the situation in a personal interview with an attorney. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

PURCHASE CONTRACT.

Chicago, July 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—About four weeks ago my car was [1] lawfully repossessed by a local finance company. The case has gone through [2] regular court procedure. 3. I was under the impression that the finance company must notify me before they dispose of the car. Now that I am ready to make back payments and get my car back, I am informed that the car is sold. 4. Is there any legal action I can take to recover my car or my equity in it? E. M. R.

1 and 2. Your statement that the other party's proceedings had been lawful and regular amounts to saying that those proceedings are conclusive against you.

3. We cannot advise to advantage without knowing just what they did.

4. It seems probable that the wording of your contract and the steps taken by the vender are such as to bar your rights.

AUTOMOBILE REPAIRS.

Chicago, June 7.—[Friend of the Insured.]—Following the recovery of my car, which was stolen, I got an estimate for repairs from the factory branch of the automobile company which amounted to almost as much as the car was worth. The adjuster got an estimate from another repair company that was much lower. I think I am entitled to what the automobile company will allow for it on a trade-in on account of its being so badly damaged. The adjuster will not consent, but wants to have it repaired at the low cost. Can I compel him to pay the amount of the policy since I consider the car beyond satisfactory repair? B. E. D.

Automobile policies usually give the company the option of taking the damaged car at the appraised value, but there can be no abandonment of the property by the insured to the company. When a theft occurs the company may return the car to the insured if recovered before the loss has been settled, in which case the cost of all damage which occurred while the car was in the hands of the thief would be accepted and paid by the company. We believe these provisions reasonable, because they in no way lessen the responsibility of the company to pay for all actual damage, but they are intended to prevent unreasonable claimants from legally insisting that the company take the property and pay on the basis of a total loss. Regardless of the fact that you consider the car beyond repair, the adjuster is, no doubt, being governed by the report of his appraiser, whom he must rely upon in order to substantiate his payment of loss with his company.

THE DEPOSITORS' PAY.

Chicago, June 29.—During the broadcast this week by Mr. Jesse Jones, head of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, I was struck by his attempt to put the misfortunes of shareholders in closed banks above those of the depositors. He asked his hearers to remember that the shareholders had lost not only their investment but were still liable to an assessment thereon. My reeling intelligence cannot fathom Mr. Jones' reasoning. The shareholders in the closed banks were surely in business and therefore their risk of loss was compensated by the certainty of a share in the profits of the business. But depositors surely cannot be regarded as no more unfortunate than shareholders, for the former did not receive any of the possible profits which the bank earned by the use of their money.

It seems to me that deposits should under no circumstances be otherwise regarded than as trust funds and that they should be the first liability of any bank, closed or open, that they should be preferred above all other liabilities and should come before even taxes, rent, salaries, etc. No liabilities of a bank should be paid from the money of depositors, but should be met, if at all, from the profits of the bank, if any, from its capital or from the assessments of the shareholders.

Incidentally, what is happening to the 77½ per cent of deposits remaining in the maw of the closed Hyde Park-Kenwood National bank? I suppose that Mr. Jesse Jones has so much pity for the shareholders and for the so-called "preferred" creditors that he can spare none for the unfortunate depositors whose personal funds are relieving the shareholders from the necessity for further losses in meeting legal assessments on their shares. Mr. Roosevelt's "New Deal" has so far failed to establish honesty toward depositors in closed national banks.

BURNED UP.

Morton Grove, Ill., June 29.—Every morning when I look at the picture on the front page of THE TRIBUNE and see how you are slamming our good President with such pictures it just burns me up to think there is so much freedom of the press allowed. To think that people who call themselves citizens and ought to help the President make the country God's country are doing just the opposite! They don't realize that the President not only takes care of Chicago but our entire country. He has responsibility and knows how to take care of it, too, as he has proven in his short time. Wait till he has put this country back on its feet and then talk.

FROM A JEFFERSONIAN DEMOCRAT.

Chicago, June 22.—Can an administration of such highly vaunted integrity be really so honest when it deliberately tries to leave the impression that its critics are objecting to the use of brains in government? Surely real sincerity could not ignore the fact that it is not brains but the kind of brains which is objected to. The administration has chosen to select the radical scum of our universities and call it brains. Our schools are full of thousands of professors with brains who are opposed to all that this new and rotten deal stands for, with its wholesale violations of platform promises and constitutional guarantees.

If they really had brains enough to study economic history they would know that everything they offer has been tried in the past again and again and has failed. Too much government has kept Europe in poverty, and now these handpicked professors want to bring those blessings over here, and the administration and its spokesmen call it brains.

OPINIONS.

Chicago, July 4.—Edward A. Hayes, in his speech Legion day at the Fair, seems to have misinterpreted the intent of the articles referred to in the Epworth Herald. SMOKING AT THE POOL.

Chicago, June 30.—Will some one please inform the board of commissioners of the old Portage park district that this is the year 1934 and not 1834? I have never heard of any city, state, or county law which forbids women to smoke in public. Yet these blue-nosed fanatics threaten to throw any woman out of their outdoor swimming pool who even looks cross-eyed at a fag. To these evil-minded hypocrites it is a mortal sin, or you would think so, for a woman to want to smoke on their sacred beach, yet it is all right for men, boys 13 years old, and lifeguards on duty to smoke as much as they please.

Please print my name in full, as I am fairly well known out this way and some one might like to make something out of it.

CATHOLICS GIVE FIRST LIST OF INDECENT FILMS

300 Holy Name Leaders Ready for Drive.

A list of motion pictures classified by the Chicago Council Legion of Decency as [1] clean, [2] offensive, and [3] immoral was distributed last night to 300 parish presidents of the Holy Name Society of the Catholic Church at a meeting in the Catholic Youth Center, 31 East Congress street.

The list will be available as a guide in the campaign of the Catholic church against indecent films which opens tomorrow in 256 churches of the Chicago archdiocese.

Active Work Starts Sunday.

Bishop Bernard J. Sheil addressed the Holy Name men who will perform the first active duty of the campaign by enrolling at communion masses tomorrow 100,000 men as members of the Legion of Decency and an additional 100,000 men during the coming week. He announced that the campaign would be extended to the radio next week and appointed a committee to prepare a program to be broadcast.

"Durin gthe past years we have lost sight of the word 'decency' in our daily lives," Bishop Sheil said. "Our sensibilities are so chilled that we now fail to appreciate the dignity of the word. You men all realize that your children and the children of this city have the God-given right to be safeguarded from anything which might jeopardize their future happiness.

Campaign Must Not Fail.

"Are you going to stand by and allow a group of men, simply to fill their own pockets, to take away the innocence of childhood? If we fail in this campaign decency will go into the discard."

The women of the Catholic church will be enrolled under the direction of the Council of Catholic Women later as the second step in the campaign, and the third step will be the Catholic Youth Organization. In the fall, according to the fourfold plan, the children in the parochial schools will become Legion members.

CATHOLIC YOUTH WARNED AGAINST PAID DESTROYERS

Sodality of Our Lady Hears Bishop Sheil.

In the opening address before the biennial convention of the Sodality of Our Lady at the Palmer house yesterday the Rt. Rev. Bernard J. Sheil, auxiliary bishop of Chicago, called on the 500 young delegates present to oppose new subversive influences which, he declared, are undermining the youth of the land. He charged atheistic and communistic propaganda is being spread among the young men and women of the country by paid organizers.

Those attending represent sodalities of 75 Catholic universities and colleges in the United States. Another group, representing the high schools, is to assemble next Friday for a three day session. In all, 2,000 sodalities, with a total membership of 18,000 young men and women, will have delegations attending the conferences, which are being held to discuss the problems of the Catholic youth. The high school delegates will total 1,500, it was stated.

Spread Catholic Principles.

Chairman of the conferences is the Rev. Daniel J. Lord, S. J., of St. Louis. Father Lord is the national organizer of the Sodality of Our Lady. The organization, the purpose of which is to develop and spread Catholic principles in the personal and social life of youth, originated 350 years ago in Italy.

In his address Bishop Sheil said in 1933 at least $1,000,000 was spent in disseminating adverse propaganda on religion and on the American form of government among girls and boys of high school and college age. There were, he declared, 6,000 paid speakers and 37,000 paid organizers carrying on that "systemized method of destruction" of the spiritual and patriotic morals of the young.

Cites Boy Scout Losses.

"Last year," he declared, "the Boy Scouts alone lost 127,000 members, a great many of them entering the Young Pioneers, a radical organization."

Tonight the delegates will take up as subjects of discussion matters dealing with social and public entertainments and amusements. It was indicated the discussion will center on the recent movement of the Catholic church against indecent moving pictures.

Tomorrow the conference will take up the matters of government, war and peace, the race questions, morals, and marriage.

BISHOP DEMANDS OUSTER OF HAYS AS CINEMA CZAR

Fall River, Mass., July 6.—(AP)—Bishop James E. Cassidy, apostolic administrator of the Fall River Catholic diocese, today demanded the resignation of Will Hays as "movie czar."

"As a corrector of uncleanness and a friend and advocate of cleanliness in the movie industry, Mr. Hays has been false to the trust imposed on him," Bishop Cassidy said, in a statement. "He has been a co-betrayer with the movie industry of the sacred rights of parents to protection of the morals of their children.

"Personally I have no hesitation in saying publicly through the press that the instant removal of Mr. Hays would be a condition sine qua non of any understanding or agreement between the contenders for cleanliness, Christian and non-Christian and the providors and conductors and producers of past and present salaciousness. Kid gloves may cover and conceal but they do not cleanse dirty hands."

LOGAN GRIDLEY'S WIDOW DIVORCES MISSING PASTOR

Mrs. Emily Gridley Kuhns was granted a divorce yesterday by Judge Frank Shepherd of the Kane county Circuit court at Geneva, from the Rev. John Elliott Kuhns, former pastor of the Trinity Episcopal church there on a desertion charge.

Mrs. Kuhns was the widow of Logan Gridley, Chicago financier and sportsman, who was killed by a train at the Geneva Golf club crossing three years ago. Early in 1932 she married the Rev. M. Kuhns, and, she testified yesterday, he left her less than a year after the wedding.

She told the court that she did not know his whereabouts. Mrs. Kuhns was reported to have inherited $300,- [illegible]

UMPIRE FOR CLEAN MOVIES IS SELECTED BY FILM PRODUCERS

Hollywood, Cal., July 6.—(AP)—The motion picture industry's most important move toward self-regulation, brought on directly as a result of the numerous campaigns for "cleaning up" the movies, was announced today by Joseph I. Breen, assistant to Will H. Hays of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors association.

Directors of the Hays organization recently in New York agreed that no member would exhibit any picture which violates the tenets of the production code. To insure this, Breen has been appointed "umpire" to pass on all pictures. Beginning July 15, pictures made by all major producers must obtain a clean bill of health before they can be put on the market.

As each picture is passed, Breen, as code administrator, will place a "subtitle" following the main title, declaring that the picture has met requirements of the code.

He declared unofficially he believes that when the new production code administration is in effect, church people, women's groups, and other unofficial censors will find no major fault with motion pictures.

BRIDGE EXPERT IN A HUFF OVER 'SLAM' WITH CHAIR

R. J. Leibenderfer, a New York lawyer, is on his way to Chicago to see what, if anything, can be done to assuage the injured dignities of eleven Manhattan bridge experts, including Waldemar von Zedtwitz, a former German baron.

The New Yorkers, it appears, were gathered on the beach walk of the Edgewater Beach hotel last Sunday morning, holding a post mortem session on a bridge tournament which had just ended. Suddenly, according to Von Zedtwitz, a hotel employé appeared on the scene and ordered them to scat. They refused, and a few minutes later, the ex-baron declares, five other men appeared, two of them in the uniforms of hotel policemen.

One of the policemen allegedly jerked a chair from under Von Zedtwitz. The other yanked two other bridge experts, L. H. Watson and E. J. Hymes Jr., from their chairs. The result was the post mortem conference broke up, and the offended experts checked out to another hotel.

According to the management of the Edgewater Beach hotel no rough tactics were employed. The management declared the New Yorkers by loud talking had annoyed other guests. Furthermore, the management said, the experts were on the beach walk after hours. Anyhow, Leibenderfer, the New York lawyer, is on his way here to see if the experts have a cause for legal action.

Store Owner Shot Down by Bandits Is Dead

Fred J. Rennhak, 58 years old, 5335 Laflin street, died in the Evangelical hospital yesterday of bullet wounds suffered during an attempted robbery of his meat market June 29. Two robbers entered the store and threatened Rennhak's wife, Dora, and their son, Fred Jr. Rennhak, who had been asleep, appeared with an ice pick and was shot down.

TEACHERS WILL SEEK MORE U. S. AID FOR SCHOOLS

Plan to Ask Congress for 500 Millions.

Washington, D. C., July 6.—(AP)—Teachers of the United States today said they had as much right to talk as anyone else and promptly spoke out in praise of some Roosevelt policies and criticism of others.

The criticism had to do with federal funds for schools. Applause was given three policies advocated by the President—slum clearance, better housing and unemployment insurance.

Seeks More Aid.

Speakers for the National Education association said the federal government hadn't gone far enough along the path of school aid. The association decided to seek at least $500,000,000 of federal funds from the next congress, to be distributed among the public schools according to the number of students in regular attendance and the lack of other tax resources.

The teachers indicated they had no intention of stopping with the adoption of resolutions in the drive for more school money.

After a speech by Robert O. Moore, secretary of the Illinois State Teachers' association, a plan was adopted for nation wide massmeetings Nov. 5 to 11 to demonstrate the public's attitude.

Scores "Business Fascism."

Moore said he could prove that "big business Fascism" or "Nazism of the entrenched interests" controled the political parties and state government of Illinois and that they had adopted "the most ruthless methods in their attacks upon public education."

Moore assailed without mentioning his name a railroad president who formerly headed the citizens' committee of Chicago and made the following reference to former Vice President Dawes:

"Then down there also we have a big banker, a part of this movement, a former vice president, a very active official of the Reconstruction Finance corporation who got a loan of $90,000,000 from the federal government to prop up his tottering financial throne.

"But when the teachers went to him to get him to purchase some tax warants and use his influence to get the banks to purchase tax warants, the most emphatic expression they could get from him was, 'To hell with the trouble makers!'"

The association's 1935 convention was awarded to Denver, Colo.

RUSSIA OBSERVES 11TH BIRTHDAY OF CONSTITUTION

MOSCOW, July 6.—(AP)—The eleventh anniversary of the adoption of a constitution for soviet Russia was celebrated today throughout the country.

President Kalinin issued a statement saying the constitution, based on a dictatorship of the proletariat, has three purposes: Suppression of the bourgeoisie, liquidation of capitalism, and the construction of socialism.

He declared these aims had been adhered to and their validity proven by the great advances made under Dictator Stalin, who was the creator of the constitution.

ATTORNEYS PLAN LEGAL DETAILS OF SCHOOL LOAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 6.—[Special.]—Legal details incident to Chicago's prospective application for a 25 million dollar RFC loan to pay teachers' back salaries were reported to have been worked out satisfactory today by counsel for the finance corporation and Richard Folsom, attorney for the Chicago board of education.

Accompanied by Senator James Hamilton Lewis [Dem., Ill.], Mr. Folsom paid a lengthy visit to Stanley Reed, general counsel for the finance corporation. The Chicagoans discussed with Mr. Reed and his assistants, the legal requirements which must be met before the loan can be approved.

Senator Lewis said the purpose of today's conference was to acquaint the RFC officials with the exact relationship between the Chicago board of education and the city council. This information, it was understood, was asked by Mr. Reed to determine whether the board of education has authority under the law to issue bonds, pledge security, and borrow money.

Await Jones' Return.

Although Mr. Folsom declared it unlikely that action on the Chicago request would be forthcoming within the next fortnight, it was understood that at least a portion of the suggested 25 millions may be advanced to the school board next week. Whether this is done, it was said, depends largely on whether Jesse Jones, RFC chairman, returns to Washington on Monday or on Wednesday.

There were indications, following today's conference between Senator Lewis, the school board lawyer, and the RFC legal counsel, that a part of the 25 million dollars to be requested by the city may be advanced in instalments. Mr. Folsom, however, scouted the suggestion that a piecemeal distribution of the fund will be made, insisting that the money probably will be advanced in a lump sum.

Chairman Jones of the RFC, who was absent from the city today, is expected to return not later than Wednesday. If legal points are settled by that time, it will be up to the chairman to decide how the money shall be turned over to the city.

To Send Expert.

The RFC, it was learned, is preparing to send a government expert to Chicago to appraise the value of the real estate which the school board intends to offer as collateral for the 25 million dollar loan. Detailed figures on the value of the property, compiled by the school board, have already been submitted. Mr. Folsom said, but they must be checked by the RFC appraiser.

ELGIN BEAR, ILL OF HIS RIOTOUS LIVING, IS KILLED

A 36 year diet of peanuts, popcorn, and candy supplied by children of Elgin finally proved too much for Blackie, the black bear at the Lord's park zoo, which once performed as a mascot for the Chicago Cubs. Blackie's health was undermined by the carnival diet, and yesterday officials of the zoo had him put to death.

The bear was presented to the city of Elgin in 1898 by the late Cy Devry. Lincoln park zoo superintendent, and he came to be the patriarch and public favorite of the animal inmates at Lord's park. As a cub in Lincoln park, he had often been taken out to Cubs' park to perform for the baseball fans.

Police Lieutenant Frank Enger, assigned to shoot Blackie as an act of mercy, said the task was the most difficult police chore he ever had to perform.

POLICE ORDER MUFFLERS ON MOTORCYCLES

Police Commissioner James P. Allman said yesterday he would issue orders to his men to stop motorcyclists from roaring about the streets without mufflers or with cutouts open.

When it was pointed out that the uniform trafic code, adopted July 11, 1931, provides that every motor vehicle must be equipped with a muffler, Commissioner Allman said:

"Motorcycles used by the city have mufflers and no cutouts. Neither have they sirens. I shall send word to our trafic police to stop all motorcycle riders found violating the law and warn them that they must comply with the code or be arrested."

WEALTHY PEDDLER EVICTS SON-IN-LAW'S FAMILY FROM HOME

New York, July 6.—[Special.]—Mrs. Sarah Moutal, 38, and her five daughters camped on the sidewalk in front of 807 Powell street, Brooklyn, today while some 200 neighbors, mostly women, joined with Mrs. Moutal in denouncing her father, Isaac Levy, 70, who owns the house.

A city marshal and three huskies carried out all the Moutal household goods and piled them on the walk under an eviction order obtained by Levy.

"My father has plenty of money," said Mrs. Moutal, whose husband gets $10 a week from the home relief bureau. "He goes around peddling, but he is a very rich man."

"My mother died early in April," Mrs. Moutal related. "On her deathbed, in the presence of my father and my brother Solomon she said, 'I want my daughter to have that house.

"So after the funeral we moved in and my father gave me the key. Then he came back in a few hours and said he had changed his mind. 'Get out of here,' he said, 'this is my house.'"

LOSER IN BREACH OF PROMISE SUIT FREED FROM JAIL

Ruling that Maurice E. Rapport, an unemployed diamond cutter, was not guilty of malice in failing to fulfill his promise to marry Mrs. Marie O'Connell, Judge J. G. Van Keuren of Pinckneyville, sitting in the Cook County court, yesterday ordered Rapport's release from the county jail. Rapport, who is 52 years old and lives at 4538 Woodlawn avenue, had spent nine days in jail because of failure to pay a $2,000 judgment obtained by Mrs. O'Connell.

Mrs. O'Connell, who lives at 6204 South Park avenue, is a divorcée and grandmother. She won a default judgment before Judge Paul McWilliams and a jury in the Superior court several weeks ago. The judgment, according to her attorney, Robert Terry, colored, contained a malice count on which Rapport could be imprisoned for his failure to pay.

Claims to Be Insolvent.

Attorney A. Henry Goldstein, representing Rapport, filed a petition before Judge Van Keuren asking that his client be declared an insolvent debtor and be released from jail.

Attorneys Herbert M. Wetzel and Eugene P. Megan, associated with Attorney Goldstein, argued that the declaration of Mrs. O'Connell's suit had not clearly shown a malice count. Judge Van Keuren held that in two of the three counts of the suit, malice was not alleged, and that in the third count this allegation was insufficient to make it the gist of the action. The jury, in returning the verdict against Rapport, had not clearly stated on which count it found him guilty, the judge said.

Glad to Be Out of Jail.

Rapport was questioned by Attorney Terry, who tried to show that he had assets sufficient to satisfy the judgment. This was denied by Rapport, who listed only a few personal effects as assets.

"I'm glad to be out of jail," Rapport said, "but I'd certainly have stayed there the full six months rather than marry Mrs. O'Connell."

Mrs. O'Connell, a plump middle aged woman, was a spectator during the hearing. She never took her eyes from Rapport until he was discharged and then only to exchange a smile with a friend who accompanied her.

MASKED GUNMEN IN TWO QUICK RAIDS GET $500

Four masked gunmen conducted two robberies in quick succession yesterday, obtaining $500 in cash and $687 in checks. One of the robbers was wounded when a bullet fired into the floor to terrorize the victims ricocheted and struck him in the leg.

Riding in a blue sedan without a license the men drove up to the Kayo Beverage Distributing company at 1943 Walnut street. There they forced the manager, Thomas B. Wolch, and two stenographers to lie on the floor of the stock room. They fled with $350 cash and $687 in checks from the cash drawer.

Shortly afterward the band ran into the office of the Bernard Brothers Cartage company at 2032 Belmont avenue. When 10 truck drivers and their helpers were slow in obeying an order to lie on the floor the leader fired his revolver. One of his companions, struck by the ricocheting bullet, hopped around on one foot, while the leader and his other confederate took $150 from the safe. Then all three got into their car and fled.

CONFESSES NEW ARSON PLOTS; 4 SUSPECTS HELD

Four suspects in a new arson ring—the second uncovered by the state's attorney's staf within recent weeks—were in custody yesterday following a confession by Morris Tepper, proprietor of the Tepper Press, 1307 West Roosevelt road.

Admitting a $3,800 insurance plot, Tepper confessed to Assistant State's Attorneys Marshall Kearney and Gordon Nash that an apparently incendiary fire in the business place of an acquaintance led him to get in contact with the ring. Tepper's printing shop was burned Jan. 18, 1933.

Asked Advice on Fire.

The printing shop owner, who lives at 1445 South Spaulding avenue, told Kearney and Nash that business was poor, and that he went to William Kamin, telling him he suspected that a fire at Kamin's place of business was incendiary. He then asked for instructions on how to meet the arson band.

Without further ado Kamin directed him to his brother, Nathan, Tepper asserted. Nathan agreed to handle the job for 10 per cent of the insurance, it is alleged.

"But there are people living upstairs, and that will be a problem," Tepper is alleged to have told Nathan Kamin, according to the investigators. To this Nathan made reply, "Leave it to me—don't I know my business?" the printer is said to have related in the confession. However, it was apparently only chance that prevented the fire from taking a toll of life, investigators said.

Families Barely Escape.

Mrs. Lillian Norris and her newly born baby were on the third floor of the building, as were another child and the mother of Mrs. Norris. On the second floor, directly over the printing shop, were the family of Alex Rash, including two children. Awakened at about 2 o'clock in the morning, they barely managed to escape down the staircase already afire at the bottom.

Tepper said he had some difficulty in collecting, and incurred about $1,000 expense in doing so. Of the remaining $2,800 he paid Nathan Kamin $280, he is said to have confessed.

Wasserman, according to the prosecutors, sold the insurance to Tepper on a 60 day basis, so that he did not pay the premium until after the fire. Before the expiration of the 60 day period Wasserman called on him and notified him he would either have to "pay the premium or have the fire." Prosecutor Nash declared. The fire occurred on the last day.

Probe Four Kamin Fires.

Mr. Nash said there have been four fires on property of the Kamin family within the last four years, and that each time insurance was collected. A sweeping inquiry is planned.

The worst of these fires was at 806 South Ashland boulevard, where Nathan Kamin has a boarding house which was being used by twenty-two youths as a fraternity house, according to Mr. Nash. About $6,000 insurance was collected for this property, he said.

Tepper, after signing an immunity waiver, testified before the grand jury. Because certain witnesses were not present the case was put over until Monday, when several indictments will be returned, state's attorney's investigators believe.

TIRES PUNCTURED ON HUNDRED CARS IN ROGERS PARK

Automobile vandals invaded Rogers Park Thursday night, and yesterday morning residents of apartment houses in the 7600 block on Eastlake terrace and Rogers avenue, near the lake, found the tires of more than 100 automobiles slit or punctured with ice picks.

For a long time automobile owners have made it a practice to keep their cars parked on these little traveled streets over night. Only one suspect was arrested—Edward Plunkett of 943 Elmwood avenue, Evanston, who was found sleeping in one of the cars.

He denied knowledge of the vandalism.

J. J. Cavanagh, general manager of the Chicago Motor club, announced his organization has offered $200 reward for the arrest and conviction of persons wilfully destroying automobile tires of the club's members.

New York Fans Will Be Guests at Arlington

Few Other Social Events on Day's Calendar.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE summer doldrums are here, without a doubt, for this is the first week-end in many a week that hasn't been filled with social events. This doesn't mean, however, that society will have any trouble in amusing itself for there always is plenty to do with the racing season at Arlington in full swing and the Fair offering all sorts of interesting entertainment, not to mention the informal and delightful ways of passing the time that are possible at the country clubs and in hospitable summer homes.

Several well known racing fans are coming from New York for the program at Arlington this afternoon, including Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, Mr. and Mrs. Morton L. Schwartz, Mr. and Mrs. A. Charles Schwartz, and Mr. and Mrs. William R. Coe, so the Post and Paddock club is sure to be a cosmopolitan and interesting place this afternoon.

A Sunday afternoon event that always attracts a good crowd to Hinsdale is the polo at Oak Brook. Every Sunday at 3:30 o'clock there is a game, some more exciting than others of course, but all of interest to those who enjoy polo. Tomorrow the first and second Oak Brook teams are playing, which means that Paul Butler, Prentice Porter, George Bates, and Lieut. William Kirby will seek to drive balls through the defense of Jacob Shaffer, Charles S. Winston, John Bowers, and John Armstrong.

Next week Oak Brook will play Fort Sheridan, which by the way isn't having regular Sunday polo this summer because of the absence of Maj. C. C. Smith and Capt. C. E. Davis, two of the army stars who are playing on Long Island. The Fort Sheridan team, however, is headed this year by that noted horseman, Maj. H. D. Chamberlain, and is making a good showing in all the games in which it plays, with Maj. Chamberlain "riding like a field," so a polo enthusiast tells us.

Ingersoll Wedding Will Be Today.

This, the first Saturday in July, will have but one wedding of social interest, and that is taking place in Lake Forest and is to be small. At 4:30 o'clock in the home of her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hosmer Morse, Miss Mary Theresa Ingersoll, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Ingersoll of Beloit, Wis., will become the bride of Euclid Madison Covington of New York. The ceremony will be read by the Rev. Edward Dwight Eaton, former head of Beloit college, who officiated at the marriage ceremony of Mr. and Mrs. Morse thirty-four years ago in the chapel of Beloit college.

Miss Charlotte Ingersoll will be maid of honor for her sister, and the bridesmaids will be the bride's cousins, Mrs. William Covington of Seattle, whose husband is a cousin of the bridegroom, and the Baroness Wolfgang Beck von Peccoz of Munich, both daughters of the Morses. The bridegroom's brother-in-law, Herbert Jenks of Evanston, will serve as best man and ushering will be Charles H. Morse Jr., and Roy Walholm.

The ceremony will be witnessed by the families and a few close friends, and a buffet supper will be served later. Following a wedding trip to the White mountains, Mr. Covington and his bride will be at home in New York. Mrs. William Covington will return to Seattle tomorrow, and the Baroness von Peccoz is leaving shortly to sail the middle of the month for Germany.

Harriet Monroe to Go to China.

Miss Harriet Monroe, who is spending the summer in town with occasional visits to her brother, William S. Monroe, and his family, in Wayne, is planning to leave on Aug. 20 for a visit with her sister, Mrs. William J. Calhoun, in Peiping, China.

Miss Monroe and Miss Joanna Fortune, who is busy this summer remodeling the cottage she purchased recently in Wequetonsing, will sail on Aug. 25 from Vancouver and they expect to be back in Chicago for the Monroes' annual New Year's day reception. The information that Mrs. Calhoun has rented her old temple-house to the John Alden Carpenters for next winter is incorrect for no such arrangement has been made, although the Carpenters may have it next spring. They plan to go to China in the early winter.

Mrs. Robert H. McCreary, who moved to New York last spring, is in town for a few days, seeing relatives and friends and the Fair. Today she is going to Lake Forest to spend the week-end with Mrs. Jay Morse Ely and her family, and the Robert N. McCrearys, and on Monday she will return to New York.

Young Miss Caryl Ely, who is to be a debutante of the coming season, is certain to be one of the most popular next year for she is unusually charming and attractive. She is just at home from a round of visits in the east. Her mother plans to present her at a tea in Lake Forest in September and during the Christmas holidays her paternal grandmother, Mrs. C. Morse Ely, will give a ball for her.

Miss Sylvia Peter Home from France.

Miss Sylvia Peter, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Peter of Lake Forest, arrived at home on Tuesday from a year at school in Cannes, France. Mr. and Mrs. Peter went to New York to meet her. Miss Peter will go to Chatham Hall in Virginia next winter.

Mrs. Phillip Reed motored from her summer place at Marion, Mass., to Wianno yesterday to assist at the sale the Chicago Woman's Exchange held

A Debutante of Next Season

Miss Durie Malcolm, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Malcolm, will make her debut at a tea in the Malcolms' Lake Forest home on Saturday, Sept. 8. She was graduated from Chatham Hall in Virginia last spring. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

YOU'LL probably be glad to know that the hi-de-ho boys are back, after several days disappearance, at the river taxi line stations at the foot of the Michigan avenue bridge. They are the Negro lads who, with their shuffling and pantomime, add considerable local color to the vicinity. They do a kind of levee shuffle, and one of their pantomimes the crowds taking the river taxies to A Century of Progress like best is to "Lazy Bones." The lads themselves do not do the singing—it's really a gramaphone record—used with loud speakers, but they go through lip motions, and execute a lazybones skit.

Hi-de-ho—Mother—Architects—Hospitality—Retort.

The reason they were chased away for a few days was because 60 tenants of the Medinah club of Chicago complained of the noise, and said they couldn't sleep. It took three days for the police to keep the hi-de-ho boys away, but when they were gone, they were missed by the customers and there was a howl about it. Finally the Medinah club relented, and a compromise was effected. The horns are directed in the opposite direction from the club, and they stop at 10:30 p. m.

ARCHITECT SAM MARX'S latest story is about a fellow architect who died and passed on to the next life. He found there a roomful of mournful architects, starving, although there was a table in the room with food on it. Each architect had one arm with a long spoon strapped to it, but they were not able to get food into their mouths. He wandered into the next room and found bankers in the same situation, except that the bankers were feeding each other. So he went back to the room of the hungry architects to give them the tip.

"Why don't you each feed the fellow next to you?" he suggested.

"What! Feed that So-and-So!" chorused the architects.

(Of course that's a story in which you can substitute your most unfavorable profession for architects.)

VICTOR HAMMER and Prince Mikhail Goundoroff were co-hosts at a cocktail party, and each arriving guest went through the little ceremony that is an ancient form of Russian hospitality. They ate tiny squares of black bread sprinkled with salt, and it was washed down with vodka. The salt receptacle, in the center of an antique silver tray that was once part of the royal treasure of Russia, was of silver gilt, and its lid was adorned with jewels. And it was indeed an anachronism, to be on the Drake terrace, with a view of Lake Michigan and the beach, eating the black bread and salt of Russia's ancient custom from the silver of a past dynasty.

HERBERT HOAGLAND of Ravinia is a Knight of Prince Danilo—probably the only one in the United States, though there are a number in Europe. It was an honor conferred upon him by Queen Milena of Montenegro just after the war, for service to her country. Mr. Hoagland—Sir Herbert under the order—took a message from Italy through the Siberian lines to the general of the tiny Montenegran army saying the minister of foreign affairs who was in America at the time, had failed to raise the necessary money for his country's needs. Mr. Hoagland was in Italy at the time and so was Queen Milena, who is the daughter of the queen of Italy. Being in the employ of allied countries he was in a position to move about without questions.

The decoration of the order of the Knights of Prince Danilo is a tiny rosette, and for years street car conductors, bartenders, barbers, and others have asked him, "Is that for the world war?" The other morning when a train guard inquired, pointing to the rosette, "Is that from the revolution?" it was too much for Mr. Hoagland's disposition.

"No," he snapped. "It's from the Brain Trust."

Tribune's Camp Paper Tells of Gay Activities

The first issue of Hill-Air-Ious, summer publication of Camp Algonquin, reached THE TRIBUNE'S Camp Algonquin reporter yesterday bearing tidings of happy activity among the needy mothers and children whose vacations TRIBUNE readers help to finance.

From the columns of this new publication a reader gleans that the first stunt night was a success, that there was to be "An Evening in Ireland" last Saturday night; that a Tri-Arts club has been organized, that the Wells cottage girls have adopted a code by which they sing themselves to sleep at night, and other events equally important to 500 vacationers in the green shingled cottages and dormitories of the Fox river camp.

Because it gives a picture of the vacation fun the mothers are having while their children are being taken care of by counselors the following is reprinted. A few days ago these mothers were washing and scrubbing and tending large families of youngsters in their small, hot flats in congested Chicago neighborhoods, but listen to this:

"The first show of the season played to a full house and an enthusiastic one. The mothers presented a stunt: 'Station B-U-N-K,' in which they 'broadcast' songs, speeches, and with the aid of 'television' a dance number. A feature of the mothers' program was a song by Mrs. Ethel Smith and her two small daughters. The song was one of Mrs. Smith's own compositions."

Contributions are needed to continue giving mothers vacations at Camp Algonquin. Hundreds more have been promised their outings and are already making plans, but little more than $400 has been received to finance their vacations. Readers should send their gifts to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE, Tribune Tower.

Style Experts Form Fashion Group in City

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

Ranged chummily around a luncheon table in a private dining room of the Palmer House yesterday, a score of women holding strategic positions with important Chicago firms celebrated the organization here of the Fashion Group by honoring one of its founders, Mrs. June Hamilton Rhodes of New York. What the significance of the group is and how it will function was the subject of remarks by the guest of honor, one of the foremost promotionists of the country.

Interchange of authentic information on style trends in every field from velvets and satins to steel railway coaches, from Paris to San Francisco, and the coördination of fashion to prevent waste, are the major aims of the association. Yesterday's assembly included stylists in both fabrics and metals, each member present having served prominently for a minimum of three years in some phase of fashion activities.

"I firmly believe," Mrs. Rhodes stated, "that this organization can be the most important in the world. There is no doubt what tremendous savings could be effected in manufacturing products if we coöperate as women in our particular positions can do.

"Here's an instance of what happens. Buyers of accessories, knowing that blue will be a favorite color at the start of a season, come into town and buy pocketbooks in a certain shade of blue. Then they start exploring to find belts, or gloves, or neckwear, or any of the other articles of the ensemble, in the same color. Each manufacturer has something in blue—but no two shades are alike.

"Now if the Fashion Group goes over the color chart and decides on one tint as the official blue, manufacturers can make up their various products in that shade and rest assured that the buyers will save both time and money when ordering their stocks, because that is one color they will be certain they can find in any field.

"This coördination cannot fail to avert a great deal of waste—but it is only one phase of the usefulness of the organization. Members of this group know the capable individuals in lines related to their own work. They can be trusted to recommend and to promote such talent. The exchange of style information—short of the trade secrets of their own firms—is likewise invaluable both to each other and to the whole field of business."

Membership in the Fashion Group is by invitation only, to individuals who have achieved recognition in their own lines. There will be no membership drives, according to Mrs. Ford Carter, who is in charge of the local organization and officiated as toastmistress—since the qualifications necessary will keep the membership restricted.

Exhibits of various types will probably be held by the group later, and authorities on fashion topics will be invited to address its luncheon meetings. It is exclusively a feminine organization.

Two More Bishops Will Talk at Camp Meeting Tomorrow

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Members of the Des Plaines Methodist camp meeting are viewing a virtual procession of bishops of their church during the 1934 diamond jubilee sessions. Tomorrow two more members of the episcopate will appear on the program which members say is carrying the high standard of the programs to a new level.

Tomorrow's bishops will be Dr. Charles L. Mead of Kansas City, Mo., and Dr. J. Ralph Magee of St. Paul, Minn. Bishop Mead will preach at the morning service and Bishop Magee at 2:30. Members of the Euclid Avenue Methodist church, Oak Park, will present a historical pageant as one of the closing events of the jubilee sessions. The pageant, "A Daughter of the Dawn," portrays the part women have played in the early history of American Methodism.

While attention of the camp members will center on the annual business meeting Monday, that day also will be Preachers' day, when Methodist ministers will hold their regular session at Des Plaines.

Good Morning!

Though titled "Laughing Boy," this film is more the story of Slim Girl, who loved Laughing Boy.

Poor Slim Girl—known in San Palos as Lily! Too bad, too good; too hard, too soft; too wise, too ignorant . . . ! Two people, Slim Girl and Lily. The former loves and marries an idealistic young Navajo Indian. The latter lives in a house by the railroad tracks in San Palos and the rent is paid by a white man.

Laughing Boy and Slim Girl meet at a yearly Indian Sing Dance. Laughing Boy has come from the north to attend the festivities in place of his father, who had thought the boy needed the experience.

The naïve young red man falls into the clutches of Slim Girl, despised by her own people because of her "white man ways." And something fine and clean in Slim Girl makes her repent her seduction of the youth, marry him, and go with him to become one of his people.

But Navajo ways are no longer the ways of the bride and she and the old folks don't get along. And never will, Slim Girl knows. She concludes that she can do more for Laughing Boy by becoming a "trader" in San Palos and providing him with money to buy sheep, than by staying with him all the time and trying to conform to the customs of the reservation.

So she persuades her trusting husband to let her make long, extended stays in San Palos. Here she returns to her white lover and from him takes money with which Laughing Boy, all unwitting of how it is made, buys himself sheep and cattle. . . .

But he attends a Fourth of July celebration in San Palos—and there walks in upon the truth. . . . With an arrow, meant for the white man, in her heart Lily whispers how it all happened and makes her husband understand. . . .

The picture is really Lupe Velez! She dominates most of the scenes, playing ably and with considerable fire. Ramon Novarro makes—just a cute little Indian. William Davidson is rough hewn as the white lover. Most of the supporting rôles are stolically played by Indians.

After this week the Oriental will—unless a new decision is reached—"show only second run pictures of merit."

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Recipe for longer and more lustrous lashes: Brush a good eyelash grower in every night.

The woman who didn't get much of a break in the way of eyelashes shouldn't despair. As a last resort she can always, for special occasions, skip to the beauty shop and have some long and lustrous ones glued on. And if she'll undertake some religious care of those she has she can do herself and her lashes a lot of good.

It's merely a matter of getting the eyelash-grower habit. There are such things, you know, and they're great helps to glamor. One of our favorites is colorless and odorless and unquestionably pure. Some women with sensitive eyes will prefer this because with it they run no possible risk of irritation. We're not inferring here that the others are unsafe; they're not. But we find women increasingly [and wisely] careful about cosmetics that might get into the eyes. If you're of the take-no-chances school you'll like this one.

It's surprising that more women don't use an eyelash grower religiously, just as an item of grooming. Using one every night is particularly beneficial to the woman who wears mascara day in and day out. The one we like so well is simple to use; you simply scoop up a tiny bit on the finger and brush the upper lashes upward, the lower ones downward. If you've been disconcerted lately by finding an occasional lash on your cheek you'd better use it generously. It's to be left on overnight.

Rouge Must Be Placed High Up on the Cheeks

BY ANTOINETE DONNELLY.

We're not opposed to rouge. On the contrary, we feel that, when properly applied, it adds to the appearance. The commonest mistake in rouge application would be rectified by following this one piece of advice: Wear your rouge high. Women add more years by centering the rouge too far down on the cheeks than through any other makeup impropriety. Not only are years tacked on, but a heavy joweled, darkish shadowed effect is gained. Invariably it is the woman who lays on the rouge too far down who uses a too heavy purplish tone. The orange tones are just as destructive if they're set low and heavily applied. Better use no rouge at all and let the lipstick and powder do the work than not to apply the rouge high and with a light deft touch.

Young or old, wear the rouge high. If not on the cheek bones, then just enough under to touch the lower bone edge. And draw the color back toward the hairline. If the face is very thin and cheek hollows are marked, don't wear rouge at all. And powder on this type of face should be so indistinct as hardly to be detected at all.

It is simply amazing how rouge wrongly applied will pull the face down and add years. The broad, heavy face, for instance, is coarsened appreciably with thickly applied rouge. Better, with this type, too, either to lay off rouge entirely or put it on so lightly it isn't suspected. The trend is to try for a flowerlike effect, a nature rouged complexion. It is a good time to experiment with little or no cheek rouge at all. Of course, I'm speaking more for the older woman. She must handle with care that cheek area when applying rouge.

For practice at rouge placing I think the paste rouge over a cream base the better working material. You can use the knowledge later with the powder or liquid rouge. Dry rouge should be used after the powder has been applied. You may tone the coloring down with a second rubbing with the puff.

Expert Selects Style Favorites of Week-End

White Costume Jewelry Heads List.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Week-end winners. White costume jewelry at its best—startling white clips, bracelets two inches wide, multistrand necklaces and the new tiny white bands made into chest pins. The hands remind you of old fashioned trinkets made in the same way.

White batiste nightgowns, just as cool looking as a pineapple ice, made of crisp white batiste, trimmed with net bands and accented with scarlet or bright blue shoestring straps over the shoulder line. The price tags will leave you breathless, they are so low!

Imported stuff from France. New milky white agate costume jewelry—stunning contrasts for dull black crêpe afternoon dresses. Nine strand clasp bracelets, multistrand necklaces and clips, or pins that look like fringe. Combined with silver metal, these alluring new pieces are probably just what you have been looking for to wear with dark street clothes.

Evening capes that will bring out the circus woman in you. . . . Gay, glittering things made of fringed cellophane that reach the waistline. They come in spectacular colors such as kingfisher blue, emerald green, scarlet, iridescent black, and silvery shimmering gray. Positive knockout affairs for the younger set, though a bit trying for the conservative.

If you can't resist capes, try out the latest arrivals made of high colored rubber for a bright lining to an otherwise cloudy day. The white models are most effective for summer showers, but the newer onion skin capes are undoubtedly the best of the showings. A lovely shade of mauve, aquamarine blue and other street colors are available.

New black satin evening ensembles achieve an eye filling splendor with "tops" or short sleeved coat-jackets of gossamer thin white mousseline de soie. The black gleams through the white in a most fascinating way. It's quite an exciting manner of achieving a cool summer contrast with these smart black satin clothes.

THE WRONG MAN

BY MAY EDGINTON

SYNOPSIS.

Cara Follette, only daughter of a Canadian business man, anticipates becoming his father's partner. While traveling in Europe she meets Jerry Flint, a poor young singer. She takes him to Toronto, where she can get him auditions impossible for him to gain abroad. Benjamin Follette and his wife, Anny, had grown apart in the years he was busy becoming successful. Now Follette is about to lose his business to his rival, Redman Harmer. Harmer recently returned from Europe, where he saw and fell in love with Cara. He asks Follette for an opportunity of meeting his daughter. When Cara returns home her father tells her of his failure and urges her to meet Harmer. It would mean much to him and he likes Harmer. Cara decides to go up northwest to Mulligan's camp for a month to think it over. Meanwhile no one is to get an inkling of their business troubles. Anny will find friends for Jerry Flint, whom Cara has decided she loves. Cara sells her car for expense money and gives half to Jerry. He follows and joins her on the way. Harmer hears of Cara's plans from her father. He flies to Mulligan's ahead of her and hires the place from Dan Mulligan for a month and the use of his name. He meets Cara and Jerry as Mulligan. He and Jerry are antagonistic. After three days Jerry is fed up with camp life. He tricks Cara into leaving with him. They become lost in the wilds. Jerry's true character is revealed to Cara when she confesses her father's failure. Harmer comes to their rescue. He sends Jerry on his way back to Toronto, though Cara thinks Jerry has returned to the camp. Harmer, as Mulligan, wins Cara's love. Cara is anxious to overtake Jerry for fear of harm to Follette's by what she has told him. Harmer starts on the return trip with her. Cara tells him she is going to marry for money.

AFRAID OF LOVE.

"You can laugh!" she cried.

"Not really. I love you far too much to laugh."

"Can you love me in four days?"

"I've loved you ever since I saw you."

She repeated:

"Four days. And just that drive."

He studied that. "It can be love," he whispered.

She knew it agonizingly, but she tried what sounded feebly like common sense.

"That's what I thought with Jerry: what he thought. But it wasn't love."

"No, Cara. That wasn't love. He always knew it wasn't. Your Jerry will always love only himself."

"Don't all men?"

"No," he said, "and you're making yourself unhappy."

"I am unhappy."

"Tell me what you really want then."

She asserted determinedly:

"I want Follettes' to be on top of the world always, and to be there, serving Follettes', to be better than a son to my father——"

A rising knoll crowned with wild flowers nearly hid them from the camp. He kissed the words off Cara's mouth. They both flamed.

"Is it fair to this man to marry him if you can't love him?"

"You don't want that most. Not any more."

"Then I want to want it."

"Then tell me, this marriage you say you'll make, will it help Follettes'? Is Follettes' in need of help?"

"No! Never!" she cried. "We're sound, firm as the Rocky mountains back there!"

Her eyes met his, look for look.

"Then why does Cara Follette marry this man?"

"It—it's a tribute to Follettes'." She could think of no other reply. And shame at her naive revelations to Jerry still overwhelmed her.

"Darling," he said, "let there be real truth between us. Now you are to tell me, couldn't I give you all you want most in the world?"

She sighed. "O, Dan."

"Even though it was just these log cabins, not much profit, not much money, a few townsfolk out for vacation sometimes, all the society you'd get, a visit to—" he recalled Mulligan's words—"an old lady—my mother—in Montreal, your only dissipation. And winters here sometimes if I'm trapping—for I'd want my wife with me always. Even so, couldn't I give you all you want most?"

His lips found a little trickle of tears on her cheek, and stemmed it.

"Answer."

"I know you could."

She said it passionately, holding fast to him.

"Did you ever feel quite so about Flint?"

She shook her head. Close against him, she lay there and thought: No, Jerry had been the first comer to open the corridor from which she took her first glimpse of a warm, new world. But this man flung open doors superbly, doors leading to the splendid and fertile lands to which her eyes had been closed.

"It's a question of honor."

"Is it?" he asked. "Whose honor?"

"The question's too big; don't ask it, Dan."

"Is it fair to this man to marry him if you can't love him, Cara?"

"And you'll have children that way, Cara?"

"Won't this man want children?"

"He won't get them."

"Won't he, indeed?"

"After all, he only asked for me."

"That's what I'm asking," said the hunter, "for you. Only more. I should want a son like me and a daughter like you. Shouldn't you want our children, Cara?"

"You know I would!"

"Will you marry me?"

"No," she said.

"Wouldn't it be happy, darling?"

"It would be heaven."

Cara was very pale. Her eyes big and washed with tears. He lifted her up, and said: "We'd better go and eat a real meal. I've tired you, my sweet. And we've a great ride before us."

She begged him: "Don't come."

"Don't come?"

"Let me go alone. Or let the Indian come."

"I shall come with you, dear."

"It's cruel," she burst out.

"Perhaps I'm going to be cruel. Perhaps it's the best way."

She leaned against him, half laughing, half crying. "Whatever you do I shall never hate you as I learned to hate Jerry."

"I sha'n't be cruel that way."

She pushed back the mass of her short hair. "Let's go," she said, "let's start and get it over."

"I will put you on your train at Edmonton."

"No! No! Don't come further than Swan Lake."

"You're afraid," he said.

"Afraid," she answered desperately.

"Yet you're not afraid to marry this man you hate?"

"I'm only afraid of love."

"And you're rushing back to him. You're not even taking the month's grace."

"Because of Jerry! Because of Jerry! I must get there first. Ah, but, how can you understand?"

She said to him as they walked back along the lakeside: "You'd never for any reason whatever marry a woman you didn't love, Dan?"

"I would have to love and worship a woman before I married her."

"Am . . . Am I the first?"

He heard the jealousy in her voice. Her inexperience, her sincerity were very dear to him, but the jealousy was dearer.

He laughed: "Just as I'm the first with you."

An Indian met them and said: "Master, the horse Buck has come. Very well horse. He take long time."

She was glad and sorry. The second mule would have been so much slower.

So they rode through the magic world of night. The trail through the forest was wide, well broken. The sky could often be seen through great lengthy gaps in the branches overhead, and the moon was not yet on the wane, though she had been nearly full when they had ridden down this trail campward. The horses moved with the interest of horses at night to every tiny sound and rustle about them. Mile after mile went by, in and out of the shadows, all the wild creatures asleep and still. Hour after hour went by, and slowly the moon seemed washed from the paling sky as dawn came up, pale green, pale rose. "I shall remember this ride all my life," Cara thought.

And she voiced it to the man beside her:

"Something to remember."

"I shall never forget it," he said.

Children Need Energy Outlets —Not Spanking

Small Boys Especially Must Be Granted Freedom.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"Sometimes but seldom," writes a mother of two small children, "I try a little spanking, but I dislike to hit them. I had some of that myself when I was a child and I know all about it.

"But my husband never knew a spanking and you couldn't ask for a finer, nicer man. My mother-in-law is a wonderful woman. Her children were raised with love. I and my sister and brother were raised on obedience and the cat of nine tails.

"I would like to know how to correct my little 4 year old boy. At times he is extremely wilful and again he can be nice as one could ask of a child. Every day he is doing something he shouldn't be doing. He loves stone throwing even at windows, and I can't seem to break him of the habit. He climbs the pergola which has vines growing in it. I send him to his room, but he does the same thing over again. I have a baby a year and a half old."

First, it does one's heart good to see a mother whose children profit by the unhappiness she suffered in her childhood from severity. I have seen parents brought up harshly or domineered over as children, who passed on the same treatment to their own sons and daughters, arousing rebellion and bitterness. Infinitly more is accomplished by a clear sighted understanding and love which lead to wise but liberal management than ever could be by a domineering, cat of nine tails' régimé.

This small boy is only acting in a way natural for his age. All he needs is to be given a legitimate outlet for his desires to throw and climb. He should have playthings that give him a chance to do these things—balls and perhaps a home-made target, and a climbing apparatus bought or made—for which we can give advice. With these channels for his energy he can then be expected to refrain from doing the things which are destructive.

Little brother may figure in this naughtiness which gains the older lad the attention he craves. So a further suggestion is that this mother be careful in her attitude, showing interest in the things her 4 year old says and likes to do, and occasionally having some time alone with him.

Sally's Guests See Cubs Win at First Party

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Early yesterday morning, the day of our first party of the season, voices over the telephone inquired anxiously, "Are we gonna have our party?" In view of cloudy skies, I felt rather doubtful myself—but we went and did we have a good time! Happily it did not rain in the afternoon—although dark clouds hung over Wrigley field a good part of the time—and the Cubs won.

Guy Bush worked like everything, and seemed to enjoy doing it. You know Bob Elson of W-G-N—who knows more baseball players than I know kids—took us down to the field and introduced us to Bush, Gabby Hartnett, and Kiki Cuyler. After presenting one lucky youngster with a brand new ball [and maybe that child wasn't thrilled] Guy went out there on the mound and pitched one swell ball game. The Cubs' 9 to 1 victory couldn't be anything else but swell!

We sat in our comfortable box seats and cheered as we watched the Chicago team beat the Pirates with ease, bet peanuts on the different plays and the final score of the game and lapped up our ice cream.

The afternoon seemed awfully short, but I'll bet that all the nice people who helped make our afternoon enjoyable, including, of course, William Walker, whose generosity made possible this party, will long remembered by all the happy boys and girls who were my guests!

at the residence of Mrs. Edward C. Crossett. Mrs. Reed is president of the exchange and will be hostess at a sale the organization will hold on July 20 and 21 at the Sippican Tennis club at Marion.

Other Chicago women who were at Mrs. Crossett's yesterday to assist in selling the lovely household furnishings and accessories and exquisite infants' and children's clothes for which the exchange is noted, were Mrs. Aldis J. Browne, Mrs. William France Anderson, and Mrs. Augustus Eddy, all of whom are summering in that charming part of New England.

Members of the Chicago colony at Watch Hill, R. I., will assist at an exchange sale to be held at the Ocean house next Tuesday and Wednesday, among them Mrs. William J. Chalmers, Mrs. George R. Nichols, and Mrs. Frank Hibbard.

Robert Dickinsons at Cape Cod Colony.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Dickinson of Lake Forest are among the recent additions to the Cape Cod colony on the Massachusetts coast, where they will enjoy the ocean air and surf until early in the fall. They have taken a cottage near East Bay lodge.

Mrs. Everett L. Millard of Highland Park has returned from the east where she spent some weeks on Cape Cod with her children, Everett Jr., who is working in Toledo now; Elizabeth, who has just been graduated from Columbia and who is staying on in New York with friends; and Malcolm, who has finished his second year at Harvard and is a counselor in a boys' camp in New Hampshire.

The Samuel J. Walkers and their sons, Malcolm and Samuel Jr., have gone west to visit Mr. Walker's uncle and aunt, the Malcolm Moncrieffes, on their Montana ranch. The Walkers will be away for three weeks.

The Davis Kaleses are also western minded this summer. They plan to spend two weeks motoring through that part of the country when Mr. Kales has his vacation in August.

Kenneth Carpenters Harbor Point Guests.

The Kenneth Carpenters are spending the week-end with the Edward L. Herseys in Harbor Point. Mr. Hersey is commuting on week-ends between Chicago and the Point.

The Leopold S. Fetchers arrived in town yesterday at the early hour of 5 to spend a long week-end with the former Marguerite Foster's parents, the George B. Fosters. Mr. and Mrs. Fetcher are living in Cincinnati.

Miss Florence Dibell Bartlett, who is leaving shortly for her ranch in New Mexico, will give the last of a series of lectures on the Swedish and Norwegian collection at the Art institute next Tuesday. Miss Bartlett will discuss not only the rare collection of Scandinavian art objects, but her experience while traveling in the peninsula several years ago.

A gay group of young people will be at Waukazoo inn on Black lake near Holland, Mich., over this week-end. The Charles H. Browns, the W. Stehepn Baileys, Miss Mildred Lawrence, Dana Stone, the Richard Walraths, Miss Virginia Hobart and Walker Everett are motoring up early this morning.

Straps Have Clever Ways

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

The sun-tan vogue seems to be as popular as ever, and you should have this sports model. It's suitable for sun bathing, too. Unfasten the suspender straps and tie them around your neck and you have a perfect suntan. White or pastel pique is one of the loveliest materials to use.

The pattern, No. 3241, comes in sizes 14, 16, and 18 years, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure.

BY MARY MEADE.

Blessings upon all questioning cooks! When Saturday rolls around and this cooking editor is tired and marooned for a bright idea, in piles the day's mail bursting with question marks, and she's off!

First comes a query from Mrs. K. T. R. Mme. R. has heard that there is a way by which chicken may be made into all white meat. And since chicken salad is a great pal around her house she would be most pleased to know the way in which the miracle is accomplished.

The method to which I suspect Mrs. R. refers involves steaming the chicken instead of roasting or stewing it. This has a certain drawback since, in my estimation, the flavor of roast chicken is the crowning glory of chicken salad. But if white meat it must be simply prepare the chicken in pieces for cooking. Then wrap these sections in several folds of cheese cloth and steam them until tender. This cheese cloth method seems to leave all the meat of nearly the same whiteness.

Miss F. L. likewise has been hearing things which she can't quite credit. Says she: "A neighbor of mine says that she puts gelatin in her croquettes to stiffen them. I should think the heat would melt the gelatin."

And you think rightly, Miss L. But the stiffening of the finished croquette isn't the purpose of the gelatin. Instead it is sometimes added to the croquette mixture to hasten stiffening of the mixture to hasten the moment for molding. Then when the formed croquettes are fried or baked the heat dissolves the gelatin again, leaving the inside of the croquettes soft and creamy. If we add one teaspoonful of gelatin, softened in a very small amount of cold water and dissolved over hot water, the mixture will not be too stiff and no odd flavor or texture will be present in the croquette.

Then along this same line comes an oft repeated query, this time from Mrs. H. O. F.: "More trouble with my pineapple gelatin salads! I used fresh pineapple and the juice and the whole thing turned watery and was about as moldable as soup."

Sad, sad! But I know the trouble, Mrs. F. You see, fresh pineapple contains a species of cussedness known as an enzyme. This enzyme attacks the protein of the gelatin, liquifying instead of solidifying it. By scalding the pineapple and its juices or by using canned pineapple, which has already been processed, this enzyme action is prevented and the pineapple-gelatin mixtures go merrily on to quivery firmness.

As a windup a question about freezing from Mrs. E. A. P. And, by the way, may I ask each questioner when she writes to add her address as well as her full name? There are times when questions don't seem to us to have general interest sufficient to justify printing them in the column, but unless we have each writer's address and name we are forced to do so if they are to be answered at all. And by all means we want to answer them all!

But getting back to the question, Mrs. P. has lost the directions for freezing the "Frozen Pineapple and Date Salad" and the "Frozen Cheese Salad" which we printed a while ago. She has the recipes, so here are the directions:

To freeze salads pack the mixture in an oiled mold which is tightly sealed. Bury the mold in equal parts of ice and salt and let stand until firm, which will be about four hours. Or the salad may be packed in the tray of a mechanical refrigerator and frozen. Do not freeze salads so long that the fruit becomes icy.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

REBIDDING WITH A VOID SUIT OVER ONE NO TRUMP.

Do not count a void suit as any part of a trick for your first response. If you do, you will mislead your partner and the result may be that he will take you out of a suit-slam you can make into a no trump slam which will prove disastrous. A void holding is an almost insuperable defect for no trump play. Even in a suit contract it may be a complete duplication. There is not only risk, but actual probability, that your partner holds ace-king or ace-king-jack in that suit. For slam purposes, values are probably needed in the other suits. Holding only two and a half primary tricks in a hand such as

Sp. ———	Di. K Q x x x
Hts. A 10 x x x	Cl. K x x

bid only two hearts. Making only a minimum takeout, you bid the higher ranking five-card suit first, since you are not announcing "two of the top three honors," as you do when jumping to three on the first round.

The opener bids two no trumps. Now bid four diamonds, showing definitly a five card [because minor] secondary suit and a desire for slam based on values which did not justify an immediate jump takeout, but which, nevertheless, still inspire slam hopes though the opener's first rebid was a signoff. With a normal no trumper, not shaded, but below four primary tricks and with only two aces, such as

Sp. K Q x	Di. A x x
Hts. K x x	Cl. A J x x

your partner would now bid four hearts. This shows merely that he has normal support for your five-card heart suit and does not prefer diamonds for trumps. It is a signoff as far as he is concerned.

Introducing the Cue Bid at the Right Time.

Next, you bid your void suit, four spades. Knowing you to hold ten red cards, he cannot fail to recognize it as a cue bid. However, he does not know whether you have the singleton ace or a void. He must now employ a little common sense and imagination. He must encourage the slam by showing you one of his aces, both to affirm that he has two aces and also to tell you that if your spade is void, that does not constitute a duplication. Five clubs is his bid. Now you can safely slam in hearts. Dummy's losing clubs will go on the long diamonds. A heart trick will be lost, but only (a) if the enemy have a heart holding which must yield them two tricks in that suit, or (b) if they have a guarded jack of diamonds, and the club finesse thereby rendered necessary proves unsuccessful, will the slam be beaten.

Showing Three Aces.

If the opener held

Sp. A x x	Di. A x x
Hts. K x x	Cl. A J x x

he should bid five no trumps over your four diamonds, to tell you that he has normal support, including a high honor, for both your suits, and three aces. The responding hand could now despense with the cue bid and say six hearts; only if the enemy have two heart tricks can they defeat the slam, as a diamond can be ruffed if that suit fails to break.

A Clear Through Delicate Inference.

Sp. K Q 10	Di. A x x
Hts. K Q x	Cl. Q J 10 x

he must, over your four diamonds, bid four hearts as before. If you now make the cue bid of four spades, he knows that there is no duplication in that suit, and this strengthened heart support means no loser in either red suit if they break normally. However, you may have two little clubs and the singleton ace of spades, so five hearts is all he can bid. The responding hand can now count some losers. Partner's failure to show the club ace over the cue bid means he can only have a one-half trick in clubs. In diamonds he has only one trick, the ace. Therefore, opener must have two tricks in the majors; if he holds A Q of spades and only the king of hearts, the slam will fail; but it is far more likely that he has king-queen of hearts. Possessing only a half trick in clubs, if he hold only K x x or Q J x in hearts his hand must be

Sp. A Q x (or A K x)	Di. A x x
Hts. K x x (or Q J x)	Cl. Q J 10 x

Surely with such spade holding, he would bid four no trumps over four diamonds. There is thus every reason for the responder to bid six hearts, relying on finding not less than K Q x in that suit in the opener's hand. With Q J x there would still be a finesse against the king. The possession of the club king assures him that only one club trick will be lost.

Clean Movie Campaign Aids Cowboy Actors

Producers Turn to Western Stories Again.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., July 6.—[Special.]—The clean movie campaign is putting the cowboy actors back in chaps and sombreros. While the sophisticated film story was reigning with the producers George O'Brien, Tim McCoy, Hoot Gibson, Tom Mix, Ken Maynard, Tom Keene, and ever so many others who had won their film spurs as cowboys and only as cowboys, resigned from the sagebrush drama to become leading men in horseless drama.

One by one the ex-cowboy stars again are sounding boots and saddles, due of course to the movie magnates' rediscovery that there always is a welcome for a western.

George O'Brien has incorporated a cowboy movie corporation with his producer, Sol Lesser, and others as associates, and is back in the saddle. When O'Brien thought he had retired permanently as a cowboy actor about six months ago he talked as though he was heading for promotion. But now he's to star in "When a Man's a Man" and glad that cow yarns cling to that box office draw. Luckily for O'Brien he did not dismantle his ranch stables and sell off his horse.

Then there's the case of Tim McCoy. Tim was announced by Columbia as "hereafter to appear in adventure drama which will not be movie cowboy stories." McCoy made several of those. Now Columbia announces Tim for "Fighting Back," the first of eight westerns under a new contract.

Tom Mix will shortly be back from his annual tour with the circus for the movie cowboy roundup.

Ken Maynard appeared in a run of airplane thrillers, but he and his horse Tarzan are due back from personal appearances for some more of the good old westerns. Tom Keene was chosen by Director King Vidor for a lead in "Our Daily Bread," but will shortly be back swinging his lariat from a galloping steed.

In the meantime Reb Russell, former Northwestern university football star, has joined the film cowboy stars while Buck Jones, John Wayne, and Lane Chandler help keep the campfires burning. Rex Bell, Clara Bow's husband, will rejoin the others as soon as the worrisome times in advance of his and Clara Bow's family increase are left behind.

C. Aubrey Smith, English actor and organizer and manager of the Hollywood Cricket club, is going to be converted to American baseball if the movies have to kill him to do it; at least M. G. M. has cast Smith as Carnes the Menace in "Death on the Diamond," baseball murder film. Ted Healy plays O'Toole the umpire, who sidesteps the pop bottles. Robert Young is the star.

Nelson Eddy avers that his hair grayed overnight. "I'd heard about it and never believed it happened," the actor-baritone says, "and then it did happen to me. I did more worrying about something in two hours that night than I ever did in any period of time before or since," Eddy says. "That's why my hair turned. It got gray leading back from both temples and a big gray streak running straight back from my forehead on top." A judicious treatment by the studio makeup department cures the grayness whenever Eddy has to face the camera.

Jim Cagney has taken his new 66 foot schooner yacht Martha for his first cruise. Jimmy took no one but his wife on the initial tryout cruise, and they liked it so well they stayed at sea eight days.

Hollywood

Something New.

BY SIDNEY SKOLSKY.

Hollywood, Cal., July 6.—Tired of staying indoors to watch them make pictures, I decided to get out in that California sunshine and see them make flickers. It was for the sunshine that pictures came to Hollywood.

There are 43 pictures being filmed in Hollywood this week, and it takes a Philo Vance to discover one working outdoors. It's something new under the sun for Old Sol to look down on the stars, even though they be Hollywood stars.

I learn that a scene of the Will Rogers picture, "Judge Priest," is being shot outdoors, and also a scene of "Have a Heart," with Jimmy Dunn, Una Merkel and Jean Parker. Hurrying over to the Fox studio to make column bay while the sun shines, I watch Will Rogers and an army of confederate soldiers acting and marching in front of Director Henry King's camera.

The scene is a street in Irvin Cobb's Paducah and the large small town park on the Fox lot has been slightly remodeled to fit the description. There is the town hall, the fire department, and the statue of the soldier in the center of the park. Rogers likes this park. Scenes for "David Harum" and "Mr. Skitch" were made here. In fact, the gag is that the only change they make for another Will Rogers flicker is to change the hat on the stone soldier in the park.

Confederate flags are flying, troops are marching. Negroes are driving hansom cabs and the local fire brigade joins the parade past the grandstand filled with the town's leading citizens. Several hundred extras are supplied with work at $7.50 a day, and they look like extras who need the work. Standing in a confederate uniform is a familiar figure, Henry B. Walthal.

I walk over and talk to him. He is happy in his confederate uniform. It is the first time he appears in a flicker in the outfit since he was the little colonel in "Birth of a Nation."

The other outdoor set is at Metro, on one of the two New York streets. This is a typical side street of the east side. It is a row of cheap tenements, with the neighborhood stores—the bakery, the barber shop, and a second-hand book store. Studios use plenty of books in different scenes. You've seen them stacked high and wide in the library of the rich man so you'll know he's a person of taste. The prop department buys these books by the pound.

Although this New York street is out in the open and looks genuine, there is no sun beating down on the pavements. Huge canvases have been stretched from rooftop to rooftop across the street. They are trying to keep the Hollywood sun out of the picture. Instead, they are getting their light with the artificial studio lights. And movies came to Hollywood for the sunshine.

The principal player in this scene of "Have a Heart" is the horse pulling the ice cream wagon. The horse is Trixie, and Director David Butler will tell you it is a talented performer.

Trixie belongs to R. J. Malchow. It is more than a piece of property to Malchow; it is his companion and meal ticket. Trixie is 24 years old, and has been with Malchow for twenty-two years. They live together, eat together, and practically sleep together. Malchow has a small four room house in Universal City. Two of the rooms are occupied by Malchow and two are reserved for Trixie.

"I'd much rather live with a horse than with a woman," says Malchow. "A woman will listen to your enemies, a horse never will. A horse will never sell you out, a woman will. Trixie has something no woman has, and that is horse sense."

Trixie is a trick horse; its specialties listed at the casting offices are: "Laughing and crying. Kissing and kicking. Loving and fighting. Goose stepping and sitting down. Picks up a scent like a bloodhound and follows tracks." Trixie has many more tricks and rates $35 a day when she works.

Malchow says Trixie would be a big star if she ever got a real chance. She got a tough break. Twelve years ago she had a starring rôle in a flicker, but the picture was never released. Since then she has been playing bits, waiting for her big chance.

She just took a screen test to play with Garbo in "The Painted Veil." "I read the script," says Malchow. "It's Trixie's chance to be a star. Now, if Garbo doesn't get jealous. . . ."

Moody Fellow Keeps His Girl Out on a Limb

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I like the young man very much. I know that he likes me in his own way. He is good about taking me places, but at times I am afraid to start a conversation with him. I never know which way he is going to turn. He is so different from one time to another. One minute he is all attention, the next so moody you can't do a thing with him. If I ask him what's wrong, he acts as if I had asked him if he ever committed a murder, so unreasonably mad. We quarrel, but I always come back, whereas I know I should forget him. Is there anything I can do to smooth his disposition? What should I do when he gets mad? I am attractive, I know, gay, well liked, but this one has me stumped. Is it I or is it he?"

ELANE.

He sounds as if he needed consultation with a psychiatrist. Certainly he is not emotionally balanced. But he must have something or you wouldn't go humbly back, eh, Elane? Or, perhaps it might be that he has found the weak spot in your armor? This act he is pulling may be his idea of sure fire with you.

But if it is a moody gent you're tieing yourself in with, we warn you that the cure had better be performed right now and quickly. If a woman were choosing a personal hell for herself, she would pick a man whose mood could not be counted on from one minute to another, who goes from gay to irritated with the drop of an eyelid. The same goes for a man getting himself involved emotionally with a girl of unstable mood. Believe us, after you marry a person like that, his or her moods become veritable tantrums for which the mate has less and less sympathy. Better investigate the young man's background to be sure that there has been no insanity if you intend keeping on with him. Or serve him notice that another dark mood exhibition and you're through. And stay through long enough to prove you're not fooling.

30 PAPERS TO MAKE FOOTBALL POLL NATIONWIDE

GRANGE EAGER FOR TEST WITH COLLEGE STARS

BY ARCH WARD.

More than thirty newspapers in all parts of the United States have been invited to coöperate with THE TRIBUNE in the promotion of A Century of Progress football game between the Chicago Bears, national professional champions, and a picked team of 1933 college all-stars at Soldiers' field Aug. 31.

Each of the newspapers will invite its readers to name the eleven best players from last year's college graduates. Those who receive the greatest number of votes will be brought to Chicago by THE TRIBUNE to battle Red Grange and his professional champions. Profits of the game will be donated to the United Charities, the Catholic charities, and the Jewish charities of Chicago.

Votes to Be In by July 25.

Among the newspapers which have been asked to take part in the biggest sports feature of the World's Fair are: Boston, Mass., Post.; Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, New York Daily News, New Orleans Times-Picayune, Buffalo Courier-Express, Detroit Free Press, Omaha World-Herald, Kansas City Star, Kansas City Times, Arkansas Gazette, Little Rock, Ark.; Salt Lake City Tribune, Denver Post, Los Angeles Times, San Francisco Chronicle, Portland Oregonian, Minneapolis Journal, Wisconsin State Journal, Madison, Wis.; Rockford Morning Star, Peoria Journal-Transcript, Bloomington Pantagraph, South Bend News-Times, Gary Post-Tribune, Davenport Times, Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette, Lafayette Journal and Courier, Green Bay Press-Gazette, Iowa City Press-Citizen.

All votes must be turned into THE TRIBUNE by July 25. As soon as the personnel of the college squad has been determined a nation-wide contest to pick a college coach to handle the team will begin. Both squads will report for practice Aug. 15.

Grange Eager for Game.

Red Grange, oldest member of the Bears, almost jumped out of his chair yesterday when this department asked him if he was anxious to play against the college squad.

"Play 'em?" he yelled. "Bring 'em on. What a treat! All my life I have wanted to see the real All-American team in action, not one of those so-called All-Americans picked by Joe Bloke of the New York Crier or I. M. Expert of the Los Angeles Bugle. This team will be America's team, the people's choice, and there can be no question of the superiority of professional football after we whip them. All I can say is I hope the old bones stand up against those young punks."

George Halas, owner and coach of the Bears, was equally enthusiastic. "We won the National Professional

NEARING END OF RECORD BREAKING MILE TRIP AT THE FAIR

Jack Medica, 19 year old sophomore of the University of Washington, on the last lap of one mile race in which he broke the world record in the National A. A. U. swimming meet yesterday at the north lagoon of A Century of Progress Exposition. Medica's time was 20 minutes 57.8 seconds, which shaved nine seconds off the mark hung up by Arne Borg of Sweden in 1925. His performance was cheered by thousands of Fair visitors. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

JOHNNY YOUNG, NOTRE DAME'S STAR BACK, DIES

South Bend, Ind., July 6.—[Special.]—Notre Dame's football hopes received a blow today with the news of the death of John R. Young, regarded as the varsity right half back, at his home in Houston, Tex.

Young succumbed to a kidney ailment, from which he had suffered for several weeks. His death came at a hospital in Houston this morning.

When Young left here early in June at the close of school, he was in good health. Coach Elmer Layden said today Young was not ill when he departed, and that he had planned an early return for football practice.

Best Back on Squad.

Rated as the most likely prospect for the right half back position, Young would have been a junior this fall. He first gave definite evidence of stardom when he accounted for most of Notre Dame's yardage in the losing game against Purdue and 88 yards in 22 attempts against Navy, which also defeated Notre Dame.

At the conclusion of the game Noble Kizer, Purdue coach, confided to newspapermen that Notre Dame's inability to give Young a modicum of effective blocking kept the Texas sophomore from defeating the Boilermakers single handed in the second half.

Father O'Hara Praises Young.

The Rev. John H. O'Hara, newly elected president of Notre Dame, said: "Jack Young was an exceptionally fine boy—always a gentleman, even tempered, courageous, and generous. He had brilliant prospects as a student. He will be greatly missed."

"Notre Dame suffered a great loss in the death of Johnny Young," Layden said tonight. "He was the outstanding boy in spring football practice and the No. 1 man at right half back. Not only was he a good player, but his morale on the field served to bolster the entire squad. On the field as well as off, Johnny Young was a true Notre Dame man."

In the WAKE of the NEWS

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE: The White Stockings of 1871 played at the foot of Randolph street on the lake front with the home plate at the northeast corner, close to the I. C. railroad tracks. The team of that year was:

Mart King, catcher; George Zeitlen, pitcher; M. McAtee, first base; J. Wood, second base and captain; C. Hodes, third base; Ed Duffy, shortstop; F. Tracey, left field; Joe Simmons, center field; R. Pinkham, right field; F. Atwater and T. Foley, substitutes.

I witnessed a remarkable game there between the White Sox and Olympics of Washington. Starting the ninth inning with the score 7 to 0 against them, the Sox started a batting rally for 9 runs, making the score 9 to 7. At that time the game did not stop until there were 27 putouts.

A feature of the inning was two home runs by Fred Tracey, who received $500 for that effort, and the other players $100 each. Lotta, celebrated actress of the time, in her excitement smashed a costly parasol on the head of a spectator near me.

After the fire of 1871 that team made its home in Philadelphia, playing under the name of Centennials. It was managed by Charles E. Rollins, later well known in insurance circles here.

John S. Burke.

It was Mr. and Mrs. W. J. [Billy] Florence who appeared at McVicker's theater in "The Mighty Dollar," in the early '80s and not Mr. and Mrs. Sothern. W. J.'s rôle was the Hon. J. Bardwell Sloate, United States senator, and Mrs. Florence was a gay Washington widow.

They gave this play for a week or two for two or three seasons following its first production. Later Florence, a fine comedian, was a member of the all-star cast in "The Rivals," taking the part of Sir Lucius O'Trigger, with Joe Jefferson as Bob Acres, Maurice Barrymore [Ethel's father] as Capt. Absolute, and Mrs. John Drew [Ethel's grandmother] as Mrs. Malaprop.

To those who build a little home
The road becomes a place where one
May keep in touch with men.
Cosmopolite and village folks
They bring the news to him whose home
In solitude is set.

A man may take the open road
Or woo the valley's gleam—
Life brings to each its joy and woe,
To each it gives a dream.
And cottagers will harbor folks
Against the wind and weather,
While those who meet upon the road
May jog along together.

MEDICA SMASHES WORLD RECORD IN A. A. U. MILE SWIM

Today's Program

FOLLOWING is the schedule for this afternoon's events at the lagoon, A Century of Progress, in the National A. A. U. men's swimming championships:

440 yards free style.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Jack Medica, University of Washington student representing the Washington Athletic club of Seattle, smashed all records for the one mile swim yesterday afternoon in the National A. A. U. men's meet at the lagoon pool, A Century of Progress. Medica defeated the defending national champion, Ralph Flanagan of the Miami [Fla.] Biltmore club by nearly 100 meters in setting the new world mark of 20:57.8.

The former world mark was 21:06.8 and was established by Arne Borg in 1925. Flanagan's 1933 American record was 21:12.

Medica swam at a methodical pace which permitted no dispute by any contestant. At 300 meters he led Flanagan by 10 feet with Herbert Barthels third. Medica led by 20 feet at 400 meters and in the next four laps of the 50 meter pool he had increased this advantage to half a lap. From here on Flanagan, apparently knowing he could not win, faded and at the 18th lap of the 32 lap race Medica had lapped him. At the finish Medica failed by a stroke of winning by two laps.

Sets Three American Marks.

In addition to his mile record, Medica broke three American marks on the way. He swam 550 yards in 6:21.9; 1,100 yards in 13:00.4, and 1,320 yards [three-quarters of a mile] in

197 HITS SCORE 143 RUNS IN ONE BIG LEAGUE DAY

The batting and scoring storm that struck the major leagues yesterday resulted in 143 runs from 197 hits in eight National and American league games. Those totals fell far short of equaling all-time highs, but they do represent something in the way of modern records.

More than half a century ago—May 17, 1887—the eight National league clubs put across 101 runs in four games. Yesterday's total for the same league was 83. The 41 hits produced in the Braves-Phillies game yesterday compared somewhat feebly to the record of 51 safeties hung up on Aug. 25, 1922, in a game between the Phils and the Cubs.

At any rate, yesterday's contests provided plenty of work for pitchers, 39 seeing service. In the Cincinnati-St. Louis National league game ten were used.

SOX FUMBLE FIVE TIMES, BUT BEAT CLEVELAND, 7-5

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., July 6.—The White Sox, despite their customary terrifying blunders, were able to make a success of their work today. In one Ralph Winegarner they discovered a pitcher exactly suited to their ideas of what a hostile pitcher should be, so they slammed their way to a 7 to 5 victory in the second game of the series with the Indians.

The triumph, however, was accomplished only after a heroic stand for six innings by Milt Gaston who time and again was up to his ears in trouble, brought on mainly by an infield that was about as impregnable as a sheet of paper. Most of the weakness, as usual, was on the left side of the diamond and the error column doesn' tell the whole story.

After taking it on the chin for six innings, Gaston was excused and given a vote of thanks by Manager Jimmy Dykes. Then Joe Heving wriggled through successfully only after a panicky ninth in which the Indians subsided with three men still on the bases.

Sox Take Lead.

Two were out in the first inning before the Sox got busy on the matter of two runs. Dykes started this pleasing incident by coaxing Winegarner for a pass. Bonura earned his blue eagle by singling over third. Simmons hit a funny twister into short center and it bounced away from Averill for a double, Dykes and Bonura scoring. Boken followed with a pass, but Chamberlin was out on a tap to the pitcher.

The Indians' second, when two runs scored, opened with Hale singling past Chamberlin. The latter messed up a roller by Kamm, but it was generously recorded as a hit. Holland lined to Bonura, whose throw to Boken doubled Hale off second. Kamm stole second and Pytlak walked. Then Winegarners' soft roller seeped

BUSH DOUBLES WITH THREE ON; YIELDS 5 HITS

Slugging Guy Drives In Four Runs.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Guy Bush, who doesn't know his own strength when he has a bat in his hand, was the main man in both the offensive and defensive phases of the Cubs' 9 to 1 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates yesterday.

The news, perhaps, is not to be found in the fact that Mr. Bush held the Pirates to five hits. He has done the like of that many times ere this. But when Guy Bush drives in four runs, you have an item.

The first run Guy drove in was not one of power or valor, though it tied the score. The Mississippian was up in the second inning with the bases full and none out, and he tapped ingloriously into a double play, while Gabby Hartnett ran across with the run that matched a homer by Gus Suhr in the first half of the inning.

Doubles with Bases Loaded.

But the fifth was something. Bush again came up with the bases full, and this time with two out, for Woody English and Kiki Cuyler, also great hitters, had fanned. Bush cleared the bases with a double, and while they were not runs essential to victory, Bush's blast of fury did much to increase the happiness of a Ladies' day crowd of 27,000.

It was Bush's tenth victory of the season, as compared with three defeats, and it was the Cubs' sixth verdict over the Pirates in nine decisions. Moreover, the victory enabled the Chicagoans to gain a full game on the leading New York Giants, whom the Cubs now trail by only 2½ games.

The Cubs made 17 hits as their compliment to the popular Pie Traynor, making his Chicago debut as a manager. Three hit gents were Billy Herman, George Stainback, Gabby Hartnett, and Charley Grimm.

The Pirates made only one single off Bush. The other four hits included Suhr's homer, a double by Traynor in the fourth, L. Waner's double in the fifth, and a rather spurious triple by Padden in the seventh.

Two Hits Wasted.

The Cubs started a flurry in the first, but waited too long to effect run production. After Billy Herman and English had been called out on strikes Klein singled to left center and went to third on Stainback's single to right. Cuyler ended the inning with a grounder to Lavagetto.

Bush disposed of the first four Pirate batsmen, but Suhr, hitter No. 5, knocked the ball high and just far enough to clear the right field screen for a homer. The next two, Lavagetto and Jensen, were infield outs.

The Cubs filled the bases with none out in the second inning but merely tied the score. Hartnett singled to right, Grimm singled to left, and Hack walked. Bush tapped to Lavagetto, who tagged Hack at second and tossed to Suhr for a double play. Meanwhile Hartnett sneaked across the plate.

Stainback Prevents Homer.

A leap by Stainback that would have done any basketball center proud robbed Traynor of a home run with one down in the Pirate fourth. Pie socked one of almost the exact dimensions of Suhr's homer, but Stainback slapped it into the field, holding Traynor to a double. Nothing came of the hit because Vaughan flied to Klein after Suhr had walked and Billy Herman went into short center to grab Lavagetto's fly.

The Cubs went ahead in their half of the fourth. Cuyler doubled to deep right center, moved to third on Hartnett's sacrifice, and scored on Grimm's single past Traynor. Hack and Bush were easy outs.

There was a bit of strain in the Pirate fifth. Padden walked with one down but was forced by Hoyt on a nice play by Hack. L. Waner then cracked a double to the right field screen, Hoyt stopping at third. P. Waner eased the situation by lining to Klein.

Six Run Parade.

Billy Herman opened the home fifth with a single to right, and a six run parade was under way. Billy

BY FRENCH LANE.

A great many people may flash winning tickets after the running of the $32,000 Lassie stakes at Arlington Park late today. They will pat their chests and say, "What a judge of horses!"

Still it will not be at all certain that the winners are wise in the ways of appraising the merits of a young thoroughbred.

The best judge of horse flesh in this race will be the proud owner who sees his 2 year old go galloping on to victory in the richest filly race run anywhere in America regardless of age.

Smart and Wealthy or——

You perhaps will want to know the reason. So here it is:

The owner, who will collect upwards of $20,000 at the end of the race, looked over his yearling fillies early in September last year while they scampered about in open paddocks. He had watched them from the day they were foaled and had given much thought to their blood lines a year previous, when they were bred.

Those that pleased the owner's eye were to be given every opportunity in racing. The first thing to do was to nominate them for the Lassie stakes, which will return the greatest dividends. On last Sept. 6 the owner entered in the stake what he regarded as his prize fillies and paid a $10 entrance fee.

They Pile Up the Purse.

During the fall these yearling fillies received their first lessons in racing and if the proud young ladies lived up to early promise a payment of $20 was made on last Jan. 15 to keep them eligible for the stake.

Throughout the spring and early summer they were prepared for the season's racing, and if on May 15 the owner still was convinced he had an unusual filly, he paid $50 more to keep her eligible.

Next came the actual racing tests. Those that exhibited the class and speed their owners thought they perceived in them a year ago will go into the six furlong Lassie stakes struggle today.

From an original field of 306 only eleven of these proud babies of the turf remain sufficiently high in their owners' esteem to be named overnight for the rich prize. In order to show the world that he knows nearly all there is to know about thoroughbred fillies, the owner must put up another $1,000 this afternoon if he wishes his filly to start.

Easterners Are Favorites.

The entrance fee, the payments made to keep the fillies eligible to the race, and the starting fee are all added to the $10,000 prize which the Arlington Park Jocky club offers for the race. Should the 11 named overnight go to the post this afternoon, the gross value of the Lassie will be $32,840.

If the early wagering can be taken as an indication, the successful owner will be either Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney or Morton L. Schwartz. Both are from New York.

Whitney's filly, Motto, a fine looking daughter of Sir Gallahad III.-Maxima, was installed as the favorite at 5 to 2. She will be handled by Jocky Sonny Workman and as a result of her triumph in the Fashion stakes at Belmont Park is generally regarded as the one to beat in the Lassie.

Black Helen Missing.

Owner Schwartz will be represented by Good Gamble, an easy winner at Arlington in the only start of her career. She will be ridden by Jocky Mack Garner and the odds quoted against her last night were 3 to 1. Bye-Lo, owned by Mrs. Roy Carruthers of Chicago, and Mid Victorian, the property of the Warm stable of Kentucky, were the equal third choice at 6 to 1.

With the exception of Black Helen, the sensational filly which Col. Edward R. Bradley forgot to nominate for the stake, the 11 named for the Lassie are the smartest 2 year old fillies in the country.

There was some doubt as to track conditions last night. A bright sunshine for a few hours today will make the going fast. This is the sixth running of the Lassie. Such great fillies as Mata Hari, Hilena, Top Flight, Risque, and Capture were the previous winners.

MOON MULLINS—ROCKING CHAIR BABY

Senators Beat Yankees, 9-8, in Hitting Duel

New York, July 6.—(AP)—Although the New York Yankees made more hits than the Washington Senators, Red Ruffing's wildness and an error by Frank Crosetti cost the Yankees the game. The Senators triumphed, 9 to 8, to even the series.

Lou Gehrig drove out his 24th home run of the season to enter a three-way tie with Jimmy Foxx and Bob Johnson of the Athletics for the home run leadership. Lou's homer came in the fifth inning with a man on base. He drove in another run with a single to give him ten runs batted in so far this series.

through Chamberlin's hands to score Kamm and put Pytlak on third. A single by Rice scored Pytlak, whereupon Gaston closed the inning by throwing out Burnett.

The two run episode that moved the Sox out in front in the fourth began with Simmons doubling off the right field wall and missing a homer only because of a stiff headwind. Boken bounced straight at Burnett, but the ball went through the young man's hands and Simmons scored on the error. Chamberlin prolonged his ineffectiveness by fanning. Shea singled to right on a hit and run play, Boken going to third. A popup disposed of Gaston, but Conlan singled to left to drive in Boken. Haas rolled to Burnett for the third out.

Gaston surrendered one run in the Indians' half of the fourth, and might have been embarrassed by more if there hadn't been some base running that even the White Sox would have been ashamed of. With one out Holland walked and Pytlak singled. For no apparent reason, Pytlak drifted off first base, and when Holland observed this he started running. After a lot of throwing from one side of the diamond to the other Holland was retired between third and home. Winegarner was disposed of and Rice bounced to Boken, who fumbled. It, however, was scored as a hit, on which Pytlak went home. Burnett then rolled to Chamberlin, who not only held the ball, but made an accurate throw to first.

Dykes Reaches Extremes.

The Sox used only two hits to get a pair of runs in the fifth, putting them in front by 6 to 3. This started with Dykes being flicked on the shirt by a pitched ball. Bonura flied out, but Simmons singled over Hale's head. Boken singled to right, scoring Dykes and sending the Milwaukee Duke to third. The Duke scored on Chamberlin's liner into Averill's hands.

Winegarner doubled with one out in the sixth and this developed into a run when Boken made a wild throw to Bonura on Rice's grounder. This reduced the Sox lead to two runs. The Chicagoans didn't restore a three run advantage until the ninth when Dykes tripled against the left field wall and scored on a single by Bonura.

Perry Takes Singles Title at Wimbledon

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WIMBLEDON, England, July 6.—Fred Perry, England's Davis cup star, today won the men's singles championship in the All-England tournament by defeating Jack Crawford, defending champion from Australia. The scores were 6-3, 6-0, 7-5. It was the first time in 25 years that an Englishman has captured the title. The last Briton to win the crown was A. W. Gore in 1909.

Perry displayed great tennis as he dashed up and down the courts to defeat the Australian. It required only one hour and ten minutes to complete the match, one of the shortest final matches ever played at Wimbledon. Twenty thousand cheered the Englishman as he scored his third victory over Crawford.

Perry accomplished his first triumph over Crawford in the finals for the United States singles title last year. Later he went to Australia, where he won from Crawford for the Australian championship.

Lester Stoefen and George Lott, United States Davis cup doubles team, advanced to the finals by defeating Harry Hopman, Australia, and Daniel Prenn, Germany, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, 8-6. They will meet Jean Borotra and Jacques Brugnon of France, who triumphed over Ian G. Collins and F. H. D. Wilde of England, 7-5, 3-6, 6-2, 6-4.

SETTLE DISPUTE OVER COMPLAINT OF UNDERTAKERS

Police Get Instructions on Dead Persons.

Coroner Walsh, Police Commissioner Allman, and Attorney Benjamin S. Adamowski, representing the Chicago Funeral Directors' association, were in agreement yesterday that when police take charge of a dead person the body should be removed to the nearest undertaking establishment. An old controversy on this matter was almost renewed yesterday, but when the opinions of all were sifted, the incipient dispute faded out.

Attorney Adamowski said there had been some complaints that the practice had been discontinued. Coroner Walsh, he said, had ordered bodies taken to the county morgue after there had been some talk about missing property of dead persons.

Order Finally Goes Out.

"The association asked Commissioner Allman to inform the department that the custom, which has been in effect since 1892, still applied," Attorney Adamowski said. "Coroner Walsh didn't want the order sent out, saying it wasn't necessary, but it was sent out and we are satisfied."

Coroner Walsh said there are two undertakers' associations, that represented by Adamowski, and another called Funeral Services Associates, of which Thomas M. Crane is head. There had been some difference of opinions between them, but at present all is harmony.

"The trouble started when I insisted no favoritism be shown," Coroner Walsh said. "Some undertakers were using fraudulent means to get business and as the result of complaints made by me two undertakers lost their licenses. One had presented a forged order and obtained the body of a man named Jack Hosey, inmate of a home for cripples, and a collection of $35 taken up to bury Hosey. Hosey had relatives who came here to attend his funeral and they found out the deception practices of one undertaker.

License Is Revoked.

"Another undertaker lost his license because he did not give proper burial to a man who supposedly had no friends but for whose funeral $325 had been advanced by a relative.

"Because of these cases I issued an order that if bodies were unclaimed for 100 hours they must be turned over to the county morgue or buried at the expense of the undertaker. In many instances an undertaker is willing to take a chance and hold a body, waiting for relatives to pay for a funeral. If he does not bring the body to the morgue before the 100 hours are up, and no relatives appear with money, I force the undertaker to bear the cost of a decent burial.

"Aside from those matters there is no controversy on the subject right now. In rare cases where it appears necessary the body of a murdered person is removed to the morgue instead of to the nearest undertaking parlor. That is to facilitate the post mortem and the investigating."

MME. CURIE IS QUIETLY BURIED WITHOUT RITES

SCEAUX, France, July 6.—(AP)—Mme. Marie Curie, co-discoverer of radium, was buried today as she had lived, in the utmost simplicity.

There was a ten minute ceremony without a civil or religious ritual. Her frail, wasted body, which she had devoted to science, was lowered in a plain oak casket into the same grave with her husband in a crowded and least expensive part of the little village cemetery.

Roses were distributed to each of the twenty-five laboratory associates and 150 friends and scientists who were there when an automobile herse brought the casket at 11:30 a. m. The mourners formed a line and each placed a rose on the closed casket.

Beside the severely plain casket were laid wreaths from the French government, the president of Poland, and probably all radium laboratories in the world, including those in the United States and Canada.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Chalk up a victory for the crooners. Headed by Will Osborne, one of the earliest in the category, they have won a battle to have the word "crooner" included in the new edition of Webster's dictionary published by G. & C. Merrian. A few weeks ago it was revealed that crooner did not show in the final proofs for the tome. So Osborne sounded a clarion call to which responded Sigmund Spaeth, the eminent music critic; Paul Whiteman, Isidor Achron, formerly Jascha Heifetz' accompanist; Abe Lyman, Nick Lucas, Vera Van, the Eton Boys, Baby Rose Marie, and many others. An indignation meeting was called and a terrific hue and cry set up—an unseemly thing for crooners. But it brought results and the publishers announced that "crooner" would be defined in the forthcoming edition.

Crooner seems to be a fighting word. Many of those that leaped to the defense of the word have in times past objected to it, particularly when applied to them. Rudy Vallee corrects people when they say crooner. "Soft singer," he says. The word makes Irish Morton Downey fighting mad. Perhaps that is because they have looked up "croon" in Webster's. The first and preferred definition given is "to make a continuous hollow sound as cattle in pain."

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt is scheduled for a busy day Monday—12 hours of activities before her new radio program has its première at 9 p. m. from the Globe theater at the Fair. At 9 a. m. she will confer with her sponsors; then follow in swift succession a press conference, visit to the Art institute, luncheon with Mrs. Rufus C. Dawes, visit to the Simmons exhibit at the Fair, a reception by the Woman's Trade Union league, dinner with friends and then at 8 p. m. rehersal for her program of news comment and suggestions for the uses of leisure.

Pierre Andre's wife, son, Davy, and sister are convalescing from injuries incurred when the car in which they were riding skidded off the road near Waukegan. . . . Jack Wuehrle, Charlie Agnew's first violinist, is in the Mayo Brothers' clinic at Rochester, Minn. . . . Agn 's pianist, Hunter Kahler, is leaving the band to join the WBBM-CBS Studio orchestra. On leaving W-G-N Agnew will go to St. Louis for several weeks and then to the Rice hotel roof at Houston, Tex. . . . Carlos Molina is leaving the Dells Sunday and will replace Clyde McCoy at the Grove in Houston. Ben Pollack is slated for the Dells with Jack Laws serving for a few days. A radio outlet is contemplated.

Don Bestor and Buddy Rogers are engaging in a long range argument over the vibraharp, a new instrument resembling somewhat a small piano in appearance. [It is electrically powered and gives out bell-like sounds.] Bestor claims that he has exclusive rights to the use of the instrument and threatens litigation to make Rogers abandon it. A spokesman for Buddy set forth that what Bestor had mistaken for the sound of the harp was probably the vibrant vocal version of "Boogey Man," by Jack Douglas, Buddy's man Friday. But Rogers admits owning a vibraharp and maintains he has a right to use it. It is operated by Dewey Bergman.

The couple was spending the holiday at the Michigan resort when a "parachute salute" exploded and struck Mrs. Wescott in the eye. After giving her emergency treatment, Dr. Wescott placed his wife in the car and started for Chicago.

Several other residents of Chicago suffered partial blindness as the result of fireworks accidents on the holiday. Dr. Wescott has an office at 30 North Michigan avenue and lives at 526 8th avenue, Wilmette.

9 REPORTED DEAD AS RIOTS SPREAD IN AMSTERDAM

AMSTERDAM, Holland, July 6.—(AP)—Nine or ten persons were reliably reported to have been killed tonight as riots spread throughout Amsterdam.

Confined for 48 hours to the Jordamm district, new disorders tonight broke simultaneously in sixteen other sections. Police and rioters engaged in numerous district conflicts, and so many were injured that the sanitary service was scarcely able to handle the rush of the wounded.

The disorders were started in the Jordamm district by unemployed men protesting the cut in the municipal dole. They were joined by communists and for many hours the rioters completely dominated the Jordamm area, a section of workingmen's homes.

The district was described as a seething mass of revolt. Police feared they would be able to end the disorders only after much more bloodshed.

COW CAUSES CAR CRASH; 3 KILLED; STUDY LIABILITY

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., July 6.—[Special.]—Coroner E. A. Cornell today said he would ask an opinion of Chippewa County Prosecutor Frank P. Sullivan whether there exists criminal liability of the owner of a cow which last night caused the death of three persons and the injury of four others on a highway 14 miles south of here.

The dead are Frank Christie, 47, Sault gasoline and oil dealer; Jessie Hantz, 40, Rudyard, Mich., aviator, and Benhard Yli, 20, Rudyard.

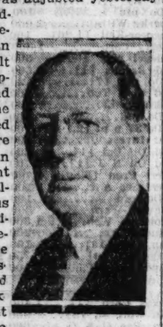
ARMOUR'S NEW CAPITAL PLAN WINS APPROVAL

Designed to Restore Dividends.

The top heavy capital structure of Armour & Co. was adjusted yesterday when stockholders adopted a reorganization plan designed to result in early resumption of dividend payments. The program, adopted after the failure of another plan last summer, went through by almost unanimous vote of approximately three-fourths of the stockholders present or represented by proxy. Heckling was sharp at times, but of little effect.



T. G. LEE.

The favorable vote was 3,420,235 shares of a total of 4,572,313, or 74.8 per cent of all holdings. The negative tally was 2,427 shares. Preferred shareholders gave the plan heartiest approval, with a count of 439,472 to 1,207. This represented 76.8 per cent of all shares. An even 75 per cent, or 1,500,724 of 2,000,000 shares, of the class A common stock voted ratification. The class B stockholders voted 1,480,039, or 74 per cent of the 2,000,000 shares for reorganization. The opposition in each of the latter two was 610 shares. Only 26 shareholders represented the opposition.

Directors Also Vote Approval.

Formal ratification by the directors followed, though the stockholders' meeting was recessed to July 10 in case legal details arise to be worked out.

Briefly, the plan provides for a slash of $55,370,000 in the value at which assets are carried on the company books. This is estimated to reduce depreciation and other charges against earnings by $2,150,000 annually, thus providing funds for dividends.

The Illinois law provides that no dividends may be paid if the net assets are less than the stated capital. This necessitated the thorough recasting of the financial structure.

Under the plan two classes of stock eventually will replace the three formerly in existence. Stated capital will be only $20,723,130, as against the old figure of $157,231,300 outstanding.

New Issue of Preferred.

A new issue of prior preferred 6 per cent cumulative stock will be used to retire the 572,813 shares of 7 per cent preferred stock on a share for share basis. In addition two shares of new common stock will be given with each prior preferred unit in payment of back dividends of $24.50 on each old preferred share. The new preferred has no stated value, but may be redeemed by the company for $100 plus an added consideration of $15 a share. The old preferred has $100 par value and also may be called at $115.

The stated value of common shares has been reduced from $25 to $5 each. Holders of "A" shares will exchange for new common on a share for share basis, while one share of new common will be given for each two shares of the old "B."

Where there were 4 million shares of common stock, evenly divided between "A" and "B" holdings, there now will be 4,144,626 shares of new common stock when all old preferred shares have been retired for new. The reduction in stated value from $25 to $5 per share, however, reduced this part of the capital skyscraper from 100 millions to slightly more than 20 millions.

Priority Not Disturbed.

The new setup does not in any way disturb the priority of the old preferred holders over common stock. They may retain their shares, and will be entitled to receive the $24.50 in dividends accumulated on each share to July 1, 1934, before any common stock dividend is paid.

The 6 per cent dividend on the new preferred must be met before the old preferred, however. A payment on at least the former is expected Oct. 1, which would be the first distribution of any kind since Jan. 2, 1931. The last payment of "A" stock was in 1926, while no dividend ever has been declared on the "B" stock.

Distribution of the new common shares in exchange of preferred issues in lieu of dividends has reduced the arrears from 14 million dollars to $3,250,000. Old preferred stockholders still have the exchange option, and are expected to exercise it to cut still further the arrears to be paid before common dividends may be resumed. Requirements for a quarterly distribution on the prior preferred issued to date amounts to $660,000. Giving effect to the changes voted, the earnings of the company this year would equal to requirements on the prior shares.

Looking to Future.

The management is looking much further ahead than the present reorganization. In the plan is a conversion privilege by which preferred stock holders may take six shares of common stock for each preferred unit. Thus, if all exchange provisions were taken up, the company would have but one class of stock—7,578,504 shares of common.

It was rumored further that the eventual plan is to consolidate the Illinois parent company with Armour & Co. of Delaware, which is in no way involved with the current plan. The latter's dividends are guaranteed by the Illinois company.

T. G. Lee, president of the company, and chairman of the stockholders' meeting, declared yesterday's action will "go a long way toward solving problems which have confronted the company for some years. I believe this is a sound plan, which will benefit investors in this business."

The program admittedly is largely the handiwork of Frederick H. Prince, chairman of the finance committee.

Best Premium in Years Paid for Cash Wheat

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Cash wheat yesterday brought the best price premiums of recent years in the leading markets but quotations on futures in the trading here were slightly lower with the exception of the July delivery. Active buying by millers resulted in the good premiums on the cash wheat, much of which was high quality grain. The prospect that wheat receipts will be scarce after the movement of the winter wheat crop recedes is apparently influencing mill buying now.

The movement of winter wheat into market continues fairly heavy, however. Receipts yesterday aggregated 1,794 cars at 11 markets or approximately 3,500,000 bushels. Hedging of this wheat in the futures market was evident in yesterday's trade. September wheat closed at 89¾ cents a bushel, down approximately ½ cent from Thursday's price. The July contract, against which deliveries must be made during the current month, was selling ⅛ cent bushel higher.

Corn Reduces Loss.

Corn closed from ½ to 1 cent a bushel lower after selling down as much as 1½ cents early. Weather reports from the corn belt were favorable. Heavy rains were reported in Illinois and Iowa and in parts of Kansas and Oklahoma. In sections where rains were the heaviest it is believed crop deterioration has been effectively checked.

A flurry of excitement was caused yesterday when reports were first received that frost had appeared in northwestern Manitoba and parts of southern and central Saskatchewan, but no market reaction developed.

Conditions Favorable.

The Cargill crop report issued yesterday after the close of market gave a generally favorable picture of conditions throughout this country and Canada.

Yields and quality in the winter wheat belt where harvesting and threshing are now general are showing some exceptionally good returns, according to this agency. Southern Illinois, Indiana, and Ohio are mentioned as areas that are showing better returns than had been anticipated.

Cargill finds little if any improvement in the spring wheat area of the Dakotas and Minnesota but sufficient rains in Montana to keep the crops growing. The agency said that a "splendid" crop of Canadian spring wheat is promised by current reports.

U. S. FIRMS FEAR FRENCH TAX MAY DRIVE THEM OUT

PARIS, July 6.—(AP)—Many American firms in France feared today they would be forced to quit the country because of Premier Doumergue's failure to get parliament to ratify a long pending treaty with the United States lifting double taxation.

Some firms were said by a spokesman for American interests to be already considering leaving the country to avoid collection of $100,000,000 in excess taxes which have been suspended by the French for several years.

French-American trade relations also may be seriously complicated through an avowed intention of the chamber of deputies committee handling the matter to hold up treaty ratification for trading on the war debts matter or to get more favorable treatment in a commercial treaty.

No Comment from United States.

Washington, D. C., July 6.—(AP)—Official comment was withheld at the state department tonight on what weapon the United States might wield against France if that nation presses for collection of $100,000,000 of taxes from American firms.

20% PAID BY BILLS REALTY TRUST ON LIQUIDATION

Three liquidating dividends totaling 20 per cent of principal have been paid on shares of beneficial interest of Individual Accumulative trust number 4,541. This was an investment trust organized and sponsored by Bills Realty, Inc., in November, 1929, providing for 40 per cent of the payments by investors to be invested in listed bonds and 60 per cent in mortgages and home purchase contracts.

The liquidation, started Sept. 30, 1932, was prompted by difficulties of collecting interest and principal on real estate investments and requests for cash surrender and loan values.

Believe U.S.Steel Shipment in June Best Since 1931

New York, July 6.—(AP)—Shipments of finished steel products by the United States Steel corporation in June are estimated to be the largest for any single month since 1931. If these estimates prove to be correct the report of the corporation, which will be published next Wednesday, will show a substantial improvement over the 745,054 tons reported shipped in May.

CHICAGO-COAST STREAMLINED TRAIN PLANNED

Los Angeles, Cal., July 6.—[Special.]—President Carl R. Gray of the Union Pacific railroad arrived in Los Angeles today with announcement that, although streamline trains are still considered in an experimental stage, this type of train is expected to be placed in service before the end of the year between Los Angeles and Chicago.

A six car streamline train will be delivered to the Union Pacific next month, he said, and a series of tests continuing over a period of several months will be launched before the train will be placed in regular service.

"Business conditions over the country are showing improvement over last year," Gray said. "Our business is holding up well considering drouth conditions in the midwest. Up to now wheat is the only commodity affected, but unless relief comes quickly the corn crop likewise will be lost, which may cause serious consequences in Nebraska because of the financial importance of the crop."

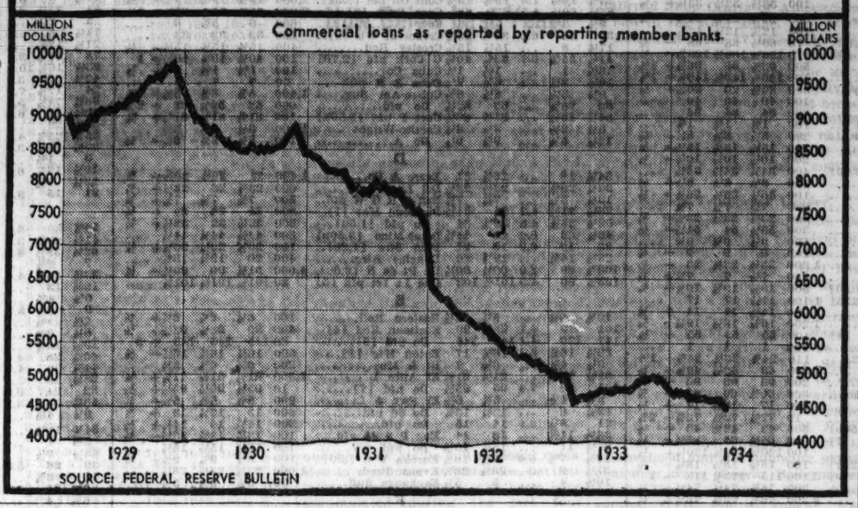
Smallest Amount of Banking Funds in Years Now Being Used by Commercial Borrowers



Security Board Bars Employe Speculation

Kennedy Rents Estate

Washington, D. C., July 6.—(AP)—Apparently Joseph P. Kennedy is confident the senate will confirm his appointment to the securities exchange commission. A realtor announced today that Kennedy had signed a one year lease for Marwood, one of the most pretentious estates in the vicinity, and that he would move in next week. Situated on a bluff overlooking the Potomac, Marwood contains 30 rooms, 12 baths, a private theater, a swimming pool, and extensive stables.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 6.—Margin trading or stock speculation of any kind will not be permitted among employés of the new federal securities exchange commission. This is the commission's first ruling, announced today by Chairman Joseph P. Kennedy. He declared the commission's rigid ban against speculative accounts among its own employés could in no way be taken to indicate the commission's attitude on speculative trading by the general public.

Report Deal in 48 Hours.

To carry out the order employés will be required to divulge to the commission all stock transactions in which they engage not more than 48 hours after the transaction takes place, Chairman Kennedy pointed out.

"What we are trying to do is to prevent anybody who may be handling information here from being in a position to speculate on the basis of that information. On the other hand we want to protect anybody who has saved some money and wishes to invest it," Kennedy explained.

Ruling Unanimous.

Commissioners attending were unanimous in writing this resolution on the books yesterday as the commission's first ruling, Kennedy said. Ferdinand Pecora, counsel for the senate banking and currency committee and rival of Kennedy for the chairmanship, did not attend yesterday's meeting. It was reported he will decide over the weekend whether he will serve as a member of the commission under Kennedy.

At the same time it was learned John Mothershed, together with several others, is under consideration for appointment as secretary to the commission. Mothershed, originally from Georgia and more recently the manager of a Washington branch of a brokerage house, has the backing of several southern senators.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 6.—The dollar lost slightly in relation to the French gold franc today, but gained against the British pound. At the close the franc at 6.59¾ cents was ¼ point higher, indicating a dollar worth 59.38 cents as compared with 59.41 yesterday.

Sterling closed at $5.04½, off ⅝ cent for the day. German marks held about steady, the Canadian dollar was unchanged, the Dutch florin fell 7 points, and the Italian lira and Swiss franc eased slightly.

The price of gold in London advanced 2 pence to 137 shillings 9 pence a fine ounce (equivalent to $34.77). Bars valued at $1,563,050 were sold.

The New York Federal Reserve bank reported imports of $1,476,400 from Canada, $677,600 from England, $410,700 from India, and $812,000 from China at San Francisco. There were no exports and no net change in earmarked stocks.

For the first six months of 1934, the sales aggregated $63,291,643, an increase of 15.6 per cent over the 1933 period, when the total was $54,726,073. At the end of June the company had a total of 723 American and Canadian stores in operation. A year ago 718 stores were operated by the company.

Newberry Reports Gain.

J. J. Newberry company sales during June amounted to $3,407,328, against $2,900,065 for June of last year, a gain of 17.5 per cent. The sales figure for May has been revised to $3,408,136, instead of $3,536,532 that was previously reported.

Sales for the first six months of this year amounted to $17,676,463, compared with $14,827,046 for the corresponding period of last year, a gain of 23.3 per cent.

14 New York Banks Pay Off Notes to RFC

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 6.—Fourteen New York City banks operating under state charter, which sold capital notes aggregating $51,300,000 to the Reconstruction Finance corporation during the campaign by the RFC to strengthen the capital structure of banks, exercised their option to repay these notes on July 2, Chairman Jesse H. Jones of the corporation announced tonight.

All the banks displayed prominently in their June 30 statements their indebtedness to the RFC. Having complied with the urgent demands of the President and RFC officials to lead the way in selling capital notes, the banks are now closing out their relations with the government agency.

List of Retirements.

The largest retirement was $20,000,000 by the Guaranty Trust company of New York. The others ranged from $100,000 to $5,000,000 as follows:

Lawyers' County Trust company, $250,000; Corn Exchange Bank Trust company, $3,000,000; Bankers' Trust company, $5,000,000; Chemical Bank and Trust company, $5,000,000; Bank of the Manhattan company, $3,000,000; the Continental Bank and Trust company of New York, $100,000; the Marine Midland Trust company of New York, $1,000,000; the Fifth Avenue bank, $200,000; Central Hanover Bank and Trust company, $5,000,000; Irving Trust company, $5,000,000; Bank of New York and Trust company, $1,000,000; Fulton Trust company of New York, $250,000, and New York Trust company, $2,500,000.

As far as is known, New York's two big national banks, National City and Chase National, have no intention of redeeming the $50,000,000 issues of preferred stock which each sold to the government body.

Mature on July 31.

Under the agreement by which the RFC purchased the notes they would mature on July 31, unless an extension was obtained. While the RFC held the notes the banks were called upon to pay 4 per cent in interest to the corporation.

Jones said that while most of the banks had been paid for their notes with debentures of the RFC paying 2¼ per cent, they elected to pay off the notes in cash on July 2, retaining the RFC debenturres. These will not mature for another six months or more and are proving a good investment for the banks, as other short term government investments are carrying low interst rates.

These repayments, along with $68,400,000 paid in by the Federal Land banks to the RFC, enabled it to pay the treasury $90,000,000 on July 2 for the retirment of 3 per cent notes which the RFC had sold to the treasury.

HOLC Annual Report Shows Illinois Loans Only 3% of Total

Of the first billion dollars expended by the Home Owners Loan corporation throughout the United States, home owners in Illinois have obtained only about 31 millions, or slightly more than 3 per cent of the total for the nation.

This was disclosed yesterday when the HOLC office in Washington, D. C., issued a review of its first year's operations. Figures for Illinois were announced by A. John Berge, general administrator for this state.

The comparatively small amount coming to Illinois was due to the slowness of the Illinois office in making loans under the previous management. In recent weeks Illinois loans have been speeded up.

3,300 Loans in June.

Total loans in this state in June were 3,300, compared with 1,754 in May, 1,035 in April, and 52 last October. This month's loans in Illinois are expected to pass the 4,000 mark.

Chairman John H. Fahey of the Home Owners Loan corporation announced that 341,162 distressed home owners had been given relief.

Although the corporation has only 3 billion dollars to lend, Mr. Fahey said that 1,510,750 applications totaling $4,856,269,830 had been received.

"A large proportion of these are ineligible," he said, "largely because many of the applicants are not in genuine distress and such applications will be rejected as rapidly as investigation discloses the facts."

Average Illinois Loan $3,883.

The average loan closed throughout the country was $3,013. The average loan in Illinois was $3,883.

Twenty-two states obtained more than 5,000 loans each. Ohio led with 38,557. Hawaii received 216. Illinois has closed nearly 8,000. The other twenty states with more than 5,000 loans are: Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Missouri, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Oklahoma, Texas, California, and Washington.

Reserve Will Admit Trust Companies

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 6.—New expansion of the federal control over national finances was launched today when the federal reserve board announced that it would consider for membership trust companies which do practically no banking business.

Enlistment of trust companies under federal supervision would spread the regulatory powers of Washington officials into fields not previously invaded. The reserve system before has attempted to limit its membership to banks doing a commercial banking business. The formal announcement of the change in policy was made today by the federal reserve board.

Reverse Former Ruling.

"During the last several years," the announcement read, "the board has taken the position that it would not admit to membership in the federal reserve system trust companies which do substantially no commercial banking business, but recently it reviewed the question and decided that ft should give consideration to applications for membership from trust companies of this type. Accordingly, the federal reserve agent at each of the federal reserve banks has been requested to inform any trust company in his district that may have been advised that it would not be admitted to membership because it was doing substantially no commercial banking business that the board will give consideration to its application for membership if it desires to file one."

At the same time that it made this announcement the reserve board ruled that trust companies which are engaged in a mortgage business financed from the floatation of trust company bonds can not be affiliated with federal reserve member banks. Such a trust affiliate would violate the banking act of 1933, the board ruled. This act provides that no federal reserve member bank may have an affiliate "engaged principally in the issue, flotation, underwriting, public sale, or distribution" of securities.

Security Sellers Barred.

"The trust company," the board announced in a ruling on a specific case, "made loans secured by first mortgages on improved real estate and the obligations secured by such mortgages were assigned to one of two corporate trustees, in accordance with the terms of a trust agreement, to secure the payment of bonds of the trust company which were issued and sold to the public by the trust company.

"After careful consideration of this matter the board ruled, in view of all the facts involved, that the trust company was engaged principally in the issue and sale of securities within the meaning of section 20 of the banking act of 1933, and that, in view of the affiliation of the trust company with a member bank, appropriate action should be taken to comply with the requirements of section 20 of the banking act of 1933."

GENERAL BAKING VOTES DEFERRED DIVIDEND OF $4

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 6.—Deferred dividends amounting to $4 a share payable on July 23 to stockholders of record of July 16 were declared today by the directors of the General Baking company. At the same time, a dividend of 25 cents a share on the common stock was declared, payable on the same date as the preferred dividend.

Frederick H. Frazier, chairman of the board, said that before declaring any dividends the directors had hoped to receive a decision from the courts on stockholders' suits in which the contention was made that the voting power of the common stock should be reduced. In view of the protracted proceedings, Mr. Frazier said, the directors had decided to declare the dividends to "avoid undue hardship to stockholders."

The Maytag company today declared a dividend of 75 cents on the cumulative preference stock and the regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 on the $6 cumulative preferred stock. Disbursement on the $3 preference stock marks a resumption of dividends, the last previous payment of the same amount having been 75 cents on Feb. 1, 1932. On May 1 last the company cleared up all back dividends on this issue.

Request to Liquidate General Life Withdrawn

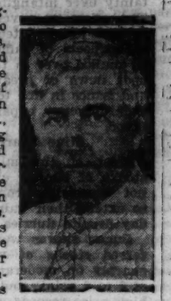
Chase S. Conover, chief examiner of the Illinois department of insurance, announced yesterday the department withdrew its request to the attorney general to liquidate the General Life Insurance company, 134 North La Salle street, Chicago. The action was taken as the result of a $5,000 contribution to the company's surplus, which brought its condition in line with statutory requirements.

LOANS OF BANKS CLOSE TO RFC FAIL TO EXPAND

Jones' Own Unit Cuts Credit in 6 Months.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

What Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation in Washington, D. C., says to Jesse H. Jones, chairman and president of the National Bank of Commerce in Houston, Tex., about expanding bank credit would be of great interest to most of the bank officers in the United States.



JESSE H. JONES.

Mr. Jones as chairman of the RFC, together with other administration leaders in Washington, has been demanding that bankers lend more freely to industry.

This has become a burning issue in banking all over the country because as deposits have soared during the last six months bank loans have continued to decline despite the insistence of Mr. Jones and his associate New Dealers that banks lend more generously.

What Jones Tells Bankers.

Early in February, speaking before the New York State Bankers' association, Mr. Jones made an especially urgent demand that banks pursue a more liberal policy in extending credit to actual or prospective borrowers.

"If the banker fails to grasp his opportunity and to meet his responsibility there can be but one alternative—government lending," he said.

He contended that "banking should be conducted more in a spirit of public service than purely for profit; it should be more a profession than a business involved with speculation."

With deposit insurance in effect, he said, "there is no longer any occasion for extreme bank liquidity."

And he added:

"Now that the President and congress have acted on our money there is no longer any valid reason for hesitation and the government should not be forced to become the banker for every deserving borrower in the United States."

Jones' Own Bank's Loans Lag.

Figures released by Mr. Jones' National Bank of Commerce of Houston, Tex., as of June 30, 1934, show that during the first six months of this year its loans declined $1,644,881 while its deposits increased $3,201,292.

On Dec. 31, 1933, the bank reported loans of $7,940,553 and deposits of $21,342,103. On June 30, 1934, its loans had dropped to $6,295,972 and its deposits had risen to $24,543,396.

Between March 5 and June 30, although deposits soared $919,359, the National Bank of Commerce increased its loans only $167,613. As of March 5 the bank was estimated to be 30.3 per cent liquid, and the June 30 deposit and loan figures indicate that it is even more liquid now.

Continental's Loans Decrease.

The Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company of Chicago is another institution whose loaning record is being watched closely by the banking fraternity, because of the close connection between this bank and the administration at Washington. Two-thirds of the Continental's capital is owned by the Reconstruction Finance corporation, and its chairman is Walter J. Cummings, treasurer of the Democratic national committee.

During the period from March 5 to June 30 the Continental's deposits increased nearly 84 million dollars, but its loans, instead of increasing in proportion, declined nearly one and a half million dollars.

Meanwhile bankers throughout the country continue to insist that the failure of bank loans to expand is due not to unwillingness of banks to make reasonably sound loans, but to the lack of demand by borrowers able to demonstrate their ability to repay.

Find Good Loans Scarce.

In financial circles it is believed that the experience of the federal reserve banks in granting direct loans to industry may soften the attitude of the administration toward the loaning policy of commercial banks.

The federal reserve banks are genuinely anxious to make direct loans in order to comply with the administration program, especially inasmuch as the first ten million dollars to be lent is treasury money and not their own.

It is reported, however, that they are finding it extremely difficult to find eligible borrowers because the field has been combed so thoroughly by the commercial banks.

STOCK MARKET MOVES HIGHER IN CAUTIOUS TRADE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 6.—Stocks labored slowly forward again today. The gains were somewhat smaller than those of yesterday, however, and price movements worthy of classification as features were few and far between. Dealings were on the usual small scale at 457,727 shares.

Speculators were apparently still in a cautious frame of mind. This was not due to any further change in the business picture, but more to uncertainty over intangible market factors. The effect of government regulation policies was awaited.

Prospects of inflation continued to be mulled over in the absence of any spot news of great market account and issues in line to benefit from further currency expansion remained in favor.

Mine Shares Strong.

Most of the minerals and other stocks of similar classification, while not especially prominent, were able to extend their gains of the previous day despite flurries of realizing sales.

Sugar shares were liked, and preferred stocks of various sorts rose sharply on moderate demand. Gains of 2 to 6 points and a number of new high price records were made by Beet Sugar, Woolen, City Ice, Cuban-American Sugar, Federal Mining, Hershey, Postal Telegraph, Public Service, and Radio B preferred stocks. Louisiana Oil preferred dropped 4 points on two sales.

Merchandising issues received support from sharp gains in individual chain store sales last month.

Coca Cola and Sterling Products were outstanding individual strong spots, rising around two points each. Coca Cola touched its best price in four years. Corn Products was another issue to attract attention.

Standard Industrials Up.

Most of the standard industrial shares moved along a fraction to a point. United States Steel crawled to about 40, but wearied of its exertions and fell back fractionally.

Good trafic figures brought a flurry of buying into the rails in the afternoon, but the net showing of the group as a whole was not so good as that of some other sections of the list.

The Utilities made a mild if belated response to the power figures, which hit a new high for the year.

The motors were sluggish and the food stocks firm. Tobacco stocks were quiet and steady. The liquors did nothing.

Nonmember Advisory Plan for N. Y. Exch. Approved

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 6.—The governing committee of the New York Stock exchange has formally adopted a resolution authorizing the appointment of an advisory committee of not more than ten nonmembers to participate in the deliberations of the governing committee of or such special or standing committees as the governing committee may appoint. The decision to authorize such a body was announced last week. At the next meeting of the committee, on July 11, nominees for the advisory committee will be submitted.

New York Exchange Seat Sells Steady at $96,000

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 6.—A membership on the New York Stock exchange has been sold for $96,000, unchanged from the previous sale. The high this year was $190,000 for several sales in January and February, and the low was $83,000 in March.

SELLING DUE TO RAIN DRIVES COTTON DOWN 14 TO 22 PTS.

Forecast for rain in the western cotton belt, with private returns showing showers in parts of Oklahoma, led to general selling of cotton yesterday. Prices declined more than $1.00 per bale from Thursday's finish at the extreme. There was also some selling on the prospect of a tax being placed on contracts for future delivery in the New Orleans market. Some stop loss orders were uncovered on the way down. Closing trades were at net losses of 18 to 22 points in Chicago, and 14 to 19 points in other markets.

Rainfall in Texas during the months of May and June was about 37 per cent of normal, reported to be the smallest in 40 years. Spot cotton dropped 15 points with New York 12.15 cents; New Orleans and Houston, 12.05 cents, and Galveston, 12 cents per pound. Prices:

HOGS AVERAGE 5 CENTS LOWER WITH TOP AT $5

Too Many of Plain Kinds Offered; Trade Slow.

Trading was slow in practically all classes of live stock yesterday, particularly in the plainer kinds lacking quality and finish. Buyers continued to offer premiums for selected kinds showing evidence of long corn feeding, but the proportion of these in recent arrivals has been too small to cut much figure in the general market.

Prime weighty butcher hogs retained the recent advances, one load of 287 pound average bringing $5, equal to the highest sale since Friday of last week. An unfavorable ratio between the price of corn and the market price of hogs and the killing off of 6,200,000 pigs by the AAA last fall are responsible for the shortage in the supply of top grades of weighty butchers in current receipts.

Few Are Top Grade.

Heavy hogs that have been selling at the top of the market are of the same crop from which the government destroyed the pigs during last August, September and October. Consequently, the proportion selling at the top of the price list has been unusually small in recent weeks. These were practically the only kinds attracting competition yesterday, the bulk of the packing sows and light hogs meeting slow sale at prices weak to 10 cents lower. The decline in the latter pulled the average price for the day down 5 cents to $4.50. Light and heavy hogs worked farther apart in the price range.

Sharpest losses the last ten days have been in the grades and weights that Federal Surplus Relief corporation was buying about three weeks ago. The government has not purchased hogs or pork since June 18, although officials of the corporation are carrying an order for 5,100 hogs a day which they can throw on the market at a moment's notice.

Cattle Prices Steady.

No material change was made in yesterday's list of cattle quotations. The kinds that have been attracting competition were not here and the others sold slowly at about steady with Thursday's average trade. Most of the meager receipts of steers sold within a range of $5 to $7. A load of 1,199 pound steers at $8.65 established the top for the day, but sellers said that a load of strictly fancy 1,200 to 1,400 pound steers would bring $10.40, as high as any time since January, 1932. Inferior classes of steers sold at $4 and under.

Calves and Lambs Gain.

Calves and lambs closed higher late yesterday afternoon, the former jumping 50 cents at the close. Most of the selected vealers sold at $5 to $6, with a few up to $6.25. The biggest run of western range lambs of the season arrived from Idaho and Washington. There were fourteen carloads from the two states, but demand for the tops was fairly good and prices worked up to 15 to 25 cents after a slow, steady opening. The bulk of the range lambs brought $8.40 to $8.60. City butchers bought natives upward to $8.50.

PRICES OF LARD FUTURES CLOSE 2½C TO 5C HIGHER

Packing interests were on the buying side of lard futures yesterday and, while there was some early selling on the weakness in grains, the close was 2½ to 5 cents higher. Bellies were nominally 2½ to 7½ cents higher, reflecting an improved demand for dry salted meats. Cash lard was 2½ cents higher at $6.72; loose, unchanged at $6.10 and leaf steady at $6.12. Cash bellies were 10 cents higher at $9.65. Prices:

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 6.—Heavy buying of United States government bonds which lifted prices of a dozen issues to new highs for the year featured dealings in the listed bond market.

Liberty 3½s touched 104 9-32, the highest price at which this issue has sold since issuance in May, 1917. Likewise, eight other treasury issues sold today at their highest levels since issuance. These were the three issues of 3¾s, the two issues of 3¼s, the two issues of 3s, and the 4¼-3¼s. Net gains for the day in the government group ranged from 1-32 to 10-32 point.

Buying Reinvestment Demand.

Buying of governments reflected the July reinvestment demand, since new corporation financing which has just recommenced has not kept up with the increased midyear dividend and interest disbursements. Institutional buying of government bonds was reported active today, as was the case on the previous day.

Domestic corporation bonds moved irregularly higher in comparatively quiet dealings. Closing prices were up 4 to down 3 points on the day. Several high grade railroad and utility issues touched new peaks for the year. The utilities showed the best average gains.

Foreign List Higher.

Although the tendency of leading foreign loans was toward slightly higher prices, German issues were generally weaker. The Dawes plan 7s lost 1¾ points and the Young plan 5½s a point. Losses for other German issues ranged up to nearly 7 points.

French government, Austrian government, United Kingdom, and the Scandinavian loans ruled steady to firm. Latin American issues were irregularly lower.

Total volume was $11,817,000 par value, compared with $9,362,000 Thursday.

Kirby Petroleum.

Answer: Kirby Petroleum company is an oil producer, operating in Texas and New Mexico. Gross operating income in 1933 was $299,000, against $333,000 in 1932 and $317,000 in 1931. Net income in 1933 was $99,000, after $299,000 losses on bad accounts and receivables, or 13 cents per share, against $118,000, or 16 cents a share, for 1932. Net income for 1931 equaled 11 cents a share, against 27 cents in 1930.

At the close of 1933 current assets, including $855,000 cash, were $470,000 and current liabilities were $53,000.

Capitalization consists solely of 750,000 shares of $1 par stock. Disbursements on the stock so far in 1934 total 10 cents a share. In 1933 the stock paid 10 cents a share, previous to which time nothing was paid since 75 cents in 1925.

Silk Companies.

Investors' Guide: I read your daily stock and bond column. I wish to invest some money in silk and artificial silk companies. I would appreciate your information as to their names.—Z. C.

Answer: The following are some manufacturers of artificial silk and products: Arnold Print Works; Associated Rayon; British Celanese, Ltd.; Canadian Celanese; Celanese Corporation of America; General Rayon Company, Ltd.; Industrial Rayon corporation; H. R. Mallison Company, Inc.; Tubize Chatillon corporation and I. G. Farbenindustrie A. G.

Companies engaged in manufacture of silk and silk goods include: Arnold Print Works; Belding-Corticelli, Ltd.; Century Ribbon Mills, Inc.; Cheney Brothers; Gotham Silk Hosiery Company, Inc., and H. R. Mallison & Co.

If there is any one particular company upon which you wish information we suggest you confine your inquiry to one organization.

Western Union.

Investors' Guide: What is the par value of Western Union bonds that bear 5 per cent, payable in 1951?—F. O. C.

Answer: We presume that by "par value" you mean face value, or denomination. Western Unions 5s, due 1951, come in denominations of $500 and $1,000 only.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, July 6.—(AP)—Cotton cloths were inactive today as most of the larger gray goods operations were away. Moderate sales of wash fabrics in cleanup lots were reported. Rayon yarn prices were somewhat irregular due to offerings of lots of varying qualities through brokers. More inquiry was reported for rayon fabrics to be made. Improvement was reported in the demand for wool goods for early cutting. Silk converters did more buying of greige goods. Satins and taffetas sold well in finished lines. Burlaps were very quiet.

RAW SILK.

NEW YORK, July 6.—(AP)—SILK—Raw futures closed quiet, unchanged to ½ point lower. Sales, 580 bales. July, $1.11 bid; October, $1.15; December, $1.12½ bid. Open market quotations [60 day basis]: Shanghai steam filature, 7S per cent seriplane, 20-22a, $1.25; Canton double extra, A, 14-16a, 85c; Japanese special crack double extra, 81 per cent seriplane, 13-15a, $1.17½.
